Representative Keating Quotes Grand Jury Report to Show Conditions in Colorado.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Efforts to obtain a solution of the Colorado mining war problem, despite the failure of the mission of Representative Foster to John D. Rockefeller, Jr., have not been abandoned. By direction of President Wilson a tentative and unofficial attempt to bring about mediation between the coal mining operators and the miners is now being made by William B. Wilson, Secretary of the Department of Labor.

Secretary Wilson has arranged for a conference in Washington with Hywel Davies, President of the Kentucky Coal Operators, and William Fairley of Alabama, an official of the Mine Workers' Union. Both are now en route to Washington for a conference with Secretary Wilson. When they arrive it is understood that they will also be asked by Secretary Wilson to confer with President Wilson.

Neither represents the contending factions in Colorado, but one is a prominent operator and the other is a prominent union miners' representative.

Secretary Wilson said that no plans had been made as to procedure in the proposed conciliation scheme, but that a third member might be selected to complete a committee to go to the scene of the strike.

Gov. E. E. Ammons of Colorado notified the War Department to-night that Capt. Frank L. Parker, with two troops of the Twelfth Cavalry from Fort D. A. Russell, Wyo., had arrived at Canon City, Col.

Gov. Ammons requested the War Department, in view of the fact that Major W. L. McClure, who is on the way from Fort Leavenworth with a squadron of the Twelfth Cavalry, will not arrive until the day after to-morrow, to authorize Capt. Parker to take command in the field with his troops in the Colorado mining region. This request was made so that the State troops now used there can be moved on to Forbes, Col., where there has been fighting since last night.

Gov. Ammons said in his dispatch that the militia at Canon City were withdrawn immediately upon the arrival of Capt. Parker's command and transferred to other points where they were urgently needed. In response to the request of the Governor, Secretary Garrison ordered Capt. Parker to assume command of the situation pending the arrival of Major McClure.

The Italian Ambassador called this morning on the Secretary of State to ask for protection for the Italians in strike riots in Colorado. The killing of six little children was the immediate cause of the request for the assurance of further protection.

15 DIE IN TWO BATTLES.

Strikers Give Up Arms After Killing Officer—Federal Troops Arrive.

DENVER, Col., April 29.—At least fifteen lives were the toll to-day in what the strikers, mine guards and State militia believed to be their last opportunity to battle for supremacy in the Colorado coal fields, before the arrival of the forces.

Hundreds of strikers at Walsenburg to-night are surrendering their arms to militia officers appointed by Col. Verdeckberg, following a battle in which Major P. P. Lester of the Hospital Corps was shot and killed while dressing a soldier's wound and wearing a Red Cross badge on his arm.

The battle, which began when 100 State soldiers attempted to dislodge 400 strikers in the hills near the town lasted for six hours. Firing stopped when the troops were withdrawn on orders said to have been received from Denver. Three militiamen were wounded. Lieut. Scott, shot in the head; Private Glenn Miller, shot in the face, and Private O. L. Wilmot, shot in the leg. It is said that the bodies of four strikers were seen lying on the hillside.

At Forbes ten men are known to have been killed. The bodies have been recovered. This is believed to constitute the total death list there. Six wounded men were taken from the field after the battle had subsided.

ROOSEVELT HAD HIS WAY.

Said He Would Explore the River Duvida Alone if He Had No Aid.

RIO JANEIRO, April 29.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt, before his departure from Rio Janeiro, determined to explore the River Duvida, according to Dr. Lauro Müller, the Brazilian Minister of Foreign Affairs. Col. Roosevelt told the Minister that if he would not send somebody to accompany him he would go alone.

Col. Rondon, the Chief of the Brazilian Commission which went with Col. Roosevelt, said that the journey might last from two to five months, according to the conditions of navigability of the Duvida. Dr. Müller opposed Col. Roosevelt's intentions, pointing out the difficulties he would have to encounter, but Col. Roosevelt declared obstinately that it was his intention to explore a river hitherto unknown.

Col. Rondon was, thereupon, appointed to accompany Col. Roosevelt's expedition.

BARGES SOON IN CANAL.

To Open Service on May 10 Because of Tehuantepec Road Closing.

PANAMA, April 29.—Gov. Goethals decided to-day to begin a barge service through the Panama Canal about May 10, thus bringing it into commercial use much earlier than had been anticipated. This decision was brought about by the interruption of the Tehuantepec Railroad route.

The first freight to be towed through will consist of Hawaiian sugar, and it is understood that this in future will probably be all routed by way of the canal.

Much freight has been offered the past few days for trans-shipment through the canal, most of it having formerly passed over the Tehuantepec route.

The condition imposed make it necessary to have a ship ready for the reloading at the end of the canal in order to prevent congestion of the docks, and also to facilitate the prompt release of the barges. A charge is to be made for tug service.

The Panama Railway is also preparing for increased traffic and prompt handling at the freight wharves at each end.

PUNISH SING SING REBELS.

Twenty-two Ringleaders Transferred to Clinton Prison.

ALBANY, April 29.—As a means of punishing the 22 ringleaders of the recent uprising at Sing Sing, the men to-morrow will be transferred to Clinton Prison at Dannemora for confinement until the expiration of their terms. Most of the convicts are from New York City, and their transfer to Clinton will make it virtually impossible for their relatives to visit them as frequently as heretofore.

The disturbance was generally attributed to dissatisfaction among prisoners over the Governor's veto of the Boylan Parole bill, which would have made the parole rule more lenient.

NEW SHAKESPEARE FINDS.

Dr. Wallace of Nebraska Locates the Site of the Old Globe Theatre.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, April 30.—The Times this morning publishes the first instalment of a report of new discoveries made by Prof. Charles William Wallace of the University of Nebraska and Mrs. Wallace concerning Shakespeare and his theatre.

From such material as the records of a Commission on Sewers and title deeds of property on Bankside, Dr. Wallace has been able to tell with something like precision the date of the building of the Globe Theatre and the spot on the south side of the Thames where the theatre stood.

"The site chosen for the Globe," says Dr. Wallace, "was the most unlovely spot of that unlovely region, flanked by two ditches or open sewers, one north and one south. The spot had long been used as a dumping ground for all sorts of offal and refuse."

Dr. Wallace suggests that since piles were driven into the marshy ground for the foundation of the theatre it might even yet be possible to discover the very contour of the Globe. Maiden Lane was on the south and a row of houses along Bankside on the north. The lease for the site was signed on Feb. 21, 1599.

Prof. and Mrs. Wallace have made valuable previous discoveries in regard to Shakespeare as a result of their untiring work in The Record office in this city.

STRONG FOR TOLLS REPEAL.

Poll of Business Shows Big Majority on Wilson's Side.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 29.—That a large percentage of the business men are in favor of the repeal of the free tolls exemption to coastwise shipping through the Panama Canal, as advocated by President Wilson, is shown by a poll being made by the National Business Men's League of America in Chicago.

Twenty-five per cent. of the business men receiving queries have replied, representing eleven States; Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maryland, Massachusetts. Of this number 77 per cent. favors repeal. The remaining 23 per cent. was divided almost equally between opponents of repeal and replies that were non-committal or ambiguous.

Nearly every Illinois business man favored repeal. The only two exceptions declined to express an opinion. Massachusetts was unanimous for repeal, although a coastwise shipping State, and Maryland was the same. Every one of the eleven States showed a substantial majority for repeal.

The greatest surprise was California, supposedly favoring free tolls. In that State 64 per cent. favored repeal and half of the remainder wrote evasive letters.

"The California poll, as received thus far, indicates the individual business man will vote according to judgment rather than commercial affiliations," said Philetus W. Gates, President of the league.

HUERTA READY TO FLEE MEXICO, VERA CRUZ HEARS

Rumor Reaches American Lines That Dictator Is on Point of Departure.

BEARS OUT LIND'S VIEWS

President's Special Envoy Reported That Usurper Would Take Flight Finally.

Wheel of Fortune Has Turned Swiftly Against Him in the Last Few Days.

HOPES TO REACH JAPAN

Said to Have Sent $3,000,000 to Paris, Where He Ultimately Could Join Former Friends.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
From a Staff Correspondent.

VERA CRUZ, April 29.—It is reported here to-day on good authority that Gen. Huerta is preparing for flight. Capt. Huse refuses to say whether or not the American authorities have any information tending to confirm or deny this report.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—While reports have been current for several months that Huerta was preparing to flee from Mexico, such reports have been received here recently on the basis of information regarded as reliable. The advices along this line indicate that the Mexican dictator actually is at the end of his string and feels that it is useless for him to attempt to remain in power any longer.

All that is now coming to Washington concerning Huerta's reported decision to leave the scene of triumphs and tribulations, is in accord with what John Lind, former personal representative of President Wilson in Mexico, has been telling Government officials since his recent return to this country. Mr. Lind reported that Huerta was on his last legs, that he needed funds badly, that he was surrounded by enemies, and that when the opportunity came, and Mr. Lind was certain it would come soon, he would be overthrown.

The newest information disagrees with that furnished by Mr. Lind in so far as it affects Huerta's personal pecuniary fortunes. It is asserted that he has been surreptitiously sending money to Paris, following the other Latin-American political celebrities, and that he has already accumulated several millions there—$3,000,000 is the sum most frequently named—a tidy nest-egg for the rainy day that the clouds overhanging his Administration have threatened for a long time.

According to those who profess to know Huerta has arranged to make his way to the Pacific Coast port, probably to Acapulco, which is connected with Mexico City by the National Railroad, and there take passage on a steamship for Japan, where he believes he would receive a royal welcome. He would encounter dangers en route, but the way would not be beset with such perils as might seem apparent, for he easily could prevent telegraphic information of his flight from preceding him.

Huerta's enemies in Mexico City have become so bold recently that their plottings are conducted almost in the open and he is obliged to adopt drastic measures for his protection. Many arrests have been made, but sympathy for the Constitutionalist cause has been cropping out in the capital.

When the news was received in Mexico City that the American bluejackets and marines had landed in Vera Cruz, the first outburst of indignation and patriotic fervor worked to Huerta's advantage.

There was a further increase in his popularity, according to official advices received here, when he took measures of reprisal against Americans on account of the false report that Mexican non-combatants were being detained in Vera Cruz by the Americans.

Everything goes to show that Huerta honestly believed this report. When he was convinced it was false he gave orders that all Americans then under arrest should be released. But many of the people of the Federal district conceived the idea that Huerta himself had started the rumor that Mexicans were being detained or thrown into prison by the American invaders, and feeling turned against him.

It is now asserted that Huerta's acceptance of the proffer made by the South American nations was virtually an admission that he was getting ready to leave his country, because he foresaw that peace negotiations could only be conducted on the basis of his political elimination. This view is offset to some degree, however, by the intelligence that he has been seeking to make terms with his old enemy, Zapata. It has even been reported that these negotiations have gone so far that he has permitted a considerable portion of Zapata's rangers to enter Mexico City under arms.

The United States Government would be content if Huerta should flee from Mexico. Any assistance that he might require and which it would be within the ability of the Wilson Administration to provide probably would be given cheerfully. It is quite possible that this Government would furnish a vessel to carry him away from the shores of his native land.

FALSE NEWS FROM VERA CRUZ

Tale of American Prisoner a Fake—Troops That Didn't Land.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
From a Staff Correspondent of THE TIMES.

VERA CRUZ, April 29.—Capt. H. McL. P. Huse, Admiral Fletcher's Chief of Staff, said to-day to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent:

"The story that Americans were found imprisoned in San Juan de Ulloa is unqualifiedly false. In one dungeon, which was equal in horror to the Black Hole of Calcutta, we found 100 poor devils, all Mexicans. There was no Rochester murderer in the fortress. The whole story is a fake."

The statement by Capt. Huse was made in answer to inquiries regarding a story printed here yesterday morning that among the demented prisoners found in San Juan de Ulloa when the Americans took possession of the fortress was Leslie E. Hulbert, formerly of Rochester, N. Y., who, with William Mitchell, his brother-in-law, and Dr. C. St Harle of El Paso, was sentenced to death in 1905 on charges of murdering two men for the purpose of recovering $25,000 insurance from the New York Life Insurance Company.

Two other morning newspapers yesterday printed circumstantial accounts of the "landing of Gen. Funston's Army," which is not to land until to-day.

HUERTA WAR PREPARATIONS

Said to Have Ordered 200 Cannon Made—Defenses for Puebla.

MEXICO CITY, April 29.—Dispatches, said to have been received from Puebla, about sixty miles southeast of the Federal capital, state that the authorities there are actively engaged in preparing fortification works. It is added that the Governor General of the State with his staff visited various points of the city yesterday to plan a scheme of defense.

The railroad foundry in the vicinity is said to have been ordered to deliver 200 cannon to the Government within a month, making a delivery of fifty guns weekly. Orders are said to have been given for the first batch of cannon to be tested soon.

It is also stated that a satisfactory cartridge factory has been established at Barrio de la Luz, near Puebla.

MAY ADVISE J. P. MORGAN.

Keeper of Mediaeval Antiquities of British Museum on Way Here.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 29.—Among those who sailed for New York on the White Star liner Olympic to-day is Sir Charles Hercules Read, Keeper of British and Mediaeval Antiquities of the British Museum, a friend of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, who is going to America for a month, mainly on a pleasure trip. It is understood that Sir Charles will see J. P. Morgan and also the Morgan collection in its entirety for the first time. It is probable that his expert advice will be sought by the present owner regarding the sale of a portion of the Morgan collection.

Sir Charles is looking forward to seeing other famous collections in the United States.

Others who sailed on the Olympic were Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Converse, Mr. and Mrs. George Drexel, W. Winthrop Aldrich, Mr. and Mrs. W. Scott Cameron, Miss Cameron, Lady Johnstone, Mrs. H. K. McHarg, and Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Paterson.

WOMEN RAID PRINCE'S ROOM

Suffragettes Gain Admission to Wales's Quarters at Oxford.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 29.—Two suffragettes raided the Prince of Wales's rooms at Oxford on Monday, the first day of the new term. Much to their disappointment, his Royal Highness was not in residence, having gone on a cruise on the battleship Collingwood with his brother.

The suffragettes went to the Prince's rooms disguised as a couple of Sisters of Charity. Directly a servant opened the door they made a rush and gained admission to the sitting room before they could be stopped. When they found the Prince absent they threw a quantity of pamphlets and books about the room, but did no damage.

They departed quietly, but with a warning to the servant that the Prince might expect a visit from them directly he returned to Oxford.

MITCHEL FOR GOVERNOR.

Wilson Democrats Suggesting the Mayor's Name Up-State.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 29.—Wilson Democrats in the up-State counties who believe that the friends of the Washington Administration should take the initiative in proposing candidates for Governor, United States Senator, and other offices are busy finding out whether Mayor John Purroy Mitchel of New York would be a popular candidate for Governor. Mayor Mitchel it is understood from his friends here, would be willing under certain circumstances to make a contest at the primaries in September.

The fact that he has lately accepted an invitation to deliver an address at the Chautauqua assembly in Chautauqua County in July is taken as an indication that he is eager to extend his political activities beyond New York City.

Friends of the national administration are busy arranging for a pre-primary conference to assert their leadership over Charles F. Murphy and his agents.

Wilson Democrats in Albany are confident that Mitchel can defeat Gov. Glynn at the primaries, but the Glynn men laugh at the idea, declaring that the Tammany organization will control a majority of the enrolled Democrats.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
From a Staff Correspondent.

VERA CRUZ, April 29.—Formal transfer of authority in Vera Cruz from the United States Navy to the United States Army is set for 2 o'clock to-morrow afternoon. The exercises will be simple, but impressive, with Rear Admiral Fletcher and Gen. Funston present with their staffs and the bluejackets and those marines who are to return to the ships lined up as the guard. After a heavy rain this morning the weather promises to be fine for the ceremony.

As the bluejackets march away to the boats to return to their ships the troops will land and march to the positions in the city which have been assigned to them.

Regret is expressed by the natives that the bluejackets are to withdraw. Women and little girls to-day brought flowers to the battalion commander of the fleet. The detachment from the flagship Arkansas will march back to the ship landing, led by the Vera Cruz Orphan Asylum Band.

All day long the soldiers waited impatiently for the word to begin active service ashore. When not busy helping to unload the mules, wagons, auto trucks, commissary stores, and other army equipment and supplies they walked about the decks and piers fretting at the delay.

The Quartermaster's Department was busy all the afternoon establishing depots in the city.

At the same time the naval field pieces and machine guns were being sent back to the ships.

Funston Will Have 9,000 Men.

The force that came with Gen. Funston on the four transports from Galveston was increased to-day with the arrival of cavalry and field artillery on the steamer Satilla, convoyed from Galveston by four torpedo boats—the Cassin, Cummings, Henley, and Warrington.

Another arrival was the steamer Morro Castle, which brought the Third Regiment of Marines, about a thousand men, from Philadelphia.

With the addition of these men Gen. Funston will have a total fighting force of about 9,000 soldiers and marines.

The military commander was busy all day conferring with Admiral Fletcher, inspecting the outposts, and familiarizing himself generally with the details of the military and civil government.

A detachment of Federal mounted scouts came in view of the marines under Col. Lejune this morning, about ten miles out of the city. The Americans gave chase, and there was short and spirited firing. There were no casualties among the Americans, and, so far as is known, none on the Mexican side.

Robert T. Kerr of Chicago, who was appointed Civil Governor by Admiral Fletcher yesterday, assumed office today. In naming Kerr, Admiral Fletcher vested him with all the functions of government, legislative, executive, and judicial, subject only to the commanding officer of the American forces ashore.

It is Mr. Kerr's plan to keep the civil government in the hands of Mexicans as much as possible, this being the policy adopted in the Philippines. He announces that the old system of

Carranza's Acceptance of Good Offices; Reserves Right to Discuss Details

CHIHUAHUA, April 29.—Gen. Carranza, as First Chief of the revolution, to-day accepted in principle the tender of the good offices of Argentina, Brazil and Chile for the settlement of the Mexican problem.

The text of the note from the diplomatic representatives at Washington to Gen. Carranza, dated yesterday, follows:

> We, the diplomatic representatives of Brazil, Argentina and Chile, empowered by our respective Governments to extend an offer of our good offices to all parties at interest in the problem of the pacification of Mexico and the adjustment of the differences between Mexico and the United States, herewith invite your attention to the facts in your capacity as Supreme Chief of the revolution, and we feel assured that you will accept the proposition in principle. Recognizing the sentiments of high patriotism which animate you, we take the liberty of transmitting this communication to you direct after having failed after several attempts to have our message communicated to you by your agents here.

Gen. Carranza's reply went forward to-day as follows:

> I thank you sincerely for the offer which you have so kindly made me in behalf of your respective Governments in an attempt to solve in a peaceful and friendly way the differences between Mexico and the United States. Therefore, by authority of my position as First Chief of the revolution, I accept in principle the good offices of Brazil, Argentina and Chile, through their distinguished representatives.
>
> Reserving to myself the right to enter into details of the negotiations, it affords the greatest satisfaction to assure you of my most distinguished consideration.

AVIATORS PICK OUT FEDERAL POSITIONS

Fly Twenty Miles Inland and Report Seeing a Number of Encampments.

MAASS CONTROLS BRIDGES

Moves His Main Force to Mountain Pass on Railway—Strong Positions Held by Other Commanders.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
From a Staff Correspondent.

VERA CRUZ, April 29.—Navy aviators were out reconnoitring again to-day, flying twenty miles inland. They reported seeing a number of Mexican Federal encampments.

From other sources information was received that 2,000 Federals were encamped at Pico de Orizaba, the great extinct volcano about 100 miles west of Vera Cruz. Just west of Jalapa, an important town on the Interoceanic Railroad, it is reported that there are 2,000 Federals under Gen. Lauro Villar, and near by, the American commanders are informed, are 2,000 more Mexicans under Gen. Navarette. These forces include cavalry, artillery, and infantry, and their positions at the foot of the mountains are said to be very strong.

The man who is expected to take charge of all the Federal forces in the State of Vera Cruz is Gen. Villar, who was formerly head of the National Military School in Mexico City.

Gen. Maass is reported to have fallen back to Paso del Macho, a strategic position fifty miles from Vera Cruz on the Mexican Railway. He has taken there the best part of his forces and guards the narrow pass through the mountains. He controls three of the largest bridges on the line to Mexico City, which lie just behind him. Maass has left Gen. Becerril in command at Soledad.

Since the capture of this city many interesting documents have been found referring to the army and navy of the United States.

Paso del Macho (Mule Pass) is at an elevation 1,500 feet above Vera Cruz, and marks the beginning of the rapid ascent of the mountains on the way into the interior. It is on the dividing line between the foothills and the mountains, and at the beginning of the long stretch of bridges and tunnels.

A few miles beyond this point is the San Alejo Bridge, 318 feet long, and then the Chiquihuiti Bridge, 220 feet long. The Atoyac River, spanned by the Atoyac Bridge, must then be crossed. Beyond this point the railroad takes sharp grades, rising from 1,500 feet to 2,710 feet at Cordova in twenty miles.

Paso del Macho thus furnishes a valuable key to the interior. A defending force would not only have the advantage of a narrow defile in which to check an enemy, but in retreat could destroy large bridges, which would require much time to repair.

BRITISH SUBJECT KILLED?

Report from Saltillo Tells Also of German Loss.

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, April 29.—Local representatives of a Saltillo company received a telegram from Saltillo to-day which told of the looting and burning of the Seiber hardware store, one of the largest in Mexico; the Purcell Bank, owned by British capital, and the Mazapil Copper Company smelter, also a British concern. The telegram said that the cashier of the Purcell Bank, a British subject, had been reported killed, together with three others.

It is supposed that the Federals committed the alleged acts in anticipation of an attack by the rebels from Torreon. The British Consuls here and at Torreon are making an investigation of the report, but as the telegraph wires to Saltillo are cut it could not be confirmed to-night.

If the report is verified it may lead to grave international complications, as the Sieber hardware store is a German-owned company and the two other companies are British.

HEARS MANZANILLO HAS BEEN FIRED ON

DOUBTED IN WASHINGTON

Story of Landing on the West Coast Also Believed to be Untrue—Howard Asked to Report.

MEXICO CITY, April 29.—The Port of Manzanillo, on the Pacific Coast, was bombarded yesterday by an American warship, according to a telegram received here to-day by Gen. Aurelíano Blanquet, Mexican Minister of War, from Gen. José Mier.

According to Gen. Mier's message, the warship entered Manzanillo harbor at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The telegraphers, the report says, left their posts at 4:30 o'clock, carrying their instruments with them, and at 5 o'clock, according to the same report, the bombardment began.

The telegram says the wharves and adjoining buildings were destroyed by shell fire.

A dispatch from Oaxaca says American Marines landed at Salina Cruz today after the American commander had threatened to open fire on the port in case the Mexican officials offered resistance.

The Mexican Foreign Office to-day received a dispatch saying that an American warship had arrived in the harbor of San Blas, in the territory of Tepic, on Tuesday and taken aboard a number of refugees from the State of Sinaloa.

Another dispatch from Acapulco says that the commander of the American cruiser South Dakota asked permission to land there, but that this was refused by the Mexican authorities.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The Navy Department has no information in regard to the reported bombardment of Manzanillo by an American warship. There has been no warship there, but to-day the Navy Department received word that the cruiser Raleigh had left San Blas for Manzanillo on April 27. She has had time to reach that port.

A telegram of inquiry was sent to-night to Rear Admiral Howard, commanding the naval force on the west coast. Admiral Howard is at Mazatlan in the California.

It was said at the Navy Department to-night that no American warship would have attacked Manzanillo unless it had been fired on or such action was required to prevent Americans from being killed.

Secretary Daniels was roused from bed by a telephone call from an officer on duty at the Navy Department, and told of the Manzanillo bombardment story. Mr. Daniels said he believed there was not a word of truth in it, but he authorized sending a message of inquiry to Admiral Howard.

There was also a report to-night that American bluejackets had been landed at Salina Cruz, the Pacific coast terminus of the Tehuantepec Railroad. The cruiser Denver is there. Reports that Americans were in danger at Salina Cruz have reached the Navy Department, but to-day the cruiser Denver reported very few Americans now in this vicinity. "There has been no disturbance." The Navy Department announced on the basis of the same advice that the Denver had not landed any men at Salina Cruz. The British cruiser Shearwater was reported there.

The Japanese armored cruiser Idzuma is at Manzanillo where the bombardment by an American warship is reported to have taken place.

DANGER IN ACAPULCO.

Many Refugees Found by the Battleship South Dakota.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

ON BOARD BATTLESHIP SOUTH DAKOTA, via San Francisco, April 29.—Refugees were fleeing the country in terror when the South Dakota arrived at Acapulco. A strong force of Federals is here and serious trouble is feared. Orders to take the South Dakota to Salina Cruz, the southern terminus of the Tehuantepec Railroad, are expected.

"First Chief" of Revolution Is Willing to Enter Conference.

MAKES NO CONDITIONS

EUROPE WON'T URGE WILSON

CONFERENCE OF MEXICANS

Representatives of Factions Expected to Meet if an Armistice Is Arranged.

MAY RECOGNIZE REBELS

Administration Said to be Ready to Do So if Peace Negotiations Fail.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Gen. Carranza, "First Chief" of the Constitutionalists, has accepted the principle of mediation in the proposed settlement of Mexico's troubles. He has also expressed a willingness to confer with the parties concerned. Announcement to this effect was made by Secretary Bryan to-night. As far as was shown on its face, said one of the mediators, the acceptance was unconditional.

The mediators have asked the Governments of France, Germany, and Great Britain urgently to request President Wilson to withdraw his insistence that Gen. Huerta shall be eliminated from the provisional Presidency of Mexico as a condition precedent to the conclusion of peace. The three European powers have refused the request.

These, with the addition of a proposal to all parties that an armistice be arranged, were the important developments to-day in the efforts of the Governments of Argentina, Brazil, and Chile, through their diplomatic representatives here, to bring about a cessation of hostilities between all warring factions in Mexico and the restoration of peace and order in the republic.

An armistice is already in effect to all practical intents and purposes, although no formal truce has been arranged. Under a sort of implied gentlemen's agreement, the Mexican Federal forces and the United States forces on Mexican soil will not engage in hostilities while the mediation proceedings are in progress. Although fighting continues between Federals and Constitutionalists at Tampico, to which news of Carranza's acceptance of the principles of mediation has not penetrated, this acceptance by both the Mexican factions has practically bound them to observe an armed truce.

All this means that Mexico is nearer peace than it has been in four years. Whether this state of affairs shall continue will depend on the outcome of the mediation undertaken by Argentina, Brazil, and Chile.

Joy Over Carranza's Acceptance.

Gen. Carranza's acceptance in principle of the proposal looking to mediation that was made to him by the negotiators has brought joy to the hearts of American officials. The invitation to join in the effort to effect a settlement was sent directly to Carranza by the Brazilian Ambassador and the Ministers of Argentina and Chile who are representing their Governments in the exchanges. His response came early this evening, and was communicated to Secretary Bryan by the mediators, who requested that it be made known to the press.

Secretary Bryan's announcement was in the shape of an oral statement that "Gen. Carranza has replied to the A. B. C. diplomats that he accepts the principle of mediation and expresses willingness to confer on the subject."

The acceptance of Carranza practically completes the chain of acquiescence necessary to an agreement of all parties to observe an armistice pending the outcome of further endeavors on the part of the mediators. Little doubt exists here that Zapata, the leader of the faction which has been operating in the neighborhood of Mexico City, to the great perturbation of Gen. Huerta, will agree to be governed by Huerta's acceptance of the tender of good offices made by the South American nations. Huerta announced yesterday that he and Zapata were now on terms of friendship.

This statement is not doubted here, as evidence of it has been afforded by the presence of a portion of Zapata's troops in Mexico City, where they were acclaimed by the people. Huerta and Zapata have evidently found ground for an alliance in common enmity to the United States on account of the landing at Vera Cruz, and it is taken for granted in Washington that Zapata will follow Huerta's lead in accepting the principle of mediation.

All those in Washington who are concerned in the efforts to restore normal conditions in Mexico assume that the formal armistice which has been proposed will be arranged as a matter of course after the acceptance by the United States Government, the de facto Government of Mexico and the Constitutional authority of Mexico of the tender of good offices made by Argentina, Brazil and Chile.

The next step after that will be the proposal, which the mediators are forming, that the various Mexican factions shall appoint representatives to meet in Mexico City for the purpose of discussing terms of settlement. To what extent, if any, the United States will be involved in negotiations of this character is not clear, but it is probable that the agreement with reference to an armistice will provide that this Government shall make no further military or naval movement while the peace exchanges are taking place.

No Advance From Vera Cruz.

The military status quo will be preserved by all parties while the mediators are endeavoring to bring about an agreemnt between the Mexican factions. As far as the United States is concerned, this means that no advance will be made from Vera Cruz, and no American armed forces will be landed at any other place in Mexico, provided, of course, that the de facto Government of Mexico does not molest Americans and observes the truce in letter and spirit. The Hague rules, which will govern the mediation proceedings, provide that the period of the initial armistice shall be thirty days, but that it may be extended by the consent of all parties. While the armistice is on this Government will not be restrained from making military preparations, even to the extent of landing troops at Vera Cruz. But these troops must not advance beyond their present position or make any hostile demonstration.

By the same token the Mexican forces, which are concentrating at Soledad, about twenty-six miles from Vera Cruz, must not engage in any threatening movement against the American forces. This status must apply elsewhere in Mexico. A tentative armistice is already in effect between the American and Mexican forces. No formal communications have been exchanged, but Gen. Maass, commander of the Mexican forces at Soledad, has written assurances to William W. Canada, the American Consul at Vera Cruz, that he has orders to make no movement against the foreign invader, while Gen. Zaragoza, commander of the Mexican troops at Tampico, has informed Rear Admiral Henry T. Mayo, commanding the United States squadron, near that place, that in the event of an American attack he will either withdraw his forces from Tampica or surrender to prevent the bombardment of the town.

Although it has been denied that this Government would insist upon the elimination of Gen. Huerta as a basic principle of any adjustment of the Mexican problem, the efforts of the negotiators to bring outside pressure to bear upon President Wilson for the purpose of having him abandon his insistence in that direction show that they were aware of the President's attitude in this respect. It has been gathered that no formal stipulation of this character has been made by the President or the Secretary of State, although they had let it be known to those concerned in the matter of bringing about peace that they would not consent to any agreement for the restoration of normal conditions in Mexico unless the elimination of Huerta was arranged.

None of the parties involved in the settlement—that is, neither the United States, the Mexican City Government, nor the Constitutionalists—has advanced any formal stipulations to serve as a basis for future procedure. Gen. Huerta has indicated to Sir Lionel Carden that he will make reservations, but these have not been communicated to the negotiators.

Recognition for Constitutionalists?

It is the understanding in Washington that if the negotiations should fail and the hostilities between the authority of Gen. Huerta, as President Wilson has designated it, and the Constitutionalists should be resumed, this Government will accord recognition to the Constitutionalist cause. This understanding fits in with the present trend of the American undertaking at Vera Cruz, and the relations that are being maintained unofficially between the United States and the Constitutionalists. Reports from Consuls in Mexico highly praising the manner in which the Constitutionalists are conducting affairs at certain places have been made public at the White House apparently with the idea of preparing the groundwork for recognition of a Constitutionalist Government de facto.

The earnestness of President Wilson, in his endeavor to end Mexico's troubles, has impressed all those who have a knowledge of his views. Back of his policy is said to lie the intention to propose a plan that will insure lasting peace. It is said in quarters where knowledge is claimed of what the President has in mind, that he may bring forward the suggestion that a joint international police shall be organized for the purpose of maintaining order throughout the republic.

Details in regard to this proposal are lacking, but the guarded talk on the subject is in the direction of an arrangement that would contemplate the organization of a force somewhat resembling the Philippine Constabulary. This force, it is supposed, would embrace both Americans and Mexicans, and it is suggested that it would afford an opportunity for the display of the abilities of Gen. Francisco Villa. However, the mention of Villa's name in this connection must be regarded as pure speculation.

Bryan Expects an Armistice.

Secretary Bryan said to-day, in answer to a question, that the matter of a cessation of hostilities in Mexico had been discussed, although no determination had been reached. He assumed, however, he said, that there would be no hostilities while the negotiations were in progress. The assumption was, he said, that it would be understood that a cessation would apply to all who accepted mediation. At that time Carranza's acceptance had not been received by the "A. B. C." diplomats. In answer to a question as to whether this would involve a halt in the American preparations for hostilities in Mexico he responded:

"It means maintaining the military status quo."

Mr. Bryan practically admitted that he understood that the proposal of an armistice had been submitted to the United States Government as well as to Gen. Huerta. He indicated that the reason that this proposition had not yet been made to the Constitutionalists was that they had not at that time replied to the original tender of good offices. He left it to be understood, however, that the proposal for an armistice would be made to the Constitutionalists as soon as their formal acceptance of the original proffer had been received.

As a result of the critical situation that has arisen from the continued fighting between the Federals and Constitutionalists at Tampico, a proposal has been made to both sides for the neutralization of the oil fields south and west of that city. It is pointed out that the big wells there are in imminent danger of a conflagration that would result in a fearful destruction of property and possibly great loss of life.

The suggestion that a neutral zone be established came from the British Government, which made that suggestion to Huerta. The United States has made a similar proposition to the Constitutionalists. Secretary Bryan has had no reply, but he feels that both parties ought to accept without delay, because, as he says, the preservation of the oil fields will be to the great advantage of both and will entail no sacrifices on their part.

JAPAN REFUSED TO ACT.

Huerta Vainly Sought to Put Consulates in Her Charge.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The Japanese Government, it has developed, was asked and declined to act for the Huerta Administration through its diplomatic representatives in Washington and its consuls in the United States, prior to Mexico's application to Spain to perform this mission, which was granted.

While the Japanese Embassy declines to confirm the report, it is known to be well founded, and to have given great satisfaction to President Wilson's Administration as a significant expression of Japan's good will and friendliness toward this country.

The purpose of Japan's action is understood to have been a desire to preserve the strictest neutrality between the United States and Mexico, as outlined in the recent declaration of Count Okuma, the new Japanese Premier. The undertaking on the part of Japan to act in the interest of either party was felt to be open to the construction of being an expression of favoritism, which it was desired to avoid by an attitude of strict neutrality.

Among those informed of Gen. Huerta's first choice of Japan to represent Mexico in the United States, the move was construed as an attempt on his part to align one of the great world Powers with his Administration, and thus to accomplish a master stroke in diplomacy.

It is known that Administration officials here are highly pleased at the attitude of the Japanese Government, in view of all the circumstances, in giving diplomatic expression to its friendliness for the United States in allowing some other Government to take care of Mexican interests, and in carrying that idea out by declining to serve at Huerta's request.

ARMY TO TAKE OVER VERA CRUZ TO-DAY

taxation will be retained for the present.

American importers are reported to be seeking tariff rebates on American goods. Foreign commercial interests would protest violently against any discrimination in favor of Americans.

Remove Prisoners from Fort.

As the search by American officers and marines in the dungeons of the old prison-fortress of San Juan de Ulloa has proceeded under the direction of Commander Stickney of the Prairie as Captain of the Port, more horrors have been revealed.

This ancient and impressive structure, built in the old Spanish style and looming up as the most conspicuous object at the entrance to the harbor, with its high clock tower facing the sea, was painted snow white—and it has proved literally a whited sepulchre.

To-day as a result of the terrible conditions existing in the fortress and the manifest danger to even well men in remaining there, Rear Admiral Fletcher gave orders that all the prisoners against whom no charges were pending to warrant their imprisonment should be released.

These were found to number over 300, and a large number of the men were wandering about the streets of Vera Cruz to-day in pitiable condition, with unkempt beards, lacking money and friends and acting as if they were lost.

Admiral Fletcher also ordered that the 100 remaining prisoners be transferred to other places.

Seven Years the Life Limit.

When the American authorities began to bring the prisoners out of their cells for formal inquiry as to the reason for their imprisonment, some were found to be half insane because of their long incarceration. Others were reduced to mere skeletons, as a result of the vile sanitary conditions and the inadequate food which was served to them.

According to Mexicans who are familiar with the place, seven years was about the limit of life for anyone who was imprisoned in the fortress.

In going through the prison, the marines found at one place a tablet inscribed thus:

"To the memory of the American soldiers who died at San Juan de Ulloa Island, 1847."

No traces were found of any graves of Americans on the island, which was one of the first landing places of the American troops under Gen. Scott sixty-seven years ago.

Some of the cannon in the fortress were found to have been half eaten away by rust. Several of these, it is estimated, were more than 200 years old.

According to the United States officials, it will take many days to clean up and fumigate the place so that it will be fit for occupancy.

Cordoba Refugees' Narrow Escape.

Refugees who arrived late yesterday afternoon from Cordoba and other points along the railroad to Mexico City tell thrilling stories of their escape from Mexican mobs.

There were 113 in the party, eleven of these being babes in arms. For the most part the refugees were clothed almost in rags. The children were half naked and very hungry, while all were covered with dirt and showed evidences of the trials through which they had passed.

Practically all of these refugees had been living in comparative prosperity; now they have lost practically everything they had. Some had only a blanket and a tin drinking cup apiece when they arrived here. One man was rich in the possession of an extra shirt, while an aged woman from Texas brought out a pair of rubbers.

Almost all the passengers came from Cordoba, where at one time 101 Americans were confined in the jail. As long ago as last Thursday they were being compelled to pay the soldiers who stood on guard to bring them water and bits of food. They had given up all hope for their lives when all of them were suddenly released yesterday and put on a train for Vera Cruz. This action by the Mexican authorities was probably due to the urgent representations made by Senator Guillermo Obregon, who left here on a mission from Rear Admiral Fletcher to obtain their release.

After leaving Cordoba the refugees were halted at Soledad. The Mexican Colonel said to them: "You can go no further. If you want to, you can go back to Mexico City, but if you do, you must pay full fare."

The passengers pleaded vainly to be allowed to continue their journey. While they were pressing their case, a train, flying the British flag and bearing Commander Tweedie of the British cruiser Essex, with two English sailors, drew into the station.

On seeing the unkempt crowd of refugees, some of whom were English, Commander Tweedie insisted that they be permitted to go aboard his train, stating that he would not leave until they were. Finally the Mexican officer yielded and the refugees proceeded on their way.

They are now being cared for by Consul Canada, who will provide them with means of transportation to their homes.

A train from Mexico City arrived this afternoon, bringing thirty Americans, also some Germans and Englishmen.

The transport Hancock left at 6 o'clock for Puerto Mexico to take on board the refugees coming from the capital on three trains.

The heartiest appreciation is shown here by all Americans, and especially by the authorities of the effective cooperation of Sir Lionel Carden, the British Minister, and Sir Christopher Cradock, the British Admiral, in the efforts to get American refugees out of the country.

Rumor of Railroad Men Shot.

It is rumored here that Mr. Burke, the Traffic Superintendent of the Mexican Railway, and Mr. Newton, a locomotive engineer, were shot by Federals at Soledad. They have disappeared, and it is reported that the soldiers at Soledad tell about their being killed. It is stated that when Burke was arrested, Newton spoke up, saying that he would be the first engineer to run his engine into Mexico City with American troops.

Quiet and perfect order continues in Vera Cruz. The people are going about their business as if nothing had ever happened. The experiment of abolishing the requirement that all persons must be in their houses by 7:30 P. M. proved a great success last night.

Justice is being administered here as never before. Wife beaters are being arrested for the first time in the history of the city, the penalty for hitting a wife being ten days in jail.

The local theatre reopened to-night, and there is talk of resuming the bullfights, but this seems doubtful, as it is said that the gambling, licensed by Huerta, would not be allowed.

Every little Mexican boy in Vera Cruz can now say "Shine" and "Carry your bundle?"

The health of the troops continues excellent. There have been two light cases of heat exhaustion but no smallpox.

The first American military hospital will be established here to-morrow in charge of Surgeon Major A. W. Williams.

The ice plant was started in Vera Cruz to-day for the first time since the landing of the American forces.

Relief as Refugees Near Coast.

By The Associated Press.

VERA CRUZ, April 29.—Anxiety in Vera Cruz as to friends and relatives in the interior has been greatly relieved by the report brought here by Commander Tweedie of the British cruiser Essex that Huerta would allow three trainloads of refugees to leave Mexico City last night.

It is estimated that these trains will carry 800 persons, practically all Americans. The route from the capital to Puerto Mexico is long and roundabout, and it is not expected that the trains will reach the coast before Friday.

It is impossible to determine how many Americans this would leave in the capital, but Consul Canada is endeavoring to obtain information from the Brazilian Minister at Mexico City.

The release by Gen. Maass, the Federal commander outside of Vera Cruz, of the hundred refugees who were brought in from Soledad yesterday, clears the territory between Vera Cruz and Mexico City, on direct lines of communication, of all Americans with the exception of a few scattered families whose whereabouts are not known. Some may have made their way to the capital; others to coast ports, and some are supposed to be in hiding with friendly Mexican ranchers.

The refugees are enthusiastic in praise of Commander Tweedie, whose insistence that they should be put on his train, they believe, saved them from death, or at least prolonged suffering.

Sixty-three members of the Medina colony in the State of Oaxaca were among the refugees who arrived here. They were held two days in Cordoba, and reported that they were well treated except for the fact that they were obliged to sleep on the floors of the barracks.

J. W. Elliott, a locomotive engineer, was in Tierra Blanca when news of the occupation of Vera Cruz reached him. With his wife and children, he started for Cordoba under guard of Mexican soldiers. Arriving there, the guards said they were hungry and demanded 50 pesos on the threat to turn the Elliott family over to a howling mob, which surrounded the station and filled the streets. The money was paid and Elliott and his family were marched through the streets for more than a mile, hounded all the way to the barracks by the mob. For six days they were kept in the barracks. On two occasions some of the mob forced their way into the barracks, and but for the efforts of the Colonel and two other officers Elliott and his family would have been killed.

On the night when the situation was especially serious the Mayor made an address to the citizens, urging them to be calm. The most effective work, however, was done by the commandant, who seized several hundred of the most ardent rioters, pressed them into the army, and sent them away to the capital to fill the ranks of Huerta's forces. There was no further open display of hostility by the townspeople. The refugees say that only the lower element was involved in the rioting.

F. W. Lehmer, a ranch manager from Tuxtepec, whose home is in Omaha and was on his way to Vera Cruz for a visit, was picked up at Tierra Blanca by Federal soldiers.

"I was placed with ten others in a train which was left standing overnight, surrounded by a mob which continually threatened to attack us," he said. "The guards ate up everything available on the train, compelling us to go hungry. At every station up to Cordoba, on the following day, similar crowds looted the train and threatened us. While being taken through the streets of Cordoba a squad of young volunteers, who had just been presented with a flag, swept down upon us and tried to run us down.

"Once in the palace we were lodged upstairs in front of the Jefe Politico's office, but all night a mob continued to yell in the streets, and several times we thought they would break in and try to get us. The Colonel and his men stood by us, though, with guns ready for business."

Brig. Gen. Funston, in command of the Fifth Brigade, has asked Washington for a ruling on a point which has arisen in the administration of justice in Vera Cruz.

Out of the peculiar condition of a civil Government existing side by side with a military Government has come the question of how far the military authorities, who have established martial law, may proceed in courts-martial.

The recent proclamation of Rear Admiral Fletcher, commander of the naval forces, provided a Military Commission to try cases of murder in which Americans were involved, as well as cases of arson, seditious utterances, &c. The creation of a department of Justice under the civil Government has raised doubt as to how far the military commission may go, and Gen. Funston has referred the matter to Washington.

SAYRE UPHOLDS PRESIDENT.

Wilson's Son-in-Law Asks Support for Mexican Policy.

BOSTON, April 29.—Francis B. Sayre, son-in-law of President Wilson, addressing the younger Williams alumni association to-night in his capacity as assistant to President Garfield of the college, asked for support of the National Government's attitude toward Mexico.

"It will be impossible for the Administration to carry out its policy on the Mexican situation without the support of strong public opinion," he said.

"If our country finds it necessary to fight in Mexico," he added, "it will be merely an incident in our South American policy—a most constructive one—not to recognize a republic founded on bloodshed and murder."

SEES CHECK TO US IN PEACE PARLEYS

Anti-American Press in Argentina Says Yankees Are Foiled.

MEDIATORS ARE APPLAUDED

Even if They Fail a Moral Triumph Is Claimed—Agitators Are Still Active.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUENOS AIRES, April 29.—Manuel Ugarte has failed to obtain permission of the Chief of Police and the Minister of the Interior for an anti-American demonstration. He says he will continue his attempts to organize it until permission is given. The tone of the press is now more favorable to the United States. The hope is expressed that all Americans will support President Wilson in his acceptance of the principle of settling the Mexican question through mediation as the basis of real pan-Americanism.

The anti-American press says that the United States has lost its supremacy in Latin America and that the Yankees have been foiled in their campaign of rapine by the firmness of Argentina.

BUENOS AIRES, April 29.—Referring editorially to recent developments in the Mexican situation, the newspapers of Buenos Aires express satisfaction that President Huerta has accepted the proffer of mediation. The Nacion says:

"Even should mediation fail, the effort in that direction would remain as a moral triumph for South America and would mark a new era in South American politics. After many years of an indifferent diplomacy the Argentine has finally a new international policy."

The papers unite in disapproving the insistence of Manuel Ugarte, the anti-American agitator, to bring about a pro-Mexican manifestation in Buenos Aires, declaring his efforts to be inopportune.

RIO DE JANEIRO, April 29.—An ardent desire for peace and the union of the peoples of the two Americas was the sentiment which prompted Brazil, Argentina and Chile to offer their services in mediating between the United States and Mexico, according to Dr. Lauro Müller, the Brazilian Foreign Minister, who made the statement in the course of an interview to-day.

The idea of offering mediation was not that of Brazil alone, said Dr. Muller, but was a simultaneous inspiration in the three Republics, which immediately jumped at the opportunity of collaborating in the humane task of endeavoring to bring about a re-establishment of harmonious relations between the two Republics.

Dr. Müller said that Europe had fully recognized the important part being played by Argentina, Brazil and Chile and was watching with lively interest the efforts of the three South American Republics to prevent war between the United States and Mexico.

MONTEVIDEO, April 29.—The public of Montevideo generally shows complete indifference to the controversy between the United States and Mexico. The students of the University, however, display an anti-American spirit. Last Saturday they organized an anti-American procession which was attended by 3,000 undergraduates, although discountenanced by the Government. On the procession approaching the American Legation it was dispersed by the police, who used the flats of their sabres.

The Uruguayan newspapers are inclined to express sentiments in favor of Mexico; but the articles on the subject are moderate in tone. The declaration of President Wilson that the steps taken by the United States are directed against President Huerta and not against Mexico itself has prevented the display of strong feeling. In many cases Gen. Huerta is condemned and the mediation of Argentina, Brazil and Chile approved.

KEEP MILITARY MOVING.

Original Orders Being Carried Out—More Men for Funston.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Movements of ships and men, with a view to putting the American Government in position to meet any eventuality in the Mexican problem, continued to-day. No military orders were countermanded, orders originally issued were being carried out, and evidence of new orders to the army was developed.

Admiral Badger wired to Secretary Daniels to-day:

"The army is disembarking and getting equipment ashore. It is expected that the naval brigade will withdraw Thursday."

Admiral Badger's reference to the withdrawal of the naval brigade confirmed the message from Gen. Funston last night, saying the transfer of authority would take place on April 30. The four transports which took Gen. Funston's brigade to Vera Cruz carried a heavy load of military supplies, including all kinds of tents for use in the field, as well as wagons and mule teams. While this has been in process of unloading, Admiral Fletcher has been conferring with Gen. Funston and arranging for the transfer of command and control at Vera Cruz to the latter as the ranking military officer of the United States ashore.

Meanwhile previously issued orders for the dispatch of troops and marines for service in the army of occupation under Gen. Funston are being carried forward. Admiral Badger reported to-day the arrival of the Morro Castle at Vera Cruz with the Third Regiment of Marines. The destroyers Cassin, Cummings, Henley, and Warrington also arrived at Vera Cruz to-day with the chartered transport Satilla. The marines aboard the Morro Castle sailed from Philadelphia last Thursday. This regiment of marines will join the permanent force now ashore at Vera Cruz for service under Gen. Funston. Admiral Badger also reported to-day that the marine detachment from the cruiser Montana at Vera Cruz had reported for duty with the first marine brigade, which is the expeditionary force ashore for permanent service with the army at Vera Cruz.

The statement printed in THE TIMES several days ago to the effect that the Sixth Cavalry would be sent to Vera Cruz as part of the Funston force was confirmed by a bulletin issued by the War Department to-day. This bulletin took the form of a despatch received from Brig. Gen. Davis, commanding the forces at Texas City, telling of the departure of the transport San Marcos for Vera Cruz.

Gen. Davis said the forces aboard the San Marcos included nine officers and 128 men of the Fourth Field Artillery, and five officers and 156 men of Troops J and K of the Sixth Cavalry. The vessel also took 119 horses and 199 mules.

Col. Lucien G. Berry of the Fourth Field Artillery was senior in command on the San Marcos.

SAW SIX BODIES HANGING.

Refugees Reaching Tampico Said They Were Those of Whites.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VERA CRUZ, April 29.—Tampico reports heavy fighting between the rebels and the Federals.

C. R. Yoakum of Ontario, Canada, who arrived from Tampico on the steamer Montevideo yesterday says:

"When I left on Sunday Tampico was free from rioting. Most foreigners were on refugee ships, and all the stores, plants, and oil works were closed.

"I came sixty-five miles from the interior on a perilous journey to the coast. When I left seven Americans and an Englishman were on the way. I met a party of oil men also bound for the coast, who said that they saw the bodies of six white men hanging from trees. They did not know whether they were Americans or British. We escaped out of Tampico to the refugee ship in a launch."

VILLA JOINS HIS ARMY.

Prepares for His Campaign Against Saltillo.

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Texas, April 29.—Villa has gone to Torreon to assume command of his troops and prevent any of them from deserting before the Saltillo campaign can be started. He left Chihuahua this afternoon in a special train after a brief conference with Carranza. His departure is thought to have ended the Villa-Carranza dispute and a supplementary message was forwarded to Washington to-night setting forth Carranza's position. This message was not given out here and the utmost secrecy was maintained in relaying it to Washington.

In the message Carranza accepts the mediation plans of the "A. B. C. powers," and admits the right of the United States to carry out its policy of forceful opposition to the Huerta Government. The only provision contained in the message is said to be one referring to the invasion of constitutional territory. If this is not done there will be no active opposition to the American Government's policy.

Roberto V. Pesquiera for the Constitutionalists, and George C. Carothers for the American Government, issued statements to-day of a reassuring nature. They said that the United States need fear nothing from the Constitutionalist Government as it stood pledged to abide by the actions of the United States so long as no Constitutional territory was invaded.

SENT MESSAGE BY SHIP.

Consul at Frontera Reaches Washington in Roundabout Way.

NEW ORLEANS, April 29.—Developments here to-day led to the belief that Americans in Frontera, Mexico, at one time were in great danger. When the steamship Livingstone left that port a week ago Consul Leishman gave Capt. James Jacobson a code message to be delivered to Clarence Hebert, Collector of Customs here, with the request that it be sent to the State Department at Washington at once. It is believed that no direct means of communication was open to the Frontera Consul at the time of the ship's departure.

Women and Children Fleeing to Vera Cruz Walk Weary Miles Where Tracks Are Torn Up.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—All the Americans arrested at Cordoba and Guanajuato, by orders of the Mexican Government, have been released and have arrived at Vera Cruz. Americans now are permitted to pass freely out of the country. There is some uneasiness over the safety of Americans in Salina Cruz and its vicinity, although a reassuring message from that place was received here to-day. From present indications no American will be obliged to remain in Mexico.

In Mexico City conditions have improved. Federal troops are preserving order there. Refugees from the rural districts have been subjected to indignities, but none has been killed as far as reported.

In Vera Cruz, according to one of the dispatches, conditions are again normal. The dispatch said:

> Many carriages are driving in the streets. Street cars are running and places of recreation will be in operation to-night. About 75 Mexicans left Vera Cruz on Tuesday.

A dispatch received at the State Department early to-day contained information embodied in this bulletin:

"The State Department has been advised by the American Consul at Vera Cruz that the Brazilian Minister in Mexico City informed him on April 28 at 11 p. m. that the Mexican Minister for Foreign Affairs, in full agreement with the Minister of War, had cabled most complete orders for release of persons reported detained in Cordoba and Guanajuato. He adds that the Brazilian Minister also states that up to the present moment the Mexican Government has shown itself quite willing to comply with representations in the matter."

Consul Canada, at Vera Cruz, a little later sent advices, which were made public by the State Department, in this form:

"The arrival at Vera Cruz of the entire party of Americans, which had been detained at Cordoba, is reported to the State Department. Consul Canada states that they were placed immediately on board the Monterey. The efforts of Lieut. Tweedie of the British cruiser Essex were largely responsible for the success of the messenger dispatched by Consul Canada to arrange for the release of the party, and for the transport of foreign refugees from the capital.

"Six British trainmen volunteered to take out the refugees dispatched to Puerto Mexico, as no escort was provided by the authorities. They were to depart on three trains. Every effort was made by Consul Canada to provide for the needs of the Cordoba party."

"The British Admiral at Vera Cruz has made the following communication to Consul Canada at Vera Cruz:

> If you will permit me in consequence of difficulty you may perhaps have in communicating with the Brazilian Minister in Mexico, I propose pending contrary instructions to contrive to do all in my power, as heretofore, in the interests of the United States of America, observing at the same time strict neutrality. Should you desire to do so, will you most kindly inform Washington.
>
> CHRISTOPHER CRADOCK,
> Rear Admiral British Navy.

"According to advices from Admiral Badger, 109 refugees have arrived at Vera Cruz on a train sent out to meet them. Of these refugees 63 are from Lomo Bonito, 11 from Potrero, and 35 from Cordoba. These refugees were greatly assisted in obtaining passage through to Vera Cruz by Commander Tweedie of the British Navy, who accompanied them. In acknowledgment of this courtesy and of his kindness, Admiral Badger has forwarded an expression of gratitude on behalf of the United States Government to Commander Tweedie (previously referred to as Lieut. Tweedie in a State Department bulletin) through Rear Admiral Cradock. Women and children were included among these refugees, and all owing to the disabled condition of the railroad were obliged to walk several miles before reaching the train for Vera Cruz."

The 110 Americans who were detained at Aguascalientes are among those who have been released by the Mexican authorities, according to messages received by the State Department to-day.

Sufferings of the Fugitives.

In the telegram received to-day by the Navy Department Rear Admiral Badger said:

"It has been the refugees from the rural districts, where they were exposed to the indignation of an unrestrained populace, that have suffered most. The refugees just arriving were in a highly nervous state, owing to the mental and physical sufferings to which they were exposed in leaving the country, and give evidence of the haste and lack of preparation with which they were obliged to make the journey.

Reports were received last night that Americans were in great danger at Salina Cruz, the Pacific Ocean terminus of the Tehuantepec Railway. The cruiser Denver reported to Rear Admiral Badger from that place to-day as follows:

> Sixty refugees aboard dredge Mexico in outer basin waiting Pacific Mail steamer San Jose, which is due Friday. Very few Americans now in this vicinity. All are notified, and no others desire to leave. There have been no disturbances.

The Denver has not landed any men at Salina Cruz. The British cruiser Shearwater is there.

Bulletins issued by the Government to-night were as follows:

"Admiral Badger advises at Vera Cruz, 7 A. M., Wednesday, April 29, that nearly all American refugees are out of the Tampico district. Those who remain have lived in Mexico many years, and would not suffer maltreatment even in case of operations against the United States in that district. There has been no killing of Americans in the vicinity of Tampico, and little interference. Considerable anti-American feeling exists, and anti-American demonstrations have occurred, but no violence has been attempted. British, German, and French men-of-war have all assisted in getting American refugees from the city to the American vessels off the river mouth.

"Consul Canada reports the receipt of direct word from Tampico to the effect that approximately 2,200 Americans and foreigners have been taken out of that district, including oil camp employes. A few Americans are said to be staying with Mexican friends in Tampico, and they refused to leave.

"Everything is reported quiet in Mexico City and no Americans or foreigners are now being molested, according to Vera Cruz advices.

"Consul Canada, reporting to the State Department in reply to countless inquiries concerning the safety of Americans in Mexico City, reiterates that Americans are allowed to leave at will.

Some Americans Won't Leave.

"The Americans at Real Del Monte are all reported safe in either Vera Cruz or Mexico City. They were notified to leave, and the mines and mill closed on April 26.

"Some Americans at Santa Lucretia have refused to leave, among them Peter Summers, Arch Stonum, and a negro named Jackson. Alfred Main refused to leave El Oro, and some Americans have also refused to depart from Mexico City.

"Among persons leaving the Cordoba district who are said to be making their way to the sea are A. H. Gould, George S. Gould, Richard C. Gould, and Messrs. Aulthill, McKim, Carpenter, and Steel. These practically exhaust the list of Americans resident in that section.

"Passes to the steamer Monterey were issued on April 28 to the following British subjects: Charles Dunn, Henry Clouthier, T. W. Blaney with wife and three children, Albert E. Beart, Robert G. Jackson, Joseph H. Baker, Mrs. J. G. Watson, Calvin Percival Yocum, Mrs. D. J. Spillam and child, John Margetts and daughter and grandchild.

"Consul Hamm reports about 120 Americans in the Durango district on April 27, about half of whom were to leave immediately.

"Rear Admiral Badger reported to the Navy Department early to-day that the transport Hancock would leave Vera Cruz for Puerto, Mexico, to take on board the 600 American refugees reported on their way to that place from Mexico City.

"From Nogales it is reported that thirty-one Americans arrived from Sinaloa and Southern Sonora on the night of April 27. It is estimated that about seventy-five still remain in the Los Mochis colony and the Yaqui Valley. The refugees stated that in some instances the specific instructions of Gen. Obregon for good treatment of the travelers were disregarded by subordinates.

"At Laredo there are a number of Syrians whose condition is reported by Consul Garrett to be very pitiable.

"From Rosario, Sinaloa, it was reported on April 29 that everything was still quiet there, and that Americans were being notified to leave. The special agent of the State Department suggested that the relief ship be sent from Mazatlan to take off the refugees at Chametla."

A wireless message from the steamship Oregonian, off Key West, late last night said that she had these refugees aboard:

> Americans—W. B. Bryan and daughter, J. Collins, H. J. Lawton, D. F. Ford, Dr. W. D. Addis, F. Rutherford, J. F. Barriowe, wife, and five children; Robert Monteith, Charles Manley, W. K. Smith, H. F. Jones, A. M. C. Dyers, W. K. Anderson, W. M. Cartwright, Lee Hughes, M. F. Page. Norwegian—S. O. Quonne. English—R. T. Cranfield, wife, and two children. Swiss—C. R. Bircher, wife, and child.

"Will proceed to Delaware Breakwater unless receive other orders," was the message from the Oregonian's Captain.

Some American Refugees.

Consul Canada to-day sent to the Government the names of these American refugees who had reached Vera Cruz:

> J. E. Elliott, W. A. Mangan, H. Riley, G. A. Hart, J. W. Snuder, J. B. Buckner, C. C. Kirvin, R. C. Dennis, all of Tierra Blanca; J. W. Sargent from Guatemala and Tierra Blanca; D. P. THE WASHINGTON SAILS.

Armored Cruiser Will Join Rear Admiral Winslow's Squadron.

With her band playing "The Girl I Left Behind Me," the armored cruiser Washington left the Brooklyn Navy Yard yesterday bound for Vera Cruz, where she will join Rear Admiral Winslow's special service squadron. She sailed shorthanded, but will pick up men at Hampton Roads and Port Royal, S. C., and when she reaches Mexican waters will have her full complement of 940 officers and men. The Washington is commanded by Capt. Edward W. Eberle. She is a craft of 14,500 tons displacement, and was used as a receiving ship until she was placed in full commission a week ago for service in Mexico. Her place as receiving ship at the Brooklyn yard will be taken by her sister ship, the Tennessee, which, it is expected, will arrive in Brooklyn to-day.

REFUGEES' PROTEST AROUSES SENATORS

Americans from Tampico Assail State Department in Messages to Senator Fall.

AT MOB'S MERCY, THEY SAY

Arrivals at Galveston Bitter Because Mayo's Ships Left Tampico Harbor While They Were There.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Several American refugees from Tampico now at Galveston bitterly assailed the State and Navy Departments in telegrams read to the Senate this afternoon. According to these telegrams, the refugees in Tampico were left to the mercy of an infuriated Mexican mob by the American war craft lying in the river, and were only saved from destruction by the interposition of British and German marines. One of the refugees said that he and his friends never would have left Tampico if they had understood they were to be brought to the United States, because their property was left entirely unprotected, if not already destroyed.

The Navy Department last night gave an official explanation of the incident on the ground that the presence of the American squadron was enraging the populace and driving the rebels and Federals into alliance. The sight of American ships, said the statement, made the people think war was on, and when the British Captain volunteered to bring out the Americans his offer was accepted.

A sharp debate arose over the telegrams, and while it was in progress Mr. Lodge of Massachusetts, the ranking Republican of the Committee on Foreign Relations, telephoned to the Navy Department to make sure of the authenticity of last night's statement. He was told that the explanation was official and so informed the Senate.

"But I can't help feeling," he said, "that it would be a good thing for us to protect our own and not leave it for others to do."

"Perhaps," said Mr. McCumber of North Dakota, another Republican of the committee, "it is much better to be able to take out 2,500 live Americans in German and British boats than to tage out 2,50 corpses in our boats. I am satisfied to leave such matters as the withdrawing of ships from Tampico to Admiral Mayo."

Aims at State Department.

The bitterest discussion of the day arose over a telegram to Senator Fall of New Mexico from a refugee named J. D. Wood denouncing the policy of the State Department. The refugees had escaped, he said, through the courage and kindness of foreign officers, but their escape, he added, would probably be a sore disappointment to Mr. Bryan.

Chairman Stone of the Committee on Foreign Relations read a sharp lecture to Mr. Fall for publishing such a message in The Record. Senator Fall said he had overlooked the personal criticism of Mr. Bryan, and on his own request the telegram was stricken from The Record. The telegram from Mr. Wood was as follows:

> Quite evident State Department is withholding true information from the public. I am having all refugees that will wire you, but many that have property and homes in Tampico are afraid to make any statement, fearing retribution from the Mexican people should they have to return. We cannot depend on the American Government for any protection whatever, as the past week has shown. When we needed help our boats were ordered by Secretary Daniels to a safe place and we were left to the mercy of the howling mob, assisted by Federal soldiers. Had it not been for the brave officers of the German gunboat Dresden and the English gunboat Hermione, there would have been but two refugees in Galveston harbor today, which is no doubt disappointing to our State Department. Had we known when coming on board the United States boat that we were to be brought to Galveston, few of the men would have come; but once aboard, we were held prisoners, and had nothing to say in the matter. Hence many that would have stayed under a foreign flag are here against their will. All praise should be given to the officers and men of the navy in Tampico. It was not their fault that they were not there when needed.

"I can appreciate the feeling of chagrin expressed by Mr. Wood and his associates," said Mr. Fall afterward, "but, of course, no one thinks the Department of State does not welcome news of the safety of Americans."

Stone Replies to Fall.

"The Senator from New Mexico, (Mr. Fall,)" said Mr. Stone, "reads here into The Record this dispatch containing a charge so absurd, so wicked, so contemptible as to destroy the effect of its influence, if any it could have. Here it is stated that the Secretary of State is disappointed that these Americans who have been brought to Galveston harbor were not killed in Tampico harbor or drowned in the waters of the Gulf.

"I am astonished that the Senator from New Mexico or that any Senator should ask to have read into The Record such a monstrous indictment as that here made, even against the humanity of great public officials representing the United States. I cannot conceive of anything that could be done here in the Senate that could be more objectionable or offensive.

American Property in Danger.

The danger to American property in and around Tampico since the departure of the American squadron was set forth in a telegram from John I. Newell, under date of Galveston, April 27, to Senator Crawford of South Dakota. It reads:

> Two hundred and fifty men, women, and children have been forced to fly from Tampico to save their lives, leaving property behind them worth $250,000,000, least calculation, entirely unprotected. Washington Government gave Admiral Mayo peremptory orders to take gunboats from Panuco River in front of Tampico at critical moment, causing Mexicans to believe us left to our fate and precipitating riots and threats that forced us all to leave at moment's notice.
>
> Four hundred Americans in the interior near Tampico are abandoned now unless the German and English people take care of them. Many of these from your State. Hope you will see it your duty to stand by your countrymen and see that they get justice.

Ed Williams, formerly United States Consul at Durango, sent a message to Mr. Fall, saying he was forwarding statements from refugees who came up with him from Tampico on the Connecticut. Another message, from S. R. R. Pollock at Galveston, read:

> Outrages and insults to Americans in Tampico cannot be exaggerated, not to speak of the destruction of millions of property. Can state with positive assurance that present arrangement will result in untold property losses to all Americans and will also make it impossible for them to continue in business of any kind in Mexico in the future.

Tried to Lynch Consul.

John I. Newell, in a telegram to Mr. Fall, told of an attempt to lynch American Vice Consul Bevens on the streets of Tampico after most of the Americans had found refuge on foreign ships. Mr. Newell said he was saved by the British Consul, and continued:

> Wholesale slaughter of Americans in Southern Hotel, surrounded by mob, among whom were Mexican officers, was narrowly averted by the coolness of Ed Williams, formerly United States Consul at Durango, who, with others, persuaded the few armed men inside the building, protecting 150 men, women, and children, to withhold firing until the last moment. This rule was strictly enforced in spite of the persistent and frequent efforts of mob to batter down hotel doors. Since then this building has been recklessly searched and probably looted.
>
> Coaches were stopped in Tampico and American occupants forced to get out and shout "Long live Huerta! Death to the Americans!"
>
> All mobs were incited by the incendiary speeches made by Latin-American lawyers and Custom House officials, who are well known to many of us.
>
> One of my boats, filled with fleeing American men, women, and some Chinamen, was held up by the Mexican gunboat Vera Cruz, in Panuco River, although they had a pass from Gen. Zaragoza, in command of Federals at Tampico. This boat was forced, at the point of guns, to retreat up the river and there remain for many hours.

ZARAGOZA WOULD FLEE.

Federal General Prefers Retreat to Seeing Tampico Bombarded.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Gen. Zaragoza, the Mexican Federal commander at Tampico, would, in case of an American attack upon that port, either withdraw his forces from the town or surrender to avoid a bombardment.

This information was conveyed to Secretary Daniels to-day in a dispatch from Rear Admiral Mayo, the naval commander at Tampico. Admiral Mayo's dispatch was transmitted through the medium of Rear Admiral Badger, at Vera Cruz. The message from Admiral Mayo also indicated that Gen. Zaragoza was rather kindly disposed toward the United States. This information, coming through official sources, was very pleasing to Administration circles.

ARMY OF 13,000 MEN GUARDS THE BORDER

Gen. Bliss Also Has 8,000 More Troops in Concentration Camp Near Galveston.

BATTERY REACHES LAREDO

Machine Gun Platoon of the First Cavalry Goes to California Line—Locations of Troops.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The War Department quietly and in a way not to unduly alarm or excite persons along the border, is tighting up its frontier patrols. To-day the machine gun platoon of the First Cavalry was ordered from Fort Yellowstone to Calexico, Cal. This is on the border between Southern California and Lower California.

The War Department also gave out a dispatch from Gen. Bliss at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, saying that the battalion headquarters and Battery E of the Sixth Field Artillery had arrived at Laredo, Texas.

With these changes the border patrol now consists of 13,000 officers and men. This is the size of the border patrol alone and does not embrace the infantry contingent of 8,000 men now in camp at Texas City, near Galveston.

The department to-night issued a statement of the disposal of the 13,000 troops under command of Gen. Bliss on the border with their present locations. In issuing this statement it was explained that there might be some minor errors in it because Gen. The Twelfth Cavalry will be at Fort Wingate to guard the Mexican military prisoners being transferred to that point.

We placed before him four different methods

Nearly a year ago the secretary of a Title and Guarantee Company in a big southern city called at our New York salesroom. He wanted to find the method best adapted to the filing of card records.

We placed before him four different methods, not all of them our own. He tested them for speed, simplicity and practicability. With this result: He found that the Automatic Index was quickest, simplest, freest from error. He also found—and this is the feature that should appeal to you—that in a few minutes time the finding of a card becomes almost mechanical.

Naturally, we got the order.

Nothing would please us more than to have you do what the Title man did—investigate, compare, decide. Count motions, use a stop watch, make any test you please.

Hundreds of business houses have adopted the "Automatic Index." Their names? Ask us. We'll be glad to tell you.

Comparatively speaking

¶ We never state comparative prices for Saks clothes—there are none.

¶ Whatever the merit of Saks clothes, price is not the only basis of their superiority.

¶ A Saks garment at $25 is not as good as another garment at $30—it is better.

¶ Better, mind you, not necessarily (yet often), in respect of such considerations as fabric and the labor of making.

¶ But better in respect of the most vital of all considerations—the consideration of style.

¶ And being better in style and no more in price, it follows that they are more economical in the final analysis.

REICHSTAG DEBATES MEXICAN AFFAIRS

National Liberal Leader Asks About the Seizure of the Ypiranga.

NEUTRALITY IS REASSERTED

Foreign Minister Disclaims Any Intention of Intervening—Won't Send More Warships.

BERLIN, April 29.—Whether or not there is a state of war in Mexico was discussed in the Reichstag to-day.

Ernst Bassermann, the National Liberal leader, addressing the Budget Committee, called attention to the losses of German trade interests in Mexico, arising from the sending back from Vera Cruz of the German steamer Ypiranga, which he said was in sharp contrast to the unhindered importation of arms by the rebels.

In reply Foreign Minister von Jagow explained that, according to the laws of nations, the situation was one of doubt. The United States, according to the views of President Wilson, was not involved in war with Mexico, whereas, as a matter of fact, a form of warfare actually existed. Germany, he continued, had supported the action of the great South American Republics by directing the German Minister at Mexico City to advise President Huerta to accept the offer of good offices.

The success of mediation is variously regarded here, and some skepticism has been expressed. A Socialist member of the Reichstag made reference to the reports that certain petroleum interests had had a hand in Mexico's trouble. To this the Foreign Minister replied that he had read this report in the newspapers, but had not been able to verify it. He said further that there was no need to send more German warships to Mexico, as the friendly co-operation of the warships now there was assured.

Continuing, the Foreign Minister said that the German Minister at Mexico had been empowered to give financial assistance to Germans who wished to leave the country, and that Germans living in the interior of the Republic had been advised to make their way to the seaports and leave the country if they thought it necessary. The Hamburg-American Steamship Company had placed three vessels at the disposal of the Government, one at Tampico, another at Vera Cruz, and a third at Puerto Mexico, to facilitate the removal of German subjects.

Herr von Jagow then corrected the erroneous impression which has prevailed in Germany that the Washington authorities had ordered the Ypiranga to return her cargo, consisting in large part of munitions of war for Huerta, to Germany. He said Washington had expressed the wish to keep the cargo on board the Ypiranga in the harbor, or to unload it at the Vera Cruz Custom House, held by the Americans. The Hamburg-American Company had thereupon ordered the vessel to return home. Her cargo, the Foreign Minister declared, was principally of American origin.

Referring to the future of Mexico, Herr von Jagow said that President Wilson had made the declaration that nothing would be done against Mexico's independence; Germany's course, therefore, must be one of neutrality. Other European countries also were refraining from intervention, the speaker continued, and there was no question of action by Germany alone, if only out of regard for German relations with the United States. The German Government, in protecting German interests, would keep in touch with the other powers, and would favor the principle of the "open door" in Mexico, as everywhere else.

FRENCH PRESSURE ON HUERTA.

Premier Says Minister to Mexico Is Ordered to Apply It.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 29.—Premier Doumergue to-day received a deputation from the Association for the Defense of French Interests in Mexico. The delegates requested him to use his utmost influence, both in Mexico and in Washington, to protect French interests.

The Premier assured the deputation that the Government was doing everything possible in thies direction and would continue to direct its efforts toward safeguarding French interests in the present crisis. He added that he had sent instructions to the French representatives in Washington and Mexico to support the mediation proposals of the South American powers.

PARIS, April 29.—In an editorial article to-day the Temps says that President Huerta can find, in the mediation of the South American republics, an opportunity to withdraw honorably from a situation which cannot last long without mortal danger in Mexico. Europe refuses to hold Huerta responsible for the killing of Madero, the Temps continues, but it does not comprehend why his quarrel with President Wilson should cause the downfall of Mexico. Huerta must make a sacrifice for the salvation of his country.

At the same time, the Temps goes on, the effort of the three South American republics toward mediation assumes importance in the future. These republics see in the expanson of North America a danger which it will be necessary to ward off. South America has too long been divided against itself, and its action to-day with regard to Mexico indicates that in the future South America in mutual interest will act as a brake to the exaggerations of Monroeism and the encroachments of North American imperialism.

Huerta, says the editor, would act nobly if he did not hesitate to make any sacrifice necessary to assure the success of mediation out of which would come a Latin America unified, pacific, and strong, and mistress of its own destinies.

TAMPICO OIL OVERFLOWS.

Delayed Dispatch Tells of Vast Quantities Being Lost.

TAMPICO, Mexico, Monday, April 27, via Vera Cruz, April 29.—The American exodus from Tampico, which began on April 22, virtually reached its end today with the departure for Vera Cruz of about sixty American refugees on board the tank steamer Canfield. The total number of refugees sent from here to American ports since the movement began is officially placed at 2,270.

There are, however, still a score or more Americans here. They have all lived here for several years and all of these are highly thought of by the Mexican population. They are sheltered in the homes of Mexican friends living along the Panuco River, and are probably in little if any danger.

No reliable reports have reached here of any damage to the oil wells, tanks, and pipe lines in the Tampico and Panuco region, but the Corona and other great wells in the Panuco district are overflowing. Vast quantities of oil are being lost because no effective way of stopping the flow has been found. Oil experts predict that within a week or ten days the retaining reservoirs will overflow. As a result a deluge of oil will be precipitated into the river. Should this catch fire Tampico and the mouth of the river would be threatened with destruction.

Alarmed When Mayo Left.

There was almost panic among the Americans last Wednesday, when, without an hour's warning, the squadron of American vessels under Rear Admiral Mayo steamed down the Panuco River, leaving upward of 2,000 Americans in Tampico. Since this time, however, all those who wanted to leave have been allowed to do so. In addition to the long-time residents of the city, there are a few Americans in the districts back of the river who absolutely refuse to come out.

From the beginning Capt. Doughty of the British cruiser Hermione has been indefatigable in his efforts to warn Americans, wherever he could reach them, that they should leave the district. Patrol boats of the Hermione have thoroughly explored the Tamiahua Lagoon, and, according to reports made to the British commander, the American settlements along the lagoon are deserted.

Considering the Federal situation from the standpoint of rebel attack, all indications point to their ability to defend Tampico indefinitely. The Federals are well supplied with artillery, of which the rebels have none. The rebel attacks hitherto have never been skilfully directed, and they always have been futile.

The sanitary conditions at Tampico are bad. The water supply is scant, and to a large measure polluted.

NAVY'S QUICK WORK.

Daniels Shows How His Forces Met an Emergency Test.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Secretary Daniels issued a statement to-day in which he said that if the operations in Mexico had produced no other results, they had served to test the organization and preparedness of the navy.

"It is now well known," said the Secretary, "that President Wilson issued orders at 4 o'clock in the morning to seize the custom house at Vera Cruz. Almost immediately the machinery was put in motion for meeting the situation thus created. Ships were chartered to carry away the refugees, supplies were shipped by the thousands of tons, ship after ship was fitted out, received her officers, crew and stores, and slipped away to the south with hardly a ripple of confusion.

"When the order to take Vera Cruz was given only the active fleet was in service. During the next four days the number of ships in service was nearly doubled. The colliers and supply ships were loaded and sent away. Some are already returning for their second cargoes. The marines were gathered from widely scattered points, collected at the navy yards from which the ships were starting, and marched on board.

"To the casual observer, the navy yards appeared as scenes of greatest activity, but it was action without confusion. One event followed another with great rapidity, but with orderly sequence.

"The newest dreadnought, the New York, sailed from her home yard complete and ready in every respect, exactly ten days after first hoisting her flag and going into commission. Gunboats which had long been laid up in reserve, were placed in full commission, took on coal and stores, and left, as a rule, within forty-eight hours of the receipt of their orders.

"Many unforseen contingencies arose, as must always be the case, but none which could not be overcome by the energy of the officers and men concerned. The commandants of the various navy yards were unflagging in their activity and in all respects as regards material, the navy was found ready. Among the first articles supplied, when it was found that the bluejackets were to be landed, were 10,000 yards of mosquito netting and 200 pounds of bug powder."

The Secretary added that he still "stood pat" on the two battleship programme.

VILLA WOULD DIVIDE MEXICO.

Moving Picture Man Calls to Tell President What He Learned.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Herbert M. Dean, the moving-picture man who spent four months with Gen. Francisco Villa in the field, went to the White House to-day to give President Wilson an intimate account of Villa and Villa's views. But the President was tied up by engagements and Mr. Dean gave his information to Joseph P. Tumulty, the secretary to the President, and Senator Hughes of New Jersey, who was in Mr. Tumulty's office at the time.

Mr. Dean said that Villa wanted to divide Mexico into two parts, each under a separate Government. He contended, said Mr. Dean, that the people of Northern Mexico were entirely different from those of the south, and it was unwise for populations so dissimilar in habits of thought and methods of living to attempt to live together under one flag.

After he left the White House Mr. Dean talked interestingly but cautiously amout the Commander-in-Chief of the Constitutionalist forces.

"These stories about Gen. Villa being a bloodthirsty bandit," he said,—"the stories that he always executed his prisoners, are false. It is true that he did execute captured followers of Pasqual Orozco, but he felt justified in this, as they were traitors who had deserted his cause and gone over to Huerta. Other prisoners were not executed. As a matter of fact, when prisoners would be brought in he would say frequently: "These poor fellows are tired and hungry. Give them something to eat.'

"Villa has very advanced ideas, and desires to put them into effect in Mexico. He is now engaged in dividing up the great haciendas into smaller plots and furnishing a means of livelihood to the people. Those who receive this land are obliged to pay a smal ltitle on their crops, but where the crop is a failure they are not taxed. A good many German farmers have gone into Chihuahua, and Villa is utilizing them to show the people how to operate their farms.

"Villa has told the Americans who have come to him for advice as to whether they should leave Mexico that he wanted them to stay, for he needed their brains and their assistance in developing his country. There isn't the slightest prospect that Villa will join Huerta to fight the United States. He is friendly to this country, and he has no use for Huerta. It is hard for Americans to think of Villa in any other way than as a fighting man, but the fact is he is a man of peace, and a deep student of the sociological problems which afect Mexico."

EIGHT PRIESTS VOLUNTEER.

Names Sent to President of Those Willing to Serve in Army or Navy.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Names of eight Catholic priests who have volunteered to serve in the American Army or Navy in case of war with Mexico were sent to the President to-day. They were as follows:

The Rev. John J. Brady, of New York; the Revs. Hugh Ryan and Theodore Petersen of the Catholic University, Washington; the Rev. P. Sherman, of Freeland, Penn.; the Rev. William Colbert, of Winnebago, Minn.; the Rev. James A. Harvey, of Crossingville, Penn.; the Rev. Leo Panicki, of Christopher, Ill., and the Rev. Francisco Vasquez Gomez, of New York.

The Rev. John J. Brady, of 657 Washington Street confirmed last night the report that he had volunteered for service in the Navy in the event of war, but he was uncommunicative as to the circumstances. He is connected with the Cathedral College.

Many Roads Aid Refugees.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Secretary Bryan announced to-day that the railroads of the Southwest and South have agreed to carry refugees from Mexico at half rates. This action followed inquiries from the State Department to ascertain if in view of the destitution of many who had come out of Mexico in the last week the railroads were willing to assist in getting them to their homes.

WATER FOR MILITIA A CAMP PROBLEM

Commissioner Says There Will Be Enough on Staten Island if Machinery Holds.

BUT IT IS BADLY WORN

500,000 Gallons a Day Will Be Needed if State Guard Mobilizes There—Activity at the Armories.

Plans for the mobilization of the New York State Militia on Staten Island have progressed to a point where yesterday the commanding officers of the New York division called upon Commissioner William Williams of the Department of Water Supply, Gas, and Electricity, to learn whether the city could supply 500,000 gallons of water a day to the mobilization camp.

At the conference were present Major Frederic Nelson Whitley of the Engineer Corps, of the National Guard; Capt. William D. A. Anderson, United States Engineer Corps and Instructor-Inspector of the New York State Militia, and Commissioner Williams. The Commissioner suggested that they draw up a plan showing just what was expected. The conference will be followed by another to-day or to-morrow.

"The present water supply on Staten Island varies," the Commissioner said. "There is no excess supply. If there is no break in machinery we will probably be able to meet the demands, but that is uncertain.

"Apparently about 500,000 gallons a day will be wanted by the soldiers. This supply could probably be furnished provided none of the inadequate pumping machinery on the island were to break down. Much of it is in a dilapidated condition. This department last month called the attention of the Board of Estimate to this state of affairs in writing and it made appropriate recommendations to meet the situation, but they have not yet been acted upon. It is not generally appreciated that this department is obliged not only to furnish water but to do so 'with ample reserve for contingencies and future demand.' Unfortunately, there is no reserve worthy of the name on Staten Island, which until 1916 cannot receive the use of water coming from the Catskills. In the meantime, it must rely on water pumped from wells on the Island."

The guard, he explained, will have to do the necessary piping to distribute the water. The department will give permission for tapping the main and will lend the army the pipes.

Orders were issued yesterday to the militia instructing all company commanders to send in the names of their men who are plumbers or steamfitters and could be of use in the installation of water pipes at the camp site.

Preparations for active duty are not confined to the State militia. While on Governors Island the betting is 5 to 1 against being called out for war, and men were busy yesterday getting ammunition ready for handling. On the pier were piled up thousands of rounds of ammunition. There are stored in the various arsenals in the Department of the East 100,000,000 rounds of ammunition, and there is available upon immediate call to the Ordnance Department as much more. This ammunition, it was explained at Governors Island, will not be shipped to the mobilization camps. It will be taken from arsenals to shipping points, and as the orders to move the regiments come the supply of ammunition will be moved at the same time. The cases will be put on the transports and shipped to the oversea supply bases.

Brig. Gen. Robert K. Evans, commanding the Department of the East, will leave to-day for Washington. He will take up with the War Department the question of training camps of the State Militia in the Ninth and Tenth Divisions of the department. In the Ninth Division is included North and South Carolina, Georgia, and Florida, and in the Tenth Division Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, and Kentucky.

Gen. Evans will meet Gen. O'Ryan in Washington and confer regarding the situation in this State. It is probable that he will order inspection of the camp sites in the two divisions and, according to one report, he may make the inspections in person.

WRIT AGAINST MEXICAN BANK.

Speyer & Co. Get Attachment to Cover $235,561.40 Unpaid Interest.

Speyer & Co. obtained a writ of attachment yesterday against the National Bank of Mexico for $235,561.40, which was served on its New York agents, Maitland, Coppell & Co. of 52 William Street.

The suit followed the non-payment of a draft for that amount that had been forwarded by the National Bank of Mexico to Speyer & Co. for the payment of interest due to-morrow on $25,000,000 of bonds of the Institution for the Encouragement of Irrigation Work and the Development of Agriculture, Incorporated, which are guaranteed as to principal, interest and sinking fund by the Mexican Government.

Maitland, Coppell & Co., in refusing to pay the draft, when it was presented a few days ago, acted under instructions from the National Bank of Mexico, ordering payment stopped.

The advices from the National Bank of Mexico came immediately after the landing of United States forces at Vera Cruz, and were presumed yesterday to have emanated from Gen. Huerta. No reason was given, however, to Maitland, Coppell & Co. for stopping payment.

Cadwalader, Wickersham & Taft, attorneys for Speyer & Co., explained that the suit was brought for the protection of the bondholders, and added that the stop-payment order was "no doubt owing to the disturbed condition in Mexico."

A member of the firm of Maitland, Coppell & Co. declined to say last night whether the National Bank of Mexico had sufficient funds here to meet the draft and satisfy the attachment, on the ground that its account with the firm was similar to that of any other depositor, and, therefore, a private matter.

MOB'S WORK IN PROGRESO.

Attack on Our Consulate—Americans Fled Hurriedly.

Special to The New York Times.

MOBILE, Ala., April 29.—Insults, anti-American demonstrations and what was described as a "reign of terror" in the State of Yucutan, Mexico, forced all Americans in that province to flee, according to statements made by several of the twenty-eight refugees on board the British steamship Wolf, which arrived here this afternoon from Progreso and Merida, Yucutan, are now in quarantine.

The New Yorkers in the party are:

Miss Victoria Orville Parkins, Walter Stanton, Ernest Dellenveich, Thorwald Arent Royer, Mrs. Margaret Royer, W. P. Young, wife, child, and mother; Mrs. Sarah T. Young, W. B. Mead, Samuel M. Houston, Joseph F. Reham, Samuel Heytow, Ernest Balch.

William P. Young, spokesman for the refugees, said:

"We had been quietly preparing to get out for three days realizing that the real danger was close at hand. There had been disorder among the poorer classes of Mexicans in Merida, incited by officers of the Huerta Government."

"The American Consul at Progreso, who was acting under instructions from Chargé O'Shaughnessy at Mexico City, gave us one-half hour notice to get out, and as the British steamship Wolf was ready to sail for Mobile we hurriedly packed a few things and left for Progreso, and went aboard ship. Not one of the party had a chance to convert his belongings into cash, and the best that could be done was to place what we owned in the care of friends and move.

"The Mexicans had been hostile to Americans for several days, and when news of the capture of Vera Cruz by the Americans from the warships was learned the State officials representing Huerta instigated the poorer natives to insult the Americans. The followers of Huerta even went so far as to furnish some of the disturbers with arms. The poorer classes marched in the streets of Merida, parading up and down and crying: 'Death to Wilson,' 'Death to the Americans.'

"Considerable property of Americans was damaged. The consulate at Progreso was the scene of a disturbance. Here the shield of the United States was torn down and thrown into the streets and trampled on. A Mexican flag was hung across the door of the consulate. This outrage was committed on Thursday night last. The flag was still across the door of the consulate when the ship sailed at 3 o'clock on Sunday morning. Acting Consul John P. Gormon tried to get word to Mrs. Walter H. Bell, owner of a large plantation in Campeche, but the Mexican officials refused to permit the message to be sent."

Another member of the party of refugees in describing the situation at Progreso said:

"The smallest gunboat in the American Navy, stationed at Progreso, would have put down any disturbance and we could all have remained there and continued our business."

Dr. C. K. Roe, an officer of the United States Public Health Service, described the experiences of several Americans.

"An American woman, Mabel Noran, an actress associated with the Welton Circus," said Dr. Roe, "was thrown into a ditch and dirt was hurled at her on last Thursday night. The circus was showing near Progreso, and the mob started a demonstration. The show was broken up. The woman managed to get away and went on board a ship bound for New York."

W. B. Meade, a teacher of languages, told of his experience on last Friday night, when a mob visited his home.

"I heard them coming," he said, "yelling, and I made up my mind that if they came where I was I would not say anything unless they spoke to me. They broke open the door and forced me into the street in my night clothes. They went into my house, and broke up everything there."

SUSPENSE IN MEXICO CITY.

London Hears That It Is Pessimistic as to Mediation.

LONDON, Thursday, April 30.—The relief caused in Mexico City by the proffered mediation of the South American republics was only transitory, according to a dispatch dated April 28 from the Mexican capital to The Daily Telegraph. The correspondent adds that, after having believed that it had to face a war with the United States, the Mexican Government again finds itself confronted by revolution under more unfavorable circumstances. It fears that mediation has come too late to affect the internal struggle, and that it will only prove to be a vain attempt to settle by pacific means a situation which apparently is approaching a violent solution.

Francisco Villa, according to the correspondent, has united under his command the most important nucleus of the combatant forces and appears to have resumed hostilities with greater vehemence and success. It is almost impossible, he says, to obtain any news about the revolutionary advance, but alarming reports have been put into circulation, according to which Saltillo, San Luis Potosi and Queretaro have fallen into rebel hands.

"Owing to the vast distances," the correspondent continues, "it is thought that an attack by the rebels on the capital cannot yet happen; but there are indications of a rapid concentration of the Government forces for a supreme effort of defense, various columns of Federal troops having been summoned here by telegraph. President Huerta's Government expresses confidence in its ability to master the situation, but there exists a feeling of suspense and anxiety and even of revolt.

"Gen. Huerta declared on Monday that he would fight to the end, and that his life and Mexican independence would end together.

"The deep and apparently thoughtless calm of the capital continues, but trains are constantly leaving for Vera Cruz crammed with Americans and other foreigners, who do not seem in the least reassured by the actual tranquillity.'

WAS HELD UP TEN TIMES.

Refugee Reaching Philadelphia Tells Story of His Escape.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 29.—Three American refugees, the first to reach the Eastern Coast of the United States since the general exodus from Mexico, arrived here to-day on the American-Hawaiian Line steamship Kentuckian from Puerto Mexico. They lost all their baggage before they boarded the vessel.

The three refugees are R. D. Paxton, R. H. Paxton, and Ernest Morgan, owners of a large coffee plantation in Tehuantepec, about seventy miles south of Vera Cruz. Their homes are in Kansas City, Mo. Before boarding a train for the West, Morgan said:

"The part of Mexico whence I came is not in the same state of tumult as other parts of the country. It is bad enough, however, and I am glad I escaped. I was held up ten times by Mexican soldiers on my way from my ranch to Puerto Mexico. In each case I was sharply questioned and insulted because I was an American. I managed to show them that I was a non-combatant and got away; but I was lucky.

"We were not even safe when we got aboard the Kentuckian. All feared the ship would be blown up, so menacing was the Mexican mob. A constant watch was established over the ship until she put to sea. We were held up two days and nights in Puerto Mexico because the mobs became so violent the ship could not take on cargo, and had to go out a mile from shore during the night to avoid trouble."

MEXICAN PRISONERS ESCAPE.

Led by Yaqui Indian, They Tunnel Under Barricade.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., April 29.—Forty-eight Mexican prisoners in the army detention camp at Fort Rosecrans escaped last night by digging a tunnel under fences and barbed wire entanglements a distance of seventy yards. At noon to-day only fourteen of them had been recaptured.

It is expected that many of the fugitives will find their way across the line into Lower California in spite of the patrol of American troops at the principal points.

The dash for freedom was led and directed by a pure-blooded Yaqui Indian, who is a mining engineer. He is among those recaptured.

KERR HAS OPPOSED THE WILSON POLICY

New Vera Cruz Governor Said in Chicago Speech It Was the Same as Standard Oil's.

HAS DEFENDED HUERTA

Believes Mexico Needs a Beneficent Despotism—Condemns Favors to Rebels.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 29.—Wilson Administration men in Chicago were startled today at the receipt of the news of the appointment by Admiral Fletcher and Gen. Funston of Robert J. Kerr of Chicago as Civil Governor of Vera Cruz. They expressed amazement over the selection of Mr. Kerr, who is an attorney for several large Mexican corporations, because of the strong views which he has expressed against the Wilson policy in Mexico and in favor of the Huerta régime.

In a series of lectures before Chicago audiences before his departure for Mexico on April 6, Mr. Kerr scored President Wilson, Secretary Bryan, and the Administration policy in general. A speech which brought to a climax the resentment of friends of the Wilson policy in Mexico was that delivered by Mr. Kerr at the City Club on March 7, when he said that the Wilson Administration's Mexican policy was that of the Standard Oil Company. In the same speech Mr Kerr condoned the murder of Madero by Huerta, and asserted that the latter had succeeded as President in a legal way.

Among Administration men to-day the universal question was: "How did Attorney Kerr influence Admiral Fletcher and Gen. Funston to put him in a position where he will have to carry out an Administration policy which he does not favor in settling a controversy with an enemy with whom he is in hearty sympathy?"

Following are extracts from the City Club speech:

"We find the United States Government favoring the Government, or the set of individuals, or the political party, or the mob of bandits, pledged, if they get into power, to do things which will be favorable to the Stanard Oil Company interests.

"I am not making the charge that President Wilson or any member of his Administration is taking any position because of the influence of Standard Oil, but I do say that it is a most remarkable fact that the interests of the Standard Oil and the moral ideas of the Democratic Administration happen to coincide.

"As a Congressman said the other day, 'the watchful waiting policy ought to be called the deadly drifting policy, and is absolutely doomed to failure as far as the removal of Huerta is concerned.'

"As our President has put it, 'we must then establish in Mexico that rule of moral law where moral suasion will accomplish results instead of brute force.' If we can do that, that would be a good thing for the world. But it is a pretty big order. It was a pretty big responsibility our President took upon himself a year ago."

In the speech Mr. Kerr asserted that Maxico was fit for only a "beneficent despotism" like that of Diaz. He criticised what he called the Wilson programme of aiding the Constitutionalists against Huerta. "We announced that this Huerta Government must fall, and we adopted as a means for making it fall a plan of directly and indirectly in every manner possible aiding the opponents of that Government," he said.

"To use a slang phrase, 'we fell for it,' and we are just beginning to realize that those to whom we are extending the right hand of fellowship are just what we who have been in Mexico for years have known all the time they were—nothing but bandits. We have made ourselves their partners, and to the people in Mexico we are morally responsible for the death of Benton, and every other foreigner who dies in that territory."

Ending his speech Mr. Kerr said:

"As long as the Secretary of State says to a man who attempts to testify to facts in connection with this or any other problem, 'You are disqualified as a witness because you know something about those facts because you have interests in Mexico'—as long as that is the situation we are not going to reach a solution. But when we can get our Department of State and our great mass of fellow-citizens to feel that what is our business as foreigners in a foreign land—I am speaking now for the Americans in Mexico—is their business as well, and that what affects us affects them, then we will have begun to arrive at the position which, if followed, will bring us out to a proper solution."

BRAZIL TAKES CHARGE.

Documents of Our Mexican Embassy in Her Minister's Hands.

MEXICO CITY, April 29.—The archives and documents of the American Embassy were handed over to the Brazilian Minister by Sir Lionel Carden today at noon.

They had been intrusted to Sir Lionel by Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American Chargé d'Affaires, when he departed for Vera Cruz.

Luis d'Antin, who was an attaché of the American Embassy, took the documents to the Brazilian Legation this afternoon.

José Manuel Cardozo de Oliveira, the Brazilian Minister, in a statement to The Associated Press said:

"Every protection it is humanly possible to give will be afforded by me to the Americans who yet remain in Mexico. The Brazilian Legation and its staff are at their disposal."

Dr. Ignacio Alcocer, Minister of the Interior, has sent further messages to all State Governors and to the Jefes Politicos in the Territories, urging them in the name of the President to push their efforts to persuade the rebel leaders to unite in defense of national integrity. Complete amnesty is promised the rebels.

The Government has been compelled to take action against the retail dealers in foodstuffs. Prices have risen to an exorbitant figure, and one shop was wrecked yesterday by indignant citizens because of the high prices asked.

The Government has published an official list of the prices of commodities, and dealers exceeding these figures will be imprisoned.

Orders to preach against invasion have been issued to the clergy of the Diocese of San Luis Potosi by Bishop Ignacio Montes de Oca y Obregon. The Archbishop of Guadalajara and other ecclesiastics have issued similar decrees.

The Foreign Office announced to-day that Uruguay and Honduras had formally requested permission to join with Argentina, Brazil and Chile in the mediation for the settlement of the difficulties between Mexico and the United States.

Carlos Maria de la Pena, the Uruguayan Minister here, and Otto Reinbeck, Honduran Chargé d'Affaires, presented the proposition from their respective governments to the Mexican Foreign Office and in reply Senor Portillo y Rojas, the Foreign Minister said he believed the Mexican Government would accept.

REBELS WANT RECOGNITION.

Now Control All Important Border Points Up to California.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The Constitutionalist forces are sweeping everything before them in Northern Mexico and putting their house in order for a claim for recognition of their belligerency by the United States Government in the event of the failure of the "A. B. C. powers'" proposals and resumption of the American campaign against Huerta.

Gen. Bliss reported to-day the capture of 400 Mexican Federal prisoners and considerable ammunition by the Constitutionalist forces under Gen. Murgias in the State of Coahuila. His forces have occupied Piedras Negras, just across the border from Eagle Pass, Texas. Gen. Bliss's dispatch read:

> Following last night from commanding officer Eagle Pass:
>
> "Murgias forces occupied Piedras Negras at 5 o'clock this afternoon. They report taking 400 prisoners from Guarjardo, 1,200 rifles, 3 field pieces, and much small arms ammunition. My information is that the the prisoners are being well treated."

The State Department announced today that the advance guard of the Carranzistas at Piedras Negras entered the city "without firing a shot."

A dispatch from Consul Edwards stated that there "is little military activity reported" in the section extending from the American border to Torreon and Durango "and no alarming symptoms in the local situation" at El Paso.

The taking of Piedras Negras, which was formerly called Ciudad Porfirio Diaz, means that the Constitutionalists now have control over every point on the Mexican side of the border west to California. The Constitutionalists are in command of the routes into Mexico from Nogales and Douglas in Arizona, and of the main routes of travel through El Paso, Eagle Pass, and Laredo. They control Juarez just across the river from El Paso and also Nuevo Laredo just over the frontier from Laredo. They are in command of the leading towns in Sonora, Chihuahua, Neuvo Leon, and are now working through the State of Tamaulipas toward Tampico and through Coahuila to the capital, Saltillo.

In the last week vigorous efforts have been put forth by the Constitutionalists to convince the American Government that law and order have been following their arms.

Secretary Bryan has given out a number of dispatches from American Consuls in territory now controlled by the Constitutionalists in which there are very complimentary allusions to the Carranzista forces. Most noticeable of these was the dispatch from Consul General Hanna at Monterey who praised the Constitutionalists to the skies. There is considerable comment on these dispatches in Washington. It has been freely hinted that the State Department seemed only too anxious to make public these messages.

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico, April 29.—[illegible] property belonging to foreigners in territory held by the rebels will be confiscated in the future, according to a statement issued to-day by the Carranza Administration. The statement also declared none had been confiscated in the past, with the exception of that belonging to Spaniards. It was pointed out that this always has been the policy of the Constitutionalists, and that in the few cases where seizure had been made under a misapprehension, restitution had been made at once.

The statement was made in connection with an investigation by Gen. Carranza into the representations received from George C. Carothers, special representative of the United States Department of State at El Paso, regarding the Avino Mining Company, owned by British capitalists and located in the State of Durango. The Constitutionalist Governor of Durango advised Gen. Carranza that there was no foundation for the rumor that the Avino property had been confiscated and that every protection had been given the company in order to allow it to continue operations.

It is asserted that the reestablishment of the embargo on arms along the Texas border will not cramp the operations of Gen. Villa's army against Saltillo and other points. There is a feeling of confidence that Villa has sufficient ammunition to conduct operations until Tampico is taken by the rebels, giving them a port except from the operations of the embargo. There is a deep seated impression here that the fall of Tampico cannot be long delayed.

LAREDO, Texas, April 29.—The Constitutionalists were in control of Nuevo Laredo to-day, the former Mayor having resumed his office after more than a year of Federal occupation. The Federals have not appeared in Nuevo Laredo since they abandoned and dynamited Nuevo Laredo last Friday.

EL PASO, Texas, April 29.—A detained shipment of $600,000 of rebel currency consigned to points in Sonora has been released and is on its way to Sonora. The release was affected from the War Department on a decision by Federal Judge Maxey at Del Rio, Texas, that currency is not munitions of war.

NOGALES, Ariz., April 29.—Americans at Douglas, Naco, and other border points appealed to Consul Frederick Simpich at Nogales to-day to know whether reports were authentic that Secretary Bryan had conferred with Constitutionalist agents in Washington, and had agreed that Americans might return. Mr. Simpich announced he had received no advices from the State Department reversing the warning that Americans leave Mexico.

Orders received at the local custom house greatly increasing the scope of the embargo on shipments of goods into Mexico, were placed in effect today. The new orders, it is said, prevent the exportation into Mexico of practically everything except actual food necessities.

CALEXICO, Cal., April 29.—Three field pieces against the Americans' two were mounted by the Mexican garrison at Mexicali last night, about three-quarters of a mile from the emplacement of the guns in the fortifications of the United States regulars, according to reports received to-day by the American commanders.

The Mexican commander, it is said, has carried out an extensive programme of enlistment in Imperial Valley on the American side of the line. Many Mexican laborers have gone to Mexicali as soldiers, strengthening the garrison there materially.

THREE SONS FOR THE FLAG.

Two Chicago Boys Ready to Take Dead Brother's Place.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 29.—Undaunted by the dangers of war as brought home to them through the death of their brother Samuel, Meyer and Edward Meisenberg, in a letter sent to-day to President Wilson, offered their lives for the flag should need of their services arise.

Their letter reads as follows:

Chicago, April 29.
President Woodrow Wilson, White House,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. President: We are broken hearted over the death of our brother Sammy at Vera Cruz, but we are satisfied your policy in the Mexican war is the right one.

I and my brother, Eddie, stand ready, if necessary, to step into the shoes of our dead brother and fight for our flag in his place.

Yours truly,
MEYER MEISENBERG.

"I'd like to add my name to the letter," said Morris Meisenberg, father of the boys, "but there would have to be some one to stay at home and care for the women."

The following message, written on a post card by "Sammy" Meisenberg on April 21, the day he was killed at Vera Cruz, has been received:

> To My Dear Parents: I am getting along fine and hope to hear that you're getting along fine, too. My dear mother and father, I kiss you good bye. We are going down to Vera Cruz to battle, and I hope that I shall raise the flag on the Mexican Custom House. If I return alive I'll let you know. Your loving son, SAM.

Plans for the funeral of the marine were halted to-day, when it was learned that it would be at least two weeks before the body reached here from Vera Cruz.

CALL TO PRAYER FOR PEACE.

Church Peace Union Urges Setting Next Sunday Aside.

The Church Peace Union issued yesterday a "call to prayer," and urged that all religious denominations and all churches in the United States set aside next Sunday as "a day of prayer for God's blessing upon this suggested peaceful solution of our difficulties."

The call is signed by Cardinal Gibbons, Bishop David H. Greer, Bishop Luther B. Wilson, Peter Ainslie, the Rev. Dr. Emil G. Hirsch, Francis Lynde Stetson, Marcus M. Marks, Henry Wade Rogers, the Rev. Dr. Charles E. Jefferson, Robert E. Speer, and others. It was sent out from the office of the Secretary of the union, 70 Fifth Avenue. It is explained that the Peace Union is composed of many denominations which "rejoice with all good men that the President has accepted the mediation of Argentina, Brazil, and Chile in our unhappy relations with Mexico."

"Let all the churches pray," the call concludes, "that the mediation proffered by our sister States result in a just, happy, and permanent friendship of all American republics."

CONSUL RISKED HIS LIFE.

High Praise from Eye-Witness for Ulmer of Torreon.

Prof. Henry Fairfield Osborn, President of the American Museum of Natural History, made public yesterday part of a letter from Howard Potter of Durango, Mexico, in which acting American Consul I. M. Ulmer is praised for his service during the recent battle at Torreon. The letter says:

> I think it is only just that President Wilson and Secretary Bryan should know of the great service the Acting American Consul, Mr. I. M. Ulmer, did for all foreigners, in particular for the Spaniards, during the terrible battle we had in Torreon between March 22 and April 2.
>
> He risked his life many times for the sake of all humanity, and I think his services should be appreciated by our Government. I trust that you can bring this matter before our President.

"Our consular service in foreign countries is so little understood and appreciated by our people at home," said Prof. Osborn, "that it is a pleasure to make this tribute of an eye-witness public."

New Jersey Antis Volunteer.

TRENTON, Apr. 29.—Mrs. Georgianna S. Breese of this city, President of the New Jersey Association of Women Opposed to Woman Suffrage, in a letter to Gov. Fielder to-day said that the organization volunteered in case of war for "such services as New Jersey women have previously rendered under similar circumstances."

ROCKEFELLER BALKS SINCLAIR MOURNERS

Crepe-Adorned Pickets Neither See Him Enter Nor Leave His Broadway Office.

FIVE OF THEM ARRESTED

Sinclair Writes a Song in Jail and All Are Paroled — Calls It "Free Silence" Movement.

In spite of the fact that he was arrested in company with three women associates and a woman who he said was a stranger to him and his movements, Upton Sinclair managed to keep a close watch with a band of picketers in funereal garb upon the offices of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., at 26 Broadway, from 10 o'clock yesterday morning until after 5 in the afternoon.

There was, however, no indication that the band of picketers annoyed or disturbed Mr. Rockefeller. At his office on the fourteenth floor of the Standard Oil Building Mr. Rockefeller's secretary said in answer to questions that the police would be allowed to handle the situation in any way they saw fit without suggestions from Mr. Rockefeller. No one saw Mr. Rockefeller arrive at his office in the morning and none of the picketers saw him go away.

One woman agitator, Mrs. Eella Newman Zilberman, attempted to see Mr. Rockefeller, but the best she could do was to gain a promise that a clerk would take in a message. Her message was that she would like to see the Colorado mines shut down until peace could be restored.

Blames Banner for Arrests.

Mrs. Zilberman carried a banner with a bleeding heart embroidered on it. This banner, as Mrs. Zilberman fell into line behind the pickets with it, attracted a crowd of unwieldy proportions, and Sinclair blamed this fact for the arrest of himself and his pickets. He said he did not know Mrs. Zilberman and had nothing to do with her banner or her visit to the Rockefeller offices.

The crowd, which was very attentive to Mrs. Zilberman, her banner, and the women picketers, lost interest entirely after a squad of men replaced them. Throughout the afternoon the picketers drew only casual glances from passers-by.

Sinclair and his four women associates—Elizabeth Freeman, an English militant suffragette, who boasts a record of five arrests; Mrs. Margaret Remington Charter, and Mrs. Donia Leitener, and Mrs. Zilberman—were taken into custody by the police, but when arraigned before Magistrate Simms in the Tombs Court all five were released on their own recognizance and given until 10 o'clock this morning to produce witnesses at their hearing.

Sinclair returned at once to the picket line. His wife meantime had carried on the work with a new group of pickets. It was the intention to keep up the picketing all last night, but a call for a general conference of the picketers at the Rand School of Social Science at 6 P. M. caused this part of the plan to be abandoned.

Pickets on Duty Again To-day.

As he finally deserted the picket line with his followers, Sinclair sighed out a grievance against the police. It was that they had not arrested Mrs. Sinclair with him in the morning so that they might have made a family affair of the business of going to the Tombs. He said he was very proud of the fact that Mrs. Sinclair had marshaled a fresh force of pickets after he and the four women had been hauled away in a police patrol wagon.

"Mrs. Sinclair and I will be back again on duty at 10 o'clock Thursday morning," he announced, "and we will remain on duty at the Rockefeller offices every day until the strike is settled—that is, every day that we do not spend in jail, and if we have to go to jail, why, then, we will go on a hunger strike."

The Sinclair pickets wore black bands of crepe on their right arms, and from five to seven of them were on duty at one time. For a time their movement was without a name. There was objection to calling it a Socialist movement, since some I. W. W. men had joined it, and there was objection to calling it an I. W. W. movement, since it was said to be strictly a movement of peace and not of war.

Names It Free Silence Movement.

Leonard D. Abbott, head of the Free Speech League, proposed a way out of the difficulty that was accepted. "I have it," he exclaimed. "We have been fighting to establish the right of free speech. Now you give us a new fight. It is the fight to establish the right of Free Silence. I propose we name this the Free Silence Movement and that we declare its purpose to be the carrying of the Social Chill to the heart of Mr. Rockefeller. That's just what we want—to give him the Social Chill."

The poetic souls in the picketing movement heartily accepted the suggestion. Upton Sinclair dashed across the street and hired a hall at 8 Trinity Place, which he solemnly announced was the headquarters of the Free Silence Movement. Asserting that he would have to work quickly because he was due back in the Tombs Court at 10 A. M. on Thursday, "and there was no telling what would happen after that," Sinclair ordered cards printed, telephones installed, and literature prepared. He took down the signatures of thirty persons who agreed to be on hand on Thursday morning and to keep up the picketing "until arrested and sent to jail."

To all who applied Sinclair announced that he regarded as friends all those who would agree to remain absolutely silent while on picket duty, to carry no banners or insignia of any kind except a band of crepe upon the right arm, and to keep moving rapidly through any crowd that might form, so as not to attract police attention. He urged that all others go their way and start any movement they might care to, as he wanted peaceable methods only to prevail. The accepted recruits signed for service until the settlement of the strike in Colorado.

Says Miners Are Forced To Fight.

"I do this thing," Sinclair said to his followers, "because Mr. Rockefeller is here at the very headquarters of the invisible government with all his prestige and his power and his control of the press and the police. The newspapers printed his statement in full, but the public does not hear the miners' side. The miners have no high-priced corporation lawyers to help them draw up statements.

"I have studied the situation for a year and a half, and I knew six months ago that the Rockefeller interests were importing gunmen into Colorado and were perpetrating outrages of the same sort that caused the civil wars in West Virginia and Michigan. The public did not know about this, as it read Mr. Rockefeller's statement, but any one possessed of the facts could have foretold six months ago that the end must be the driving of the miners to the point of fighting desperately to survive.

"Now the fight breaks and the people cannot understand it. The public does not understand that when Mr. Rockefeller says that any miner can demand a check weigher, if he wants one, to see that he gets a fair deal, he merely means that the miner may do this, but that if he should do so he would be listed as a trouble maker and discharged and blacklisted, with never a trace on the records to show that asking for the weigher was wrong.

"The public does not understand that after posting promises to pay better wages and to grant shorter hours the company set about destroying all the leaders of the men and blackmailing them out of their jobs, and even hired gunmen to harass them, until the murder of a union organizer precipitated the present war.

"The public does not understand that the whole history of mining strikes is a history of promises and concessions made that were retracted and withdrawn as soon as the company found it could destroy the leaders of the men, one by one, after the peace agreement, instead of meeting them in open conflict in the strike itself.

"The public does not understand that the only reason the strikers want a contract with the union is that they have learned by bitter experience that no other kind of a promise is any good.

Writes a New "Marseillaise."

"I have not eaten for 48 hours since deciding that I owed it to my own moral convictions to make a peaceable demonstration here. I was scrupulously careful not to commit an offense against the law. I could not be blamed if a strange woman whom I had never seen before, fell in behind me with a little flag. I did not see the flag until after we were arrested, but I am glad to go to court and may be to prison, if by that means I can call public attention to the frightful manner in which citizens of Colorado have been robbed of all legal and civil rights."

While he was in the Tombs Prison, Sinclair was placed in a cell next to that in which the four women arrested with him were confined. The women, to keep up their courage, sang "The Marseillaise," and this so stirred Sinclair's poetic soul that he wrote these verses:

THE MARSEILLAISE IN THE TOMBS.

First comes the settler with his ax and plow,
He cleans the land and founds the future State;
A Freeman, proud and happy in his toil,
Sure that the nation will be strong and great;
Then comes the tradesman with his cunning wiles;
He takes the land—the freeman is a slave;
And justice sleeps, hatred and murder reign,
Hunger and want pursue men to their grave.

They rear the prison with its iron bars,
And all the solemn majesty of law;
But hark! the sound—the prison walls awake!
The song that roused a people into war.
Rejoice, rejoice! the voice of hope is heard;
There are no bars forged by the powers of wrong,
There stands no prison upon God's fair earth
That can withstand the fury of that song.

The poem was Sinclair's second written in a prison cell, as he indited an ode to his "vermin-haunted hide" when confined in a jail at Wilmington, Del., for playing tennis on Sunday at the Arden Single Tax Colony. Sinclair said that his arrest in Delaware was the only one he had suffered previous to yesterday and that then it was an old-fashioned blue law that he offended.

Alexander Berkman joined the picketers for a few moments at the close of an anarchist meeting at the Franklin Statue. The Rev. Alexander Irvine did a few turns with them with a band of crêpe on his arm, as did also Sol Fieldman, a Socialist lecturer.

Sinclair called at the City Hall to ask Mayor Mitchel for an official ruling as to whether it was unlawful for him to appear on the street in front of 26 Broadway with a band of crêpe on his arm. Mayor Mitchel was too busy to see him but sent word that he should address his question to the Police Department. Sinclair then called upon City Chamberlain Bruere to whom he outlined his purpose of "peaceable public mourning" in front of the Rockefeller offices. He would not say what was the result of his conference with Mr. Bruere.

TOOK SON ON GAY PARTIES.

Leo N. Hancox Testifies for Mother in Her Suit for Separation.

The testimony of Leo N. Hancox, 24 years old, taken before trial in the suit of his mother, Nellie A. Hancox, for a separation from his father, Joseph W. Hancox, a promoter, was filed with County Clerk Schneider yesterday. The witness was to go to South Bend with his wife and baby to remain indefinitely, and it was because of this that May & Jacobson, Mrs. Hancox's attorneys, got permission from the Supreme Court to examine this material witness. Mr. Hancox said that his father and mother ceased living together in the Summer of 1907. His father, so the son testified, was often under the influence of liquor, and was frequently abusive to his wife.

Mr. Hancox told of two occasions when his father had cruelly tortured his wife by calling her offensive names. Once the son was so enraged that he sailed into his father, and gave him a sound whipping. But this collision, the knowledge that his father spent much time with dissolute women, and failed to treat his wife properly or to provide for her, made no difference in the relations between the father and son. Mr. Hancox testified that he had been in the habit of going about with his father ever since he was six or seven years of age.

"I have been with my father," was the reply, "at times when he has been in the company of women."

"How old were you?"

"I was about eighteen years of age. I had been out with him when I was only a little shaver, six or seven years old."

"What women did you meet?"

"He went with a woman named Estelle LeBurt and other women."

"What kind of women were they?"

"I could not swear they were not decent, but I never knew my father to go out with a woman, outside of my mother, who was decent."

"Where did he meet these women?"

"One Sunday night we went to Little Hungary, in East Houston Street. We had dinner with two actresses and drank quite a little wine. We stayed there until 1:30, and then went to Jack's and Churchill's, and to a little restaurant known as the Garden, at Fiftieth Street and Seventh Avenue."

"Was that before your father and mother separated?"

"Yes."

Mr. Hancox said that similar occurrences were frequent, and he explained that Estelle LeBurt was an actress and, at the time his father used to meet her, was playing in "The Prince of Pilsen."

DOG BITES POLICE HORSES.

Bowls Over Children in Flight—Shot Dead in Vestibule.

Douglas and Larry, two of the Police Department horses, ridden, respectively, by Lieut. John A. Parks and Patrolman Lynch of the St. Nicholas Avenue Station, were badly bitten about the legs late yesterday afternoon by a brindle bulldog that was subsequently shot and killed by Parks after it had dashed through groups of children, several hundred in number, who had just been let out of school at the old Inwood School at Academy Street and Broadway.

Parks was riding Douglas in Riverside Drive, near 193d Street, when the dog jumped out of the woods and sprang at the horse. The Lieutenant ordered his mount to jump and the horse, although bitten, was saved from being crippled. He jumped forward in fright and pain, but as soon as Parks could wheel around he fired at the dog, which made another charge.

Lynch, attracted by the shots, rode up, and the dog leaped at Larry and sank its teeth into the horse's leg. Larry kicked and dislodged the animal, but it again fastened its teeth in Larry's leg. A shot from Parks's revolver grazed the dog, and it turned tail, pursued by the policeman.

Running through the children the dog bowled some of them over, but did not bite. The children ran terror-stricken into the school again. As the dog entered the vestibule of the Modna Apartments, at 209 Dyckman Street, Parks dismounted and followed. The dog was made a prisoner in the vestibule and as Parks opened the door it sprang at him and he fired as it was in the air, inflicting a mortal wound. He then fired three more shots. The carcass was taken to the Willard Parker Hospital for examination. The horses were placed in the care of the department Veterinary surgeon.

LIGHT OUT, 20 MAY BE LOST.

Steamship Believed to Have Gone Down at Duluth Entrance.

DULUTH, Minn., April 29.—That the Capitol transportation steamship Benjamin Nobel, her crew of twenty or more and a large cargo of railroad iron were swallowed up in storm-swept Lake Superior last night was made almost certain to-day when the lifesaving crew picked up wreckage from the vessel off Minnesota Point, Duluth. All efforts to find the hull of the Nobel have proved fruitless.

Up to this evening no bodies had come ashore. Reports by excited people who lined Park Point that bodies had been found this afternoon proved incorrect.

The general belief is that the Nobel missed the Duluth entrance, struck the point and foundered in very deep water. In addition to the high seas last night there was heavy mist and snow, and the Duluth entry light was out.

MEDIATION IN COLORADO WAR

district was there any serious trouble, although fighting throughout almost all of the strike zone was in progress almost all of last night. Troops from Fort D. A. Russell, Cheyenne, Wyo., arrived early to-day, and troops from Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, were expected to reach the State before night. The soldiers from Wyoming went to Canon City to take charge of the situation there, and the troops from Kansas probably will go to Trinidad.

Gov. Ammons announced his plan of action to be followed upon the arrival of the Federal troops.

"I will recall all State troops from the localities which are occupied by Federal soldiers," he said, "but the State troops will remain in those districts which would be otherwise unprotected. It does not seem that there will be enough of the Federal troops to station them at every point where lawlessness and rioting have been acute. They would have to be in Ludlow, Aguilar, Trinidad, Walsenburg, Canon City, Louisville, Lafayette, and at other mine camps near these towns.

"I do not believe the President's telegram to me concerning the withdrawal of State troops means that the President expects us to leave any portion unprotected, and I so advised him by telegraph. Gen. Chase and I have arranged for the recall of troops now at Canon City and at Ludlow just as soon as the Federal troops arrive. But the troopers at the other points will remain in the field until they actually are supplanted by the regulars."

Gov. Ammons expressed great relief at the arrival of the Federal troops, and Gen. Chase, who has been hard pressed as commander of the State troops since last Tuesday, remarked:

"Now, I'll take a bath and go to sleep."

Horace N. Hawkins, counsel for the United Mine Workers of America, reiterated his statement of yesterday that strike leaders will yield to the Federal troops and do everything in their power to restore order.

FIRE BUILDINGS WITH OIL.

Strikers at Forbes Repelled in Fierce Attack—Bravery of Japanese.

Special to The New York Times.

TRINIDAD, Col., April 29.—Ten men were killed, several others wounded, and most of the mine buildings are in ashes as the result of a battle at Forbes which began about 5 o'clock this morning. It lasted four hours. When the strikers, about 150 in number, left the hills to the east, west, and south and marched back to camp, reaching Trinidad about noon.

The dead at Forbes are: S. A. Newlan, mine blacksmith; Jack Smith, miner; Edward Kessler, miner. Three unidentified strikers, three unidentified Japanese, an unidentified negro.

The sole defense of the mine property, which extends for a mile and an eighth along Forbes canyon, fifteen miles from Trinidad and five miles from the militia camp at Ludlow, was that of Superintendent Nichol's force of guards and miners, fighting from below and greatly outnumbered.

When the men swarmed over the hills above Forbes their presence threatening the destruction of the camp below, the men at the mine sprang instantly to the defense. They had been expecting the attack and Superintendent Nichol had not slept for several nights. Last night he appealed for protection to the militia camp at Ludlow, to Trinidad and to Denver. Superintendents George Peart of the Rocky Mountain and Bert J. Mattison of the C. F. and I. Companies here both made futile efforts to have troops sent to the camp from Ludlow. All through the fight the force at the camp waited for the troops, and it was reported in Trinidad that they had gone, but none arrived.

The principal defense of the camp was a machine gun, mounted on a hill above the superintendent's office at the mine proper. It was effective for about half an hour, when it became choked. Nichol ordered three men to take charge of the handle and the rest of the gun was secreted after the fight. The men with the handle were among mine guards missing at noon.

Below the hill on which the machine gun was mounted near the searchlight, Superintendent Nichol stood at the telephone from 5 until 6:45 o'clock and tried to get help. At 6:45 the wires went down. Nichol, with two men who stood with him, dashed up the hill to cover and was uninjured. The women and children at the mine were safe from bullets, Nichol having ordered them into an abandoned tunnel on the hill below the machine gun. A rock wall was hastily constructed by the men when an attack on the mine by strikers was believed to be imminent. During the fight the men who defended the camp say, three strikers were seen to fall and roll down the hill. One of these fell against a tree and his body could be seen lodged there on the hill about a hundred yards above the camp. The wounded strikers were brought back to Trinidad by their fellows.

It was largely due to the courage of Nichol and his men that the mine was not completely captured. The battle raged over a wide stretch. At the lower end of the property the mine tipple, the boiler house, the United States Post Office, the store and the office were burned completely, the men at the camp charging that it was done with kerosene by men advancing under cover of a hail of bullets from the hills.

At the upper end of the tramway which runs through the narrow cañon where the main buildings are, the boarding house and the stables were burned down. Twenty-seven mules perished. All but one of the horses at the mine were shot and killed.

The Japanese of the camp, with ten rifles in their possession, made a gallant stand in the boarding house, and Nichol credits them with a large part of the work of saving the camp. Two of the dead Japanese were burned to a crisp. The other deaths occurred at that point, with the exception of that of Newman, who was killed on the track near the edge of the tipple, a short distance from the house of Dr. W. P. Woods, camp physician, who stuck to his post when houses on either side were ablaze.

Six men from the mine were captured by strikers when the guards and miners went out into the hills during the battle. They were turned loose soon afterward and returned to Forbes camp.

A party of newspaper reporters from Denver was the first to enter the camp after the battle.

SAW MILITIA FIRE TENTS.

Doctor and Rancher at Ludlow Camp Inquest Say Oil Was Used.

Special to The New York Times.

TRINIDAD, Col., April 29.—Aside from the Forbes and Trinidad battles the most dramatic of events to-day was the inquest began here over the bodies of the twenty-five victims of the Ludlow battle, including fourteen children and two women, by Coroner B. B. Sipe and District Attorney J. J. Hendricks.

Dr. Asa Harvey of Aguilar, physician for the union there, testified that after the firing in the tent colony at Ludlow had virtually subsided, and while the women and children lay in the "safety pits" the militiamen applied torches to the inflammable canvas. The physician told the Coroner's Jury that he and Frank Bayes, a ranchman, witnessed this deed.

The ranch house, in which many of the women and children refugees from the colony sought shelter, he testified, was under the troops' fire during the major part of the day. He exhibited a bullet which, he declared, smashed through a window casing and landed, spent, on the floor of one of the rooms in a corner of which a number of women and children huddled.

The physician also exhibited a white flag that he said he carried with him on a trip from the ranch to a water tank on the main line of the Colorado & Southern, near the colony where a man was reported to have been wounded. The flag showed the marks of five bullets, the first of a continuous fusilade from the militia's line, which, according to the physician, drove him to cover under an embankment and held him there for almost an hour. When he reached the water tank, he declared, the injured man was dying.

Dr. Harvey said he arrived at the Bayes ranch about 10:30 o'clock on the morning of the battle and found the ranch house crowded with refugees. "The troops were then shooting directly in to the house, but not at the tent colony," he declared. "They were elevating their rifles in an evident effort to reach the house in which the women and children were being quartered.

"I got out into the open and raised my white flag, the next moment a storm of bullets swept around me and I dodged back against a bank. Finally the firing slackened and I ran to the shelter of the bridge which crosses the Colorado & Southern tracks just north of the tent colony. Under it I found a wounded man dying. But the strikers told me of another who was in a cellar near the water tank.

"The cellar turned out to be a railroad well about 30 feet wide and 80 feet deep, equipped with stairs leading down, interrupted by large platforms. This place was crowded by women and children. Overhead swept a storm of bullets from a machine gun and from the militia's Springfields and Winchesters. I am certain that explosive ammunition was used by the troops.

"The firing continued until dark, when, under cover of a passing freight train, the women and children made their escape down an arroyo to the hills."

The fire in the tent colony commenced at about 7:30 o'clock that night, according to the physician, after he had returned to the Bayes ranch house.

"It started first at the southwest corner," he declared, "next to the railroad tracks. A store tent burned, and the big tent which was used for amusement purposes followed. Then the fire died out. It was renewed an hour and a half or two hours later by fire, which seemed to break out in many places at once. The flames could not have leaped from tent to tent in the creation of this blaze; the distances between were too great. The fire raged until the major part of the camp became a mass of glowing embers.

"The next morning, however, some of the tents were standing. Mr. Bayes and myself—Mr. Bayes had the telescope—were surveying the ruins. We saw troops enter the colony with oil and after saturating the tents which remained upright, ignite them. These soon were also reduced to embers. The firing on the Bayes ranch continued until 2 o'clock that afternoon in spite of the fact that women and children were quartered there."

Rancher Bayes, interrogated by the jury at Ludlow, told substantially the same story. The inquest will be resumed to-day.

REPLIES TO ROCKEFELLER.

Keating Quotes Grand Jury Account of Conditions in Colorado.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The statement of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., issued from his New York office last night, in which he reiterated that the question of unionism in his Colorado mines is a matter of principle and cannot be arbitrated, provoked a reply on the floor of the House to-day. Representative Keating of Colorado, after inserting the Rockefeller statement in the record, declared that the domination of the Rockefellers in the strike district had made it practically impossible to enforce laws and protect human life.

"I am familiar with the efforts made in the Legislature to procure the enactment of the laws affecting labor," he said, "and I want to say that every one of the laws referred to by Mr. Rockefeller was placed on the statute books in Colorado in the face of the bitter and the continued opposition of Mr. Rockefeller's company, and that after we succeeded in getting these laws, Mr. Rockefeller's company refused to obey them. They have gone into the counties where they have operators, obtained control of the governmental machinery, and in that way succeeded in suspending the enforcement of the law so far as the coal mining companies are concerned.

Federal Grand Jury's Testimony.

"I have here a summary of a report submitted by a Federal Grand Jury in Colorado, which was brought together last September. This Grand Jury was not made up of friends of the labor unions. One of the acts of this Grand Jury was to return indictments against the leaders of the miners' union that he had violated the Sherman Anti-Trust Law, and yet that Grand Jury reported 'that State laws have not been enforced so as to give all persons concerned the benefits under the law; that coal companies have nominated, elected and controlled county officers; that such county officers had shown undue activity in controlling elections and have aroused political dissatisfaction.'"

Continuing, Mr. Keating read from the report of the Grand Jury:

"'Many camp marshals, whose appointments and salaries are controlled by the coal companies, have exercised a system of espionage and have resorted to arbitrary powers of police control, acting as judge and jury and passing sentence. These camp marshals have brutally assaulted miners, and the miners cannot complain of real grievances without being discharged. The scrip system is still in effect, and miners feel under an unjust obligation to trade at the company's stores because of the attitude of mine superintendents in denying the miners check weighmen to see that the miners got full credit for the coal sent out of the shafts.'"

Mr. Keating averred that Colorado laws were enforced throughout the State except in the counties of Huerfano and Las Animas, the two counties where Mr. Rockefeller and his associates dominate the situation.

"In these counties," he said, "they have owned every public official for the last ten years as absolutely as the members of this House own their coats, and it has been impossible in these counties to obtain an enforcement of the law. As a result, while in those two counties there were killed twenty-six times as many men in our coal mines in proportion to the number employed as were killed in Austria in 1910, not a single Coroner's jury during those ten years brought in a verdict holding a coal mine company responsible. In Las Animas County a Judge of the court there has not permitted a single damage suit to go to a jury, and from evidence before the Secretary of State 106 men were killed in the coal mines of that county, and 366 were seriously injured.

"If we had nothing else to answer Mr. Rockefeller's statement except these figures, they would be sufficient to convince any reasonable man that conditions in Southern Colorado are not what they should be."

Representative Keating complained of his own State administration and the manner in which Gov. Ammons handled the strike question.

"There is something dreadfully wrong with things, especially in that section of Colorado," he said, "and I do not approve of the manner in which the Governor of my State has handled the militia. He has made the great mistake of permitting the militia to be turned over to the coal mining companies. He has made the mistake of compelling those militiamen practically to take the place once occupied by the gunmen from West Virginia."

Interrupted by Representative Madden of Illinois, who asked this question: "Do you not think the Governor of Colorado ought to be impeached?" Mr. Keating answered: "I leave that to the people of the State."

Kindel Attacks the Unions.

Representative Kindel of Denver, who is a manufacturer himself and has had trouble with union labor, commended the efforts of the mining corporations to maintain the open shop policy.

"I am not here to defend Rockefeller," said he. "I have condemned him in the past for starting the rebate system and other things, but I want to commend Mr. Rockefeller, Junior, for his statement in opposition to the open shop. We have had these troubles in Colorado ever since the Western Federation of Miners established itself there. I, too, have been assailed with the demand to make my open shop a closed shop. The people of Denver could not even drive their teams through the streets unless some striker came up and cut the harness off, but they did not cut mine. The unions out there have been dictatorial. What right have the unions to say to a man that he cannot work unless he pays an initiation fee to the union?"

Mr. Kindel, who is a mattress manufacturer, related his trials with the unions, and was interrupted by Representative Treadway of Massachusetts, who chided him for defending Rockefeller.

"Rockefeller has made more combinations than any other man in the country," said Mr. Treadway. "He is a wolf in that line."

Representative Foster of Illinois, who went to see Mr. Rockefeller Monday in behalf of the President, took no part in the debate. The Congressman and his colleagues were chagrined to-day when they learned that young Mr. Rockefeller had taken the precaution to keep a stenographic account of Mr. Foster's statements in the Rockefeller offices, while no such precaution had been taken by the Congressman himself.

CALLS STATEMENT UNTRUE.

Miners' Secretary Says Settlement Rests with Rockefeller.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—William E. Green, Secretary-Treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America, issued the following to-night in reply to the statement made by John D. Rockefeller, Jr.:

"Mr. Rockefeller's declaration upon the matters in dispute between the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company and the striking miners are absolutely inaccurate. For instance, it is not true that the company settled, before the strike, the five points which Mr. Rockefeller mentioned—the eight-hour workday, semi-monthly pay, check weighmen, regulation of company stores, and increased wages. Indeed, had these points been conceded at the time stated by Mr. Rockefeller the strike would never have been inaugurated.

"Nor is it true, as Mr. Rockefeller says, that the question in contention is the unionizing of the mines. This has not been and is not now the issue. But any one can judge for himself what opportunity individual workmen can have when the company, with all its millions, is adjusting individual grievances.

"It was hoped that the five points mentioned by Mr. Rockefeller would be the subject of collective bargaining for their establishment and their maintenance, and that grievances when presented would not be turned to the injury or to the loss of employment of the individual workmen who might have the courage or the temerity to present individually grievances for the rectification of wrongs or the establishment of rights.

"Of course the right to work is inherent. If, however, the miners exercise their right as guaranteed by the Constitution and the laws of our country to have a collective voice in establishing the conditions under which they shall work or shall not work, it ought not to be and cannot be denied by Mr. Rockefeller. A settlement of the strike in Colorado rests entirely with Mr. Rockefeller. The question of unionizing the mines is not the issue. The employes of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company have repeatedly asked that they be permitted to present their grievances for adjustment through committees which they might select for this purpose. They are ready to do so now, but the representatives of the coal companies will not meet with them. How can a settlement be brought about unless the representatives of both sides meet and understand each other fully?

"If Mr. Rockefeller's representatives in Colorado will meet the representatives of their employees, either directly or indirectly, hear and adjust the well-founded grievances which they have to present, enter into an agreement by which individual grievances can be adjusted as they may arise in the future, peace and tranquillity can be established in the Colorado coal fields. The responsibility for a continuation of the industrial war in Colorado rests fairly and squarely with Mr. Rockefeller. He cannot hide behind the excuse that the unionizing of the mines is the real bone of contention."

TALK OF RAISING REGIMENT.

Anarchist League Plan to Recruit Fighters for Colorado.

Alexander Berkman, the Chairman of the Anti-Militarist League of the Anarchists, announced last evening that he had sent the following telegram to President Wilson in reference to the sending of Federal troops to Colorado:

> President Wilson.
> We will hold you personally responsible for the strikers' blood shed by Federal troops for the protection of Rockefeller's profits.
> ANTI-MILITARIST LEAGUE OF NEW YORK. Per Chairman,
> ALEXANDER BERKMAN.

Berkman said that the league would open recruiting stations within the next few days for the purpose of sending a regiment to assist the Colorado strikers. A call would also be issued, he said, for volunteers for this regiment.

"We will issue calls for volunteers," he continued, "at 10 o'clock on Friday forenoon at Mulberry Bend Park, later in the day at Union Square, and at a mass meeting at night at Cooper Union. We have sent money already to the local of the striking miners at Colorado, and, if necessary, will send weapons and ammunition. That will be a matter on which the Denver local of the United Mine Workers will advise us. I will issue the first call for volunteers for our regiment at the Franklin Statue in Printing House Square to-morrow."

"Wild Joe" O'Carroll said now that the unemployed had for the most part gone to the country, the I. W. W. would start a propaganda among the employed. It would hold meetings at the gates of the mills and at the street corners.

THREATEN GENERAL STRIKE.

Kansas Miners Call on President to Investigate Colorado Trouble.

PITTSBURGH, Kan., April 29.—Unless President Wilson takes immediate steps to investigarte the strike situation in the Trinidad, Colo., strike district, the district convention of the United Mine Workers in session here will ask that a general strike of mine workers throughout the country be called.

This statement was contained in resolutions adopted by the convention to-day with instructions that they be telegraphed to Washington. The resolutions also stated that the convention, in the event of the President's refusal, would ask John P. White, as President of the United Mine Workers of America, to use his influence to have called a general strike of all bodies affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

FINED FOR HAZING I. W. W.

Murphy, Who Interfered with Their Orations, Pays $3 for His Fun.

Martin W. Murphy, the first member of a crowd to be arrested at the Franklin statue in Park Row for hazing Anarchist and I. W. W. agitators, was fined $3 yesterday by Magistrate Simms in the Tombs Court.

Murphy was arrested on Tuesday afternoon for interfering with Becky Edelson, Joseph Shatzke, and other soap-box orators. Shatzke, who appeared as a witness against him, testified that Murphy had attempted to create disorder and break up the meeting.

Leonard D. Abbott, President of the Free Speech League, said the result of the hearing was a great triumph for those who felt that they had a right to hold soap-box rallies. He said that hereafter the police would back the speakers up in this right and prevent rowdies from mobbing them, instead of arresting the speakers themselves.

DEBRIS IN MINE BLOCKS RESCUERS

Experts Fear the Worst for 171 Men Entombed—Dr. Holme Alone Sanguine.

CHANCE OF SOME SURVIVING

Federal Head Won't Abandon Hope—Medical Supplies Rushed—Three Investigations Started.

Special to The New York Times.

ECCLES, W. Va., April 29.—If death has not already overtaken the 171 miners now known to be entombed in Mine No. 5, of the New River Collieries Company, following explosions yesterday near the bottom of the shaft, 555 feet from the surface, that fate is facing them, in the opinion of mine experts on the scene, who declared to-day that there was absolutely no hope for the men. Only Dr. J. A. Holmes, Chief of the United States Bureau of Mines, who arrived from Washington this afternoon to direct the work of the Government rescue crews from Bluefield and Pittsburgh, is of the contrary opinion.

"I will not believe they are all dead until the last body is brought to the surface," he said. "There remains the faint possibility that some of them at least are imprisoned in the far recess of the mine, where the force of the explosion was but slightly felt, and where the deadly after damp failed to reach. The horror at Cherry, Ill., a few years ago serves as an example. In the Cherry disaster every man in the mine was declared dead, but after eight days rescue parties headed by J. W. Paull penetrated some of the distant entries, and brought out men alive, all of whom recovered."

Mr. Paull is assisting the work here, arriving at noon to-day in charge of the Pittsburgh mine rescue car.

Earl Petry, Chief of the West Virginia Mine Department; Gen. Supt. Bayless of the New River Collieries Company, and Gov. H. D. Hatfield, who has had extensive experience in the mining fields, expressed the opinion that every man of the 171 was dead, probably immediately killed by the force of the explosion or suffocated to death by the terrible fumes.

After working all day and all night to clear out the gas fumes in the shaft, Mine Chief Henry and his assistants were successful in their efforts at noon. In the afternoon, after rigid tests for gas had been made, Mr. Henry led the first rescue party to enter the mine down the shaft, accompanied by Deputy Inspector J. B. Holliday, Deputy R. Y. Muir, W. F. Mandle, Superintendent of the Sunday Creek mine; T. H. Huddy, General Superintendent of the Boomer mines; Jesse Hinsley, in charge of the Bluefield rescue car, and General Superintendent Bayless of the ill fated mine.

Early in the day the cage had stopped at a depth of 375 feet, or 125 feet from the bottom. The progress of the exploring party was blocked at the same point. A few minutes later they were brought to the surface. They reported the air good, but had been unable to determine the cause of the car's hindered progress. A second party, equipped with electric lights, was sent down and found the trouble due to the shattering of the framework and cage guides.

Further efforts to reach the bottom were postponed pending repairs to the framework by experts. It was nearly 10 o'clock to-night before repairs were completed, and the way was reopened for continuing the search for victims, living or dead. It is in this work that Government rescue crews with their oxygen equipment will aid.

Excitement was caused for a time when members of a rescue party, who had been working in mine No. 6, reported that they had heard sounds coming from mine No. 5 through débris blocking the connecting entry of the operations. A close watch kept at the entry to detect any further sounds was without results late to-night.

The cause of the explosions has not been really established, though it is supposed that there was negligence either on the part of the mine officia's or by one of the men, who may have unwittingly failed to observe the regulations regarding precautions against danger in the gaseous chambers.

Three investigations are being instituted, one by Prosecuting Attorney J. I. Hutchinson and Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Will Maxwell, another by Chief Henry, of the State Mine bureau, and a third by officials of the United Mine Workers, headed by District President L. C. Romers.

The county and State investigations will probably be conducted jointly at an inquest to be held before Justice L. C. Shrewsbury of Beckley, immediately upon the recovery of the bodies.

One hundred and eighty-one dead, two injured and sixty-seven rescued are the official figures announced by the Public Service Commission this evening after spending all day checking up the men in both No. 5 and No. 6 mines. Only nine bodies had been recovered at 9 o'clock, all from No. 6. The following is a corrected list of the dead:

F. G. Lingerman, mine foreman; A. W. Brougham, Carl Warden, Joe Harper, L. Goodman, all Americans; Joe Filler, Frank Filler, John Bennett, Polish, and Robert Bospic, injured by flying timbers after escape from the shaft, who died at the McKendres Hospital.

The two men injured were foreigners, both hurt in the mad rush for the cage as it started to the surface after the explosion. One had both arms broken and the other both legs.

Freeman Linville, Charleston insurance agent, who went into No. 5 mine shortly before the explosion to collect payment from some of the men, is among the missing.

John Bennett, one of those killed in No. 6, was frightfully burned on the right side of the face and cut through in the back by flying timbers, though 800 yards from the actual explosion.

Twenty-five doctors have arrived here and a carload of coffins.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Medical and surgical supplies were rushed to-day to the scene of the mine disaster at Eccles, W. Va., by the American Red Cross.

Should Gov. Hatfield consider an appeal for funds necessary, the National Headquarters of the Red Cross, it was announced, was prepared to head the list of contributions with $500.

NOT SURE ALL ARE LOST.

Men May Be Where Gas Didn't Penetrate, Says Director Ritchie.

Instructions to spare no expense in their efforts to rescue the men imprisoned in mine No. 5 of the New River Collieries Company's coal workings at Eccles, West Va., were telegraphed yesterday to the officials there from the New York offices at 165 Broadway. Franklin Guiterman, President of the company, accompanied by Dr. A. P. Neil, who is in charge of the safety and welfare work for the Guggenheim interests, caught an early train yesterday morning on their way to the scene of the explosion. Mr. Guiterman will take charge of the rescue work.

S. R. Ritchie, a Director of the company, said:

"The section in which our mines are located is listed as 'gaseous,' but I don't think that necessarily indicates that the men still in the shaft are to be considered lost. Hope that they can be taken out alive lies in the fact that the explosion would naturally have followed the lines of least resistance, and the released gases would have sought the opening of the mine. It is quite probable that the part the men were in was obstructed by dirt, coal, and débris when the explosion occurred, and that no gas penetrated the obstruction.

"The explosion occurred between 2 and 3 o'clock, we learned. Except for what food may have been in their lunch boxes, the imprisoned miners have had no food since that time, and may also be suffering for water."

Mr. Ritchie did not think the explosion was caused by a miner's lamp, as every precaution had been taken to see that all equipment was safe.

"It is probable, however," he said, "that in firing to break down a wall of coal, a natural gas chamber was opened up and exploded. This mining section is filled with them."

He said this was the first serious accident the company has had in West Virginia since it opened the mines five years ago. The largest mine of the six operated by the company, No. 3, was not affected.

The New River Colleries Company is a New Jersey corporation, with a capital of $10,000,000, and is controlled by the Guggenheim interests. Its Directors include J. S. Bache, William Loeb, Jr., L. F. Rothschild, William E. Bennett, Secretary of the American Smelting and Refining Company, and Murry and S. R. Guggenheim.

$405 FOR A SHAKESPEARE.

Fourth Folio Among Old Books Sold at Anderson Galleries.

The sale of the late Bishop William Croswell Doane's library and of items from other collections was concluded at the Anderson Art Galleries yesterday. The total for the day's session was $4,821.60 and for the entire sale $15,877.50.

James F. Drake paid $405, the highest price of the day, for a copy of the Fourth Folio Shakespeare, London, 1685. It is "Variation No. 4," according to the E. D. Church catalogue. Its joints are restored, one leaf is mended in the lower corner, and two leaves are slightly spotted. Otherwise it is a fine example.

An extra-illustrated copy of the "Life and Times of Sir Joshua Reynolds" went to Charles Sessler of Philadelphia for $110, and he also gave $100 for Oliver Goldsmith's "Vicar of Wakefield," London, 1817, illustrated with twenty-four colored plates by Thomas Rowlandson. "Poems by J. R.," (John Ruskin,) London, 1850, the rare first edition, of which only fifty copies were printed for private circulation, was also obtained by Mr. Sessler for $180.

H. Mischke paid $100 for nineteen original pen-and-ink sketches by Robert Seymour, signed with his initials. Seymour illustrated the first edition of Charles Dickens's "Pickwick Club." Gabriel Weis gave $160 for an extra-illustrated copy of Ida M. Tarbell's "Life of Abraham Lincoln."

An interesting letter by George Meredith, Aug. 1, 1894, containing a reproach to the public for neglecting his poems, brought $16. The original manuscript of "Ali's Bride. A Tale from the Persian," entirely in the handwriting of Thomas Moore, sold for $46. A letter signed by Letizia Ramolino, mother of Napoleon I., brought $17.50. A letter of Empress Marie Louise, dated Sept. 7, 1839, went for $12.50, and a slip of paper, on which was written "Thy Cordiall friend, Wm. Penn.," realized the same sum.

A document signed by Samuel Pepys and Admiral Sir William Penn, June 27, 1667, brought $9.50. A document signed by Queen Anne, April 2, 1702, and addressed to the Earl of Rochester, commanding him to attend her coronation, sold for $28. A letter of Sir Walter Scott brought $19. F. R. Arnold paid $77 for an uncut copy of the first edition of William M. Thackeray's "Comic Tales and Sketches." James F. Drake gave $42 for the scarce first edition of the same author's "Book of Snobs," uncut copy in the original green wrappers. A first edition of "Pendennis" sold for $40, and a first edition of "The Orphan of Pimlico" brought $41.

Daughter Inherits Estate of Miss Douglass' Aged Wooer.

George Henry Hughes, Vice President of the Standard Oil Cloth Company of 320 Broadway, who died on the Mauretania on Nov. 26, 1911, left a net estate of $233,095, according to an appraisal filed yesterday. The sole beneficiary was his adopted daughter, Mrs. Jeannette Jones of London.

The report shows that Mr. Hughes had drawn up this agreement: "I promise to provide a sum of money for my dear daughter, Elizabeth C. Richardson, which will give her an income of from two to three thousand dollars a year after I am gone, for her loving kindness and good care of me." The report also shows that this agreement was settled upon the payment of $7,500 by the executor of the estate.

Mr. Hughes attracted considerable attention the last year of his life by his attentions, at the age of 79, to Miss Kathleen Douglass, who was 26. The couple obtained a marriage license on April 15, 1911, but at about the time that the wedding was to have taken place, Mr. Hughes disappeared. Miss Douglass then laid plans for a $100,000 breach of promise suit.

CALLS W. R. SHEEHAN THE MAN HIGHER UP

WITNESS AGAINST SKELLEY

Asserts She Gave $65 for Protection to ex-Policeman Now Being Tried on Bribery Charge.

The name of Winfield R. Sheehan, Secretary to Rhinelander Waldo, when Waldo was Police Commissioner, was mentioned yesterday by a disorderly resort keeper in proceedings before Justice Seabury in the Criminal Term of the Supreme Court as one of those for whom collectors of protection money asserted that they were acting.

Mrs. Alice Walker was the chief witness for the prosecution at the trial of John J. Skelley, formerly attached to the West 100th Street Station, for bribery. On direct examination by Royal H. Weller, Assistant District Attorney, Mrs. Walker testified that in August, 1912, she paid Skelley $65 for protection. She added that she had made other payments to men who said they represented high officials.

"Will you name the persons to whom you paid money?" said Clarke L. Jordan, Skelley's attorney, on cross examination.

Mrs. Walker turned to Justice Seabury. "Must I tell this?" she asked.

"This matter is being investigated by the District Attorney," Mr. Weller interposed. "I request that it be not made part of the record."

Justice Seabury held that in cross-examination the witness had no privilege in the circumstances and directed her to answer.

"I made one payment to Mr. Norton," Mrs. Walker said.

"What about Norton? Who is he? Where is he?" asked Mr. Jordan.

"I have no idea where he is. He is supposed to be a collector of Mr. Sheehan."

"Who was Sheehan?"

"At that time he was Secretary to Commissioner Waldo."

"That is, you paid a representative of Commissioner Waldo?"

"Yes."

"How much did you pay him?"

"One hundred dollars."

Mrs. Walker swore that she also paid money to a man named Cooper. She testified that he asserted he represented the Controller's office and also former Inspector Sweeney. The witness said that Cooper was sent to her by a man she knew, Jerry Brown. She swore that she paid him $60.

"When Skelley came to me," Mrs. Walker testified, "I told him that we had been paying Inspector Sweeney's men. He told me that was absurd, and said he was Capt. Zimmerman's right-hand man and the only one who could do anything for us. He was sent out to make a report, he said. I had been a nurse, and I told him to report that I was a nurse. When he came again I asked him what it would cost for the report. He said $65 a month. 'Is that the best you can do?' I asked him. 'There are only three of us.'

"Finally I agreed to pay the $65 a month. On the last Thursday night in August, I went to Charles Vassen, to whom I frequently gave money to keep for me. I asked him for a roll of bills I had left in his care, and I took $65 from it to pay Skelley."

Vassen was put on the stand to corroborate Mrs. Walker's testimony. The sum of money in the roll which he mentioned was different from the sum mentioned by Mrs. Walker. He swore that she took about $60 from the roll.

Police Capt. Alphonse G. Rhaeune, who was a Lieutenant in Skelley's precinct, testified that Skelley sometimes prepared reports for the Captain of the precinct. He said that usually he did not wear a uniform.

Florence Halloway, who was an inmate of Mrs. Walker's resort during July, August, and September, 1912, was examined at the night session. She swore that she was in the house the last night in August, when the collector called. On cross-examination she admitted that she could not say that Skelley was the man.

"The man that called seems to me to have been taller," she said.

After the witness had concluded Mr. Weller asked that the indictment be amended so as to change the date from Aug. 21 to Aug. 29, and Justice Seabury allowed the amendment. Mr. Jordan moved for the dismissal of the indictment on the ground that the witnesses were not worthy of credence. Justice Seabury denied the motion.

Mr. Jordan, in outlining the defense, said the reason Mrs. Walker testified that Skelley called on the last Thursday in August was that she learned in the juryroom Skelley was out of the city on Aug. 21, the date mentioned in the indictment. Skelley was the first witness for the defense. He said that the case was a "frame-up."

Mrs. Walker is now living in Virginia, where she is employed as a nurse. She had been working on a case for two months, she asserted. Justice Seabury would not permit her to give the name of the person she was caring for. She said that she got her training at Garfield Hospital, Washington, and worked as a nurse two years before she became a disorderly resort keeper. She swore that she had resorts at several different addresses, and that altogether she employed fourteen girls.

Several weeks ago Mrs. Walker was tried in General Sessions on a white slavery charge. The jury disagreed and she is now out on bail on the charge. She denied yesterday that she was guilty of the crime alleged.

PLAN CATHEDRAL WINDOWS.

Trustees Decide on Seven to Depict Story of St. John.

Cathedral Trustees yesterday determined the scheme for the seven great windows to surround the sanctuary and awarded to Powell of London the contract for three of them. They are to tell the story of St. John the Divine as recorded in his Revelation. Each window is to be 17 feet wide and 28 feet high, and made of thirteenth century English glass.

The Whitelaw Reid memorial window, which is directly above the Belmont chapel and over the end of the apse, has for subject "The Light of the World." As such it fits in with the general scheme of the Revelation story. One of the windows contracted for yesterday is directly above the St. Columba chapel, or King memorial.

A second window is that above the St. Martin chapel, yet to be built, and is the first at the right of the Reid memorial. The third window, ordered yesterday, is above the St. Ambrose chapel, erected by Mrs. George L. Rives, and consecrated only last week. It was stated that the windows were to cost about $5,000 each.

The Trustees yesterday reserved plots at the northeast corner of the Cathedral site, fronting on Morningside Avenue and 113th Street, for residences for Cathedral canons. Cram & Ferguson, the Boston architects, were formally appointed architects for the nave, the building of which is expected to start next Fall.

INSPECTORS MISSED A PINT OF DIAMONDS

Brought Over in Mauretania's Steerage by German Miners, Who Paid No Duty.

3 ARRESTED AS SMUGGLERS

Offered Uncut Gems to a Dealer, Who Notified Authorities—Seized Stones Valued at $57,496.

Two men, who asserted that they were German miners from South Africa, and a third, who is a British subject and was associated with them, according to their story, only as an interpreter, were arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner Houghton on the charge of having illegally brought into this country more than $57,000 worth of uncut diamonds. The stones, most of which were small, filled a vessel of a pint capacity to the brim. They are in danger of forfeiture to the Government. The defendants offered to pay duty when arrested, but were told it was then too late to declare the diamonds.

The attention of the customs authorities was called to the men by a Maiden Lane jeweler. On Tuesday afternoon the three men came to his store and offered the gems for sale. They were, most of them, contained in a regular jeweler's sale case, although a few of the larger ones were wrapped up in a small paper parcel.

The dealer, whose identity the Government will not disclose, asked the men into his private office and questioned them closely. He suspected that there was something irregular about the entry of the diamonds into this country, and summoned Charles L. Robinson, Assistant Secretary of the American Jewelers' Protective Association, who, after a talk with the men, called up the customs authorities. Special Treasury Agent N. C. Brooks and Customs Inspector C. J. Coffee were sent to look into the matter. They seized the gems and took the men to the Custom House.

There the men said they were August Fischer and Emil Propelle, German diamond miners from South Africa, and Benjamin Idelson, a British subject, with whom the others had scraped an acquaintance aboard ship, and who, they said, had nothing to do with the matter except as an interpreter.

The miners said they had landed in this country from the Mauretania on April 24, and intended to find jobs as bricklayers. Before doing that they thought that they had better dispose of their diamonds. Asked as to the payment of the duty on the gems, which is 10 per cent. ad valorem, they said that they as steerage passengers had never been asked to declare what goods they had with them, but that the diamonds had been in their baggage. This had been examined by the Customs Inspector and passed. They were, they said, quite willing to pay any duty demanded.

It appeared that Propelle, who had the larger lot of diamonds, carried them in an old cigar box, while Fischer had his share in a paper package. The customs authorities refused to accept the duty and sent the defendants to the Federal Building, where their case was placed in the hands of Assistant United States District Attorney Frank E. Carstarphen. He notified the German and British Consuls of the arrest of men of their nationalities and arranged the prisoners before Commissioner Houghton, Fischer and Propelle on the charge of smuggling and Idelson on the charge of aiding and abetting them. The men were held for examination on May 7 and in default of bail were committed to the Tombs.

It was later estimated by the customs appraisers that the larger package contained jewels of 2017¼ karats weight, the foreign value of $50,431.25, which, with 10 per cent. duty added, had a value in this country of $55,474.38, while the smaller package contained gems of 63¼ karats weight of the foreign value of $1,838 and a value in this country of $2,021.80. Together the two packages have a value here of $57,496.18 and on them duty of $5,226.92 is due.

Assistant District Attorney Carstarphen is investigating to see if the men are as they profess, mere miners, or are the agents of a widespread conspiracy to smuggle gems by means of steerage passengers. So far no confirmation of the conspiracy theory has been found, and it is thought that if the defendants had experienced colleagues they would not have tried to sell the diamonds openly to a respectable Maiden Lane firm, but would have disposed of them through the usual fence.

N. Y. U. ALUMNI DINE.

L. B. Reid, '43, Answers Roll Call—$1,000,000 Fund Plans.

Two hundred and fity alumni of the College of Arts and the School of Applied Science of New York University, representing classes as far back as that of 1843, met last night at the Hotel Martinique for their annual reunion dinner. By far the most interesting was Lewis B. Reid, one of the survivors of the class of '43, bent with age, his hair white, but still able to rise easily in response to the cheers of the later graduates. His was not the only class of over half a century to make a good showing, for six men of the class of '63 also were present to answer to the roll call and to receive cheers.

The main topic of the speakers was the $1,000,000 fund campaign, plans for which are now being laid, and much enthusiasm was displayed by the graduates in reference to it. Dean-Elect Archibald L. Bouton spurred on the alumni in a stirring speech, in which he clearly set forth the need of endowments to carry on the work of the school.

Joseph French Johnston, Dean of the School of Commerce, told of the work which he had already done in the way of interesting those who can afford to give.

"Every university needs capital stock as much as any business institution or bank," said the dean, "and I will strangle somebody if I don't match every dollar put out by members of the alumni of the School of Commerce."

Chancellor Brown referred to the need of money in the rapid growth made by the university in the last year and spoke of the steadily rising standard which is aiding materially in increasing the number of students. Dean Francis Hovey Stoddard, retiring Dean of the College of Arts, spoke of the forward position held by the university in the adoption of new courses and measures.

Lastly, William M. Kingsley, Vice President of the United States Trust Company and Treasurer of the University, outlined the plans which are being formed for systematic giving by classes.

IS IT WASTED?

A PROMINENT uptown builder needed cash and traded an apartment house he owned.

Among other things he received some lots in South Orange that were supposed to be free and clear.

He decided not to waste any money on title insurance. Within a month he received a notice to pay the interest on a $16,000 mortgage on the lots.

This unexpected mortgage took all the profit out of the deal.

There are worse ways of wasting money than in title insurance.

The First Pictures From Vera Cruz

A striking photograph showing the actual landing of American sailors and marines under the protecting fire of the giant guns of our fleet reached New York from Vera Cruz late last Tuesday evening by fast mail from Vera Cruz via Galveston.

It was not only in the first batch of pictures to reach New York since our troops seized Vera Cruz, but it was by all odds the best.

It will be reproduced in the Picture Section of next Sunday's Times. With it will be another picture nearly as interesting showing our sailors, under the Stars and Stripes, actually landing on Mexican soil.

Together with these notable photographs there will be a number of others showing thousands of American soldiers and sailors leaving the United States to reinforce our men already in Mexico. Since the Spanish-American War, sixteen years ago, no such scenes have been witnessed on this continent. It is history in the making, told in pictures and the best pictures obtainable.

You will be sorry if you do not see them. Ask your newsdealer to save you a copy of next Sunday's Times.

ULSTER CRISIS IS AT AN END

Ex-Premier Balfour, in Speech in Parliament, Makes Home Rule Compromise Possible.

CARSON IS CONCILIATORY.

Things Had Looked Gloomier Than Ever Before Mr. Balfour Made His Offer.

LORDS MAY AMEND BILL

This Likely to be the Procedure Adopted—Plan for Time Limit on Ulster's Decision Abandoned.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, April 30.—A settlement of the Ulster question has at last come definitely into sight. The Irish Home Rule bill will be placed on the statute book, but Ulster will have full freedom to remain outside the operation of the measure. This exclusion will be limited only by Ulster's decision, upon which no time limit will be placed.

Yesterday brought the psychological moment, the critical hour, in the dramatic story of Ulster's opposition to Irish Nationalist domination. Peace and war, coercion and rebellion, hung in the scales. On both sides of Parliament the issues raised inspired a wholesome dread. On both sides were extremists ready, in First Lord of the Admiralty Churchill's words, to "put the matter to the proof."

The Cabinet itself was divided in its councils. The Liberal rank and file were chafing under the gun-running episodes, which the Unionists flaunted in their faces.

Many Liberals were urging the Government to move 10,000 troops into Ulster. The Covenanters, on their side, were provided with an ample stock of arms and ammunition.

Had yesterday's debate progressed along the lines on which it opened on Tuesday the Government would have been forced by its supporters to abandon its hesitation and meet the threats of rebellion with measures of repression. Then Ulster would probably have become a scene of civil war and Great Britain a spectacle for the world to gibe at.

To ex-Premier Balfour belongs the credit for intervening at the psychological moment, for turning the scales in favor of peace.

Mr. Churchill's appeal on Tuesday night had, it is true, prepared the way in some degree, but the Unionists suspected the sincerity of his personal offer, and the Liberals very generally resented it. Mr. Churchill in the view of both parties was distinctly not the man to hold out the olive branch.

When Premier Asquith at the outset of yesterday's debate stated in answer to Lord Robert Cecil that Mr. Churchill's suggestions on Tuesday were made on his (Mr. Churchill's) own account and not on behalf of the Government, the Liberals cheered. Even at that stage the omens all pointed to a bitter debate, calculated to make the Ulster problem more thorny than before.

Mr. Balfour's Speech.

Then Mr. Balfour rose. He had been the most powerful opponent of Home Rule for a generation. His detestation of the measure that he has fought unswervingly throughout his career has been one of the chief obstacles in its path in these later years, and also one of the greatest stumbling blocks in the way of compromise.

In a passage rare in parliamentary eloquence, Mr. Balfour abandoned his cherished convictions. His speech was a virtual confession that Home Rule was inevitable, by a man thirty years foremost in the fight against it.

After saying that nothing would avert the horrors of civil war except the exclusion of Northeastern Ulster from the operation of the bill, Mr. Balfour asked the Liberals not to think that exclusion would be regarded as a triumph over them by the Opposition. If anybody thought that he (Mr. Balfour) would regard it as a triumph, he little understood the ideal for which he had striven. He had spent the greater part of his life in opposing Home Rule. He had cherished the hope that by the removal of grievances and the smoothing away of inequalities ancient memories would be softened in Ireland and there would grow up common loyalty and common hopes and that all this might be accomplished under one Parliament.

If now, Mr. Balfour said, a Parliament were to be established in Dublin, it would mark the failure of a life's work, an admission that the cause for which he had most striven was fated to break down and that his long labors in the House and out of it had not borne fruition as he had hoped they would.

Sir Edward Carson Agrees.

Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster leader, followed in a strain as different from his customary truculence as chalk from cheese. He expressed his willingness to promote a settlement if Ulster were left out of the operation of the Home Rule bill pending a federal scheme.

Premier Asquith voiced the opinion of the House when he said that the speeches of Mr. Balfour and Sir Edward Carson were likely to prove landmarks in the history of this controversy.

The House rose with a practically unanimous belief that a way to a settlement was now cleared. Discussion as to the method by which it will be reached has already begun. Though this cannot yet be predicated with certainty, it is considered likely that the Home Rule bill as it now stands will be voted by the House of Commons and sent up to the House of Lords, where an amendment excluding Ulster will be passed and afterward accepted by the Government.

The exact details of the settlement and the Parliamentary procedure to be followed, of course, yet remain to be worked out but unless the best authorities on both sides are making a grievous error, the Ulster question has now been settled.

The Morning Post says that last night's debate in the House of Commons would seem to justify the hope of a peaceful settlement of the Irish crisis, but remarks that it must not be forgotten that the Government is dependent on the Nationalist vote and therefore can assent to no terms which are not indorsed by Mr. Redmond. It adds:

"It must also be remembered that the Nationalist leader described the last proposal made by the Government as the extreme limit of concession."

The Daily Telegraph says the hope of a settlement is nearer realization than ever before, adding: "The way is happily open again for an advance toward compromise and appeasement."

ITALIAN COUNTESS TRIED FOR MURDER

Mme. Tiepolo-Oggioni Says She Killed Husband's Orderly in Self-Defense.

SUGGESTION OF INSANITY

But Court Refuses Examination of Countess's Mental Condition — Dead Man's Mother Faints.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

ROME, April 29.—The trial of Countess Tiepolo-Oggioni, a member of a noble Venetian family, accused of the murder of the orderly of her husband, Capt. Oggioni, is causing a great sensation. A large crowd gathered to-day at Oneglia, near Genoa, where the Assizes are being held.

Both the defense and the press used great influence to prevent a trial behind closed doors. They to-day obtained the promise of the President of the Court that he would not have recourse to such a measure unless it were rendered necessary by unsuitable incidents.

When the mother of the dead soldier, who was a member of the Bersaglieri, entered the court to-day and saw the Countess she fell to the floor as if struck by lightning. Other relatives accompanying her, especially her daughter, Artemesia, wept and cast imprecations on the Countess. Doctors revived the old woman.

The trial began with a conflict of opinion, prosecuting counsel asking for an examination of the Countess's mental condition and her counsel refusing on the ground that she admitted full responsibility for the killing, having the right to do it in self-defense. The Court refused to order the proposed examination.

The examination of Countess Tiepolo lasted the whole afternoon. It was marked by emotional incidents. The accused described in the minutest detail the shooting of the orderly and what, she asserted, led up to it. She described her delicate condition and reconstructed the scene when, according to her statement, the orderly tried to attack her, her desperate efforts to repulse him, his violence, and his physical superiority. She said she used her nails and teeth and then her hand grasped a revolver and fired it. She knew nothing more.

The Countess collapsed in court after giving her testimony.

The Countess Tiepolo-Oggioni killed her husband's orderly, Polinanti, last Nov. 8 at San Remo. The Countess, who is a descendant of the famous Venetian painter, Tiepolo, was married to Capt. Oggioni eleven years ago. She is a beautiful woman, 33 years old.

At the time of the shooting, the Countess declared, the orderly entered her room and she killed him in defense of her honor. The dead orderly was a cousin of Germain de Tullio Murra, who, after a famous trial several years ago, was sentenced to thirty years' imprisonment for murdering his brother-in-law, Count Bon-Martini.

A short time before the shooting the Countess underwent a course of treatment for "apoplectic hysteria."

PRIEST FOR SUFFRAGISTS.

Father Power Addresses Votes for Women Meeting in Church Basement

"Isn't it like the modesty of the suffragettes to make me do everything when they were given the use of the hall on condition that I shouldn't do anything?" queried Father James W. Power of All Saints Roman Catholic Church in opening a meeting last night under the auspices of the St. Catherine Welfare Association, in the basement hall of the church, at which Miss Gertrude Mary O'Reilly of Dublin, Ireland, made a strong suffrage speech.

"'Are you a suffragette, Father Power?' people ask me," he continued. "Of course I am not a suffragette, but every one who knows me knows that I am in favor of the right of women to vote. The knowledge and remembrance I have of my mother, with all due respect to my father, makes me feel that she would have made a better voter for Empire or Republic than he. I had many sisters and brothers, and my brothers would not begin to count where my sisters were, and it is all this which makes me think that the most blessed day of the twentieth century will be the one when woman gets the universal right of the franchise."

Miss O'Reilly answered old familiar objections of the anti-suffragists, explaining in the beginning of her remraks that everything she would say would have reference to her own country.

"People say to me that I cannot be a practicing Catholic and a suffragist," she said, "because the church objects and I tell them of the churchmen who are in favor of it. Archbishops Spalding and Riordan, and Bishop Scannell of Omaha says if only one sex could have the vote he would take it from the men and give it to the women. But he is an Irishman and he was talking to me and Irishmen are always gallant to the women."

She told of Pope Innocent IV., who gave the franchise to every one over sixteen, irrespective of sex; of different women saints who had counseled even the Popes and their advice been taken.

A resolution was passed favoring a Federal amendment. Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont was one of the guests on the platform.

THIRD BLACKMAIL ARREST.

Armenian Accused of Conspiring to Get $7,000 from Rug Man.

Krikor Tovmasian, an Armenian, who is alleged to be a third member of the gang, which has been sending threatening letters to M. Karagheusian, a Philadelphia rug merchant, who has an establishment in this city at 354 Fourth Avenue, was arrested yesterday by Post Office Inspector Smith of the Philadelphia district in the Municipal Lodging House. Arraigned before Commissioner Houghton by Assistant District Attorney Edwin M. Stanton, he waived examination and consented to be sent back to Philadelphia to answer the charge awaiting him there. Tovmasian was locked up for the night in the Tombs.

Mr. Karagheusian, who is the financial backer of the Armenian Y. M. C. A. in this city, received last December several threatening letters demanding the payment of $7,000. He turned them over to the postal authorities and last Friday they arrested in Philadelphia Armanaz Kazazian, and in New Haven, Conn., Garabad Narinian, and held them in $15,000 bail each. Kazazian, who is only 24 years old, is accused by the Federal authorities of having ambushed and shot ten Turks in Turkey and of having slain an Armenian woman in Marseilles.

Method Consists of Intra-Muscular Injections—Lupus Also Said to Yield to Spahlinger's Serum.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 29.—Great interest has been aroused in medical circles by a new treatment of tuberculosis discovered by a Swiss scientist, Henry Spahlinger. The method, as explained by Prof. Letulle before the Academy of Medicine, consists of intra-muscular injections of a combination of "anti-genic tuberculosis" substances and of ferments.

According to the observations of scientists who have watched the application of the treatment, a number of patients have continued to follow their occupations and have now been cured.

The first injections have a depressing effect on the patient. When this period is passed he rapidly improves, and a comfortable feeling sets in. The patient's strength increases, the cough subsides, and expectoration, which at first becomes more accentuated, diminishes, and during the latter part of the treatment consists of nothing but mucous secretions.

As the treatment progresses the bacilli disappear and the matter becomes less and less virulent, until it finally loses its virus altogether.

The injections are usually followed by some fever at the beginning, but the patient returns to his normal state the following day. The injections are made only on alternate days, and may sometimes be made only once or twice a week. The treatment lasts for from five to six weeks for slight cases and for several months for advanced cases.

The same treatment has given positive results in the treatment of lupus and tuberculous ganglions of the brain, refractory to ordinary treatment. It was first applied to guinea pigs in 1911, and 1912 and after a year they were found to have deep tuberculous lesions which had been dried up and cured.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, April 30.—Reports of the successes of the new treatment of tuberculosis are being received with caution by English medical men.

A physician who has done the most work with the new alleged specific in this country declares that exaggerated reports of the success of the treatment have been issued. He has been using the serum for only six months, chiefly on early and middle-stage cases, though one or two had developed small cavities. The results have encouraged him to believe that the treatment is of distinct value, but he says it is altogether too early for him to speak of cures.

VERA CRUZ

Next Sunday The New York Times will print excellent photographs of the landing of United States forces at Vera Cruz and the fight with Mexicans which followed. Other Mexican pictures include a new large photograph of Huerta, a photograph of his crack cavalry regiment, and views of the country between Vera Cruz and the City of Mexico. There will be many other pictures of unusual interest, including iceberg and antarctic photographs.

IDLE WIVES

Will the feminist movement lead away from the home or toward it? James Oppenheim answers this question. He is a home feminist, and his article in next Sunday's New York Times presents the feminist movement from a new angle. If a narrow home dwarfs womanhood, a narrow woman cramps and imperils the best in home life. This is the central idea of Mr. Oppenheim's argument; an argument which is entertaining and in a measure convincing. This is one of many timely magazine features to be published next Sunday.

VANDERBILT PAINTINGS

The eleven pictures to be given to readers of The New York Times next Sunday will have an unusual interest not only as examples of art reproduction but as examples worth preserving of some of the best work of artists whose paintings hang in the galleries of the world. These pictures are reproduced in rotogravure from original paintings in the Cornelius Vanderbilt collection in the Metropolitan Museum. One of these pictures is a full-page Bouguereau entitled "Going to the Bath." There are pictures also by Rosa Bonheur, Millet, Millais, Israels, and others.

ALL SOLD

"We couldn't get The Times last Sunday." That is the complaint of hundreds. The reason is not far to seek. The New York Times is an ordered-in-advance rather than a placed-on-sale newspaper, and the steadily increasing demand leaves the dealer "short." The only sure way is to give your newsdealer a standing order. Tell him that you want The New York Times next Sunday and every Sunday. There are art features booked for May which will be well worth the trouble of a definite order now.

ADMITS THE PLOT TO FREE GUNMEN

KALMANSON WANTED NOW

District Attorney Whitman Will Question Witness Who Accused Sam Schepps.

Louis Capadonno, a mere youth, broke down before District Attorney Whitman yesterday afternoon and admitted complicity in a plot to free the four slayers of Herman Rosenthal through perjured testimony. Capadonno was the third to "come across," in the language of the detectives. Unlike the others, Karl Dresner and William E. Burwell, "the St. Louis Kid," he looked very much worried after the District Attorney and the detectives had finished with him. The presence in the Criminal Court Building of detectives from the United States Secret Service is believed to have added to Capadonno's fears.

The story he told is slightly at variance with the story told by "the St. Louis Kid." Capadonno insisted yesterday that Burwell was the brains of the conspiracy and that he merely fell in with it. Burwell has insisted that Capadonno put it up to him. The two conspirators agreed in their stories that they had come together to New York from Poughkeepsie and that they had gone to the office of Wahle & Kringle, attorneys for the four gunmen who were executed in Sing Sing on Easter Monday. In the office of the attorneys, Capadonno said yesterday, he met and talked with Jacob Rosenberg, father of "Lefty Louie" Rosenberg, one of the gunmen.

Burwell insisted yesterday that he had received a promise of $1,000 for testifying for the gunmen. But Capadonno said he did not know that any specific sum had been promised. He agreed, however, that he and Burwell had received only $20 and that he was much dissatisfied with this.

Burwell and Capadonno remained in the city after they had testified at the hearing on the application for a new trial before Justice Goff on April 11. On April 15 they went together to the funeral of "Dago Frank" Cirofici, one of the gunmen. Curiosity drew them to the funeral, they said. Then they went to Connecticut, and were in hiding until detected by the police of New Haven.

It is probable that Burwell will be formally arrested soon and charged with perjury. A charge of perjury could not be made against Capadonno, for he was not a witness in any proceeding bearing on the gunmen's case, nor did he sign any affidavits. It is believed, however, that the District Attorney could charge him with subornation of perjury, and thus hold him. Pending decision as to the course he will take Mr. Whitman has detectives keeping the two men under surveillance at a west side hotel. Dresner remains locked up in the Tombs.

Assistant District Attorney Groehl and Detective Maxwell are now on the trail of Samuel Kalmanson, another of the witnesses who testified at the Goff hearing. Kalmanson's testimony, if corroborated, might have sent Sam Schepps and Harry Vallon to the electric chair. Mr. Whitman is anxious to get hold of Kalmanson. He is still of the opinion that a master mind set the stage for the eleventh-hour fight of the gunmen.

ROOSEVELT'S NEW INDIANS.

Anthropologists Say Discovery of New Tribe Was Predicted.

The anthropological authorities at the American Museum of Natural History yesterday said they had not heard of the new tribe, called Pauhates, which was discovered in the wilds of Brazil by Col. Theodore Roosevelt, according to a dispatch from Rio Janeiro. The discovery of a new tribe, however, while characterized as "a good stunt" by one of the anthropologists most familiar with South American peoples, was said to be not very surprising, inasmuch as the entire vast territory from Northern Argentina to the Caribbean Sea was considered barely punctured by civilized explorers. Assistant Curator Charles W. Mead of the Department of Anthropology called this the least known territory in the world.

"Several persons have crossed the continent," he said, "but they have been able to explore only a very narrow area and have touched only about one-fourth of the territory. It is believed that there are fully 500 different dialects spoken in that vast area, about which we know nothing.

"On the slender basis of facts so far available about the new tribe said to have been discovered by Col. Roosevelt, it is impossible to locate the whereabouts of the tribe or to tell anything about its customs and mode of living. The dispatch tells that all the tribesmen are completely naked. That is very frequently the case with South American Indian tribes, though more usually they are found to wear breech clouts or some sort of shirt. Maybe these will also, after the story of their discovery grows from a mere newspaper dispatch to a more respectable scientific narrative."

Mr. Mead said that it was impossible to say where Roosevelt had met the new tribe, inasmuch as the Colonel had departed very widely from the plan of the route originally mapped out by him.

The probability of the discovery of one or more new tribes in the Amazon region was pointed out a year ago by the late Prof. Alexander F. Chamberlain of Clark University. He enumerated eighty-three distinct linguistic stocks among South American Indians, and added:

"The region of northwestern Brazil may yet furnish another stock or two."

Of the eighty-three linguistic stocks named by Prof. Chamberlain there were found in Brazil the Aruan, Arawakan, Garajan, Cariban, Caririan, Ticunian, and Tupian. The Orinoco and Parana tribes of the Indians of the Amazon region are all in a state of savagery, with some sedentary and agricultural habits. Cannibalism prevailed extensively and still does in the southern headstreams of the Amazon. Many tribes are entirely naked, tattooing and body-painting being met with only rarely. Scalping is almost unknown to these Indians, but preservation of the heads of slain enemies is common. The blowgun and poisoned arrow is a common weapon throughout the Upper Amazon and Orinoco regions, where the chief article of intertribal commerce is curari poison, the insidious poison recently mentioned in connection with the alleged "poison needle" epidemic in this city.

MAYOR ASKS CO-OPERATION.

Wants Department Heads to Consult with Aldermen.

Mayor Mitchel wrote yesterday to Police Commissioner Woods, Fire Commissioner Adamson, and Dock Commissioner Smith, calling attention to the fact that recent legislation affecting their departments had become law and asking them to work in harmony with the Committee on Codification of the Board of Aldermen in carrying out their new plans.

The Aldermen were opposed to the Mayor signing the bills giving the three Commissioners increased powers on the ground that it took powers away from the board and that their Codification Committee was working along exactly the same lines.

In his letter to Commissioner Woods the Mayor said:

"In any action that you may take under the new law, I should be glad to have you confer with the Chairmen of the respective committees of the Board of Aldermen, in order that such rules as you may promulgate may be brought into harmony, so far as practicable, with the new codification proposed, and to take any other steps that are likely to be of assistance to the Board of Aldermen in their legislative action upon this subject."

9-HOUR DAY FOR CHILDREN.

E. F. Greene Says Any Reduction in Time Means Lower Wages.

BOSTON, April 29.—"I for one believe that fifty-four hours of work in the week (nine hours a day) cannot possibly do any one an injury—even most boys and girls of 14 and 15 years of age—and certainly this weekly schedule of hours allows a good deal of time for other worthy pursuits."

E. F. Greene, President of the Pacific Mills of Lawrence, greeted members of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers with this assertion at the opening of their annual meeting to-day.

"Any further curtailment in hours," he said, "must inevitably stand in the way of an increase of weekly wages, and the textile workers themselves and New England as a whole would be better off to work at least fifty-four hours a week, and when conditions warrant, secure an increase in wages rather than work for the same weekly wages and shorter hours. The present schedule of wages should be maintained, but if the Government seeks to impose unjust and unfair burdens, labor must bear its fair share of the load.

"The prospects of the cotton industry were embarrassed to some extent by the new tariff, but even more by sweeping proposals of labor legislation," he said.

Gov. Walsh welcomed the delegates, and referring to labor legislation said that the laws limiting hours of labor and otherwise affecting the textile industry had been passed in the honest conviction that such restrictions were required in the interest of the health and welfare of the public, to which the mill operatives belonged. Mistakes some times were made in legislation, he said, but they were mistakes of judgment and not errors due to hostile motives. No legislation seemed necessary at present, he said, as he believed a point had been reached where textile and other industries in the State should have time to work out their salvation under the new conditions.

Announcement that the Massachusetts Institute of Technology had agreed to co-operate with the manufacturers in establishing a laboratory for the testing of textile fibers, goods, and supplies was the most important feature of the report of the Secretary, C. J. H. Woodbury.

The proposed laboratory in the new Technology buildings at Cambridge is to deal with all textiles. The report pointed out the possibility for saving to the cotton industry in the fact that more than $19,000,000 was paid for excess water in the cotton crop of 1913.

The silver medal for the greatest contribution to the cotton textile art during the preceding year was awarded to Arthur Tisdale Bradlee of Chestnut Hill, Mass., a graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, for his work on the effect of moisture in testing cotton yarns and fabrics.

Student medals were awarded to Edward Webb Clark, Boston, a graduate of the New Bedford Textile School; to Kenneth Bartlett Cook, Concord, Mass., of the Lowell School; to Hugo D. Heidgord, New York, of the Philadelphia School, and to Charles Clifton Muir, Taunton, of the Bradford Durfee School.

LAWRENCE, Mass., April 29.—Foreign competition made increased wages impossible, the management of the Pacific Mills told the 150 dyehouse employes who went on strike for an advance from 15½ to 17 cents an hour. The strikers are divided in their affiliations between the American Federation of Labor and the Industrial Workers of the World.

BOY KILLED, DRIVER GONE.

Truckman Who Ran Down Lad Carries Him Home, Then Disappears.

Search is being made for the driver of a motor truck that ran down Stephen Van Rensselaer Trowbridge, 6 year old, son of Alexander B. Trowbridge, an architect, living in 87 Maple Avenue, Flushing, Tuesday night, inflicting injuries from which the boy died in the Flushing Hospital.

The accident happened at Sanford Avenue and King Street. With his sister Alice the boy was returning from a bicycle ride, and in turning into Sanford Avenue his bicycle struck one of the wheels of the motor truck and he was thrown under the machine, the rear wheel passing over his chest.

The driver, who was unaware of the accident until an outcry was made by the boy's sister, stopped the truck and carried the boy into the Trowbridge home. While he was not blamed for the accident, yet in the excitement no one thought to get his name or the number of his truck, and he drove away.

CHECKS PRISONERS' TRICKS.

Finger Print System to Prevent Men Exchanging Places.

After several conferences with Philip Bloch, Secretary of the Board of City Magistrates, Burdette G. Lewis, Deputy Commissioner of the Department of Correction, announced yesterday that he had found means to prevent "short term" prisoners substituting themselves for prisoners sentenced to the Workhouse for longer terms.

Cases came to the attention of the officials wherein persons sentenced from the Magistrates' Courts for long terms bought or tried to buy their release. This was done by prisoners changing places. The prisoners changed names and when the sentence of the man with the short term expired, the man with the long sentence passed out.

Deputy Commissioner Lewis will have long term prisoners' finger prints taken upon their conviction in the Magistrates' Courts. A copy will be sent to the Workhouse and, upon release, the prisoner's finger prints again will be taken and compared with those sent from the court.

Queens Politician Missing.

The police of the Hunters Point section of Long Island City sent out a general alarm last night for Owen Halpen, 59 years old, a Democratic politician living at 189 Fifth Street, Long Island City. Mr. Halpen was employed as an engineer by the D. E. Williamson Company of Tenth Street. He left his home at 10 o'clock on Sunday evening to visit his sister at Greenpoint and has not been seen since that time. The belief was expressed yesterday that his mind became unbalanced by worry over the illness of his wife. Mr. Halpen is 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighs 220 pounds.

TWO NEW YORK FENCERS QUALIFY

National Championship Preliminaries in Foils and Dueling Swords.

The most prominent fencers in this section of the country gathered here yesterday for the semi-final rounds of the national championships with foils and duelling swords. The foil competition was held yesterday afternoon at the New York Athletic Club and the duelling sword event in the evening at the Fencers' Club. The semi-final round in sabres will be held this afternoon at the New York Athletic Club and to-morrow night at the Hotel Astor will be decided the championships in foils, duelling swords, and sabres, and in addition there will be the final round of the women's senior national championship. Only one New York fencer qualified in each of yesterday's events.

The hour to qualify in the foils competition yesterday afternoon were A. E. Sauer of the Illinois A. C., J. A. MacLaughlin and Dr. S. Breckinridge of the Washington Fencers' Club, and P. W. Allison of the New York A. C. In duelling swords those who qualified were Dr. S. Breckinridge, A. E. Sauer, the present title holder; F. W. Allen of the Boston Athletic Association, and D. W. Cairns of the New York Fencers' Club.

In the duelling sword event there was a tie between Sauer, Dr. Breckinridge and V. Curti, and on the fence off the two first named defeated Curti. The performance of Dr. Breckinridge was the most impressive, for while he won four and lost two bouts, the losses were the result of double touches which is a better record than was made by any of the other three to qualify.

The entry for the foils event totaled nineteen but only nine appeared for competition. Aside from New York, the only cities represented were Washington, Baltimore and Chicago. Paul Meylan, the champion, was eliminated from further competition with three defeats and only one victory to his credit. The result of the competition leaves only one man to represent this city in the finals, P. W. Allison, the former Cornell captain and now of the New York A. C. The summary:

HARVARD CREW HOPES.

Changes and Practice Indicate Improvement in Shell.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 29.—Although Harvard's disappointment over the defeat of its 'Varsity eight at Annapolis last Saturday was very keen, confidence has returned again with the splendid results that have come from several shifts that Coach Wray has made in the eight since the race on the Severn. While poor steering in that race was costly enough, the coach has made changes that very likely will be permanent.

Capt. Reynolds, returning to his old place at bow where he rowed in 1912 and 1913, probably is there for the season if the work yesterday and to-day is to be any criterion. Parson, who has taken Morgan's place at No. 4 formerly rowed No. 6 on the scrubs, while Curtis, now in Reynold's old place at No. 3 has been rowing at No. 7 with the substitutes most of the Spring, although occasionally he has been with the 'Varsity.

The work of the other five men continues to be satisfactory. Chanler at bow and Harwood at No. 6 are, with Reynolds, the only veterans now in the bow, the five others all having been on last year's Freshmen Eight. Soucy at No. 5, Talcott at No. 2, and Schall at No. 7 are filling the bill and look better in the new combination than the old.

Yesterday and to-day the coach spent a lot of time with the crew and on Saturday hopes to match them against the Union Boat Club, an eight made up entirely of former Harvard 'Varsity oarsmen. This race probably will determine whether Sargent will permanently replace Gallagher as coxwain.

MELROSE NOT UNDER FIRE.

No Charges Against Athletic Club Before Registration Committee.

No formal charges against the Melrose Athletic Club have been made and none are under consideration, according to a statement by the Metropolitan Registration Committee, which met at the Bartholomew Parish House last night. Reports have been circulated to the effect that officers of the Xavier Athletic Club had charged the Melrose Club with professionalizing athletes by getting them employment in return for their services as representatives of the club in track and field athletics. Members of the Registration Committee said last night that such reports had come to their ears in an unofficial way, but that no charges had been made to them and that they had nothing upon which to base an investigation.

The opinion of the committee was that the Melrose Club was being ill-used in that such reports were circulated without charges being made, the investigation of which would settle the matter definitely either one way or the other. The committee itself has no information warranting criticism of the Melrose Club.

The committee held a long meeting last night at which a number of routine protests against athletes charged with professionalism were considered. None of the matters were of importance except that of Eli Helikman, who formerly represented the Boys' Club and was a former Metropolitan champion wrestler at 135 pounds. Evidence showing that Helikman had been paid for giving wrestling exhibitions was submitted to the committee and he was formally declared a professional by the committee and expelled from the A. A. U.

Motor Cycle Racing on May 30.

The management of the Brighton Beach Motordrome has perfected its plans for the formal opening of the motor racing season in the East, the night of Saturday, May 30. The crack motorcycle riders from all parts of the country have been engaged, and the sport will get a whirlwind start for the Summer. One of the star riders of last season, Martin Kessler, who led his team to victory in the twenty-four hour race, is counted upon to be one of the favorites with the fans this season. Most of the old stars who were seen flying about the track last Summer will return, with a new flock of about twenty youngsters all eager to risk their necks in the hope of pulling themselves into fast company. Contracts have been sent to most of the men on last year's roster, and the tentative list of starters in the big races will be announced within a few days. Of special local interest is the report that Charley Davis, the Brooklyn boy who won the championship last year and retired from the sport, intends to return to the game this season.

BETHLEHEM, Penn., April 29.—Lehigh and Lafayette, old athletic rivals, played the first soccer game in their history to-day and the Eastonians won 2 goals to nothing.

MOTOR EXPORTS ARE GROWING FAST

Nearly Double in Value Exports of Other Vehicles—Auto License Plates Assigned.

Exports of American automobiles, motor trucks and motor cycles are now almost double in value the exports of all other kinds of vehicles combined, including railroad and street cars, as shown by a comparison of Government figures made by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. For the eight months ending with February the total value of motor vehicles exported, including automobile engines, tires and parts, was $23,337,332. During the same period the exports of all other vehicles and parts, except steam locomotives, amounted to $12,629,844. Locomotives brought up the total to roughly $15,000,000. Motor car exports have increased steadily, while imports have declined. For the eight-month periods ending with February, 1912, 1913 and 1914, respectively, we exported 12,347 motor vehicles, worth $12,000,000; 14,488, worth $14,852,000, and 16,883, worth $15,716,000. During the same periods we imported 717 motor vehicles, worth $1,572,000; 569, worth $1,329,000, and 230, worth $529,000, respectively. Government reports show that the exports of automobiles from the port of New York during March of this year were 38 per cent. greater than those in February, 2,479 cars having been shipped as compared with 1,797 in February and 1,841 in January. The total value of vehicles and parts shipped in March, exclusive of engines and tires was $2,204,388.

⁂

As a means of gathering timely information on a number of important topics the Metropolitan Section of the Society of Automobile Engineers has organized several special research committees. By summarizing what has been accomplished already and indicating theoretical limitations it is believed that the members will receive benefit. General reports to the section are to be made by the committees, which are made up as follows:

Gas-Electric Vehicles.—Beecroft, David, Chairman; Kennedy, William P.; Nilson, Lars G.

Kerosene Carburetors.—Browne, A. B., Chairman; Rautenstrauch, W.; Tracy, Joseph; Whitman, Roger B.

Greases.—Martin, H. M., Chairman; Bradfield, George K.; Parish, W. F.; Prossen, L. P.

Non-Electric Continuous Torque Transmission.—Dieterich, L. M., Chairman; Machol, Morris; Cautley, John R.

Engine Characteristics.—Breese, James L.; Busby, Lloyd G.; Lloyd, Robert McA.; Porter, Finley R.; Power, W. M.

Governors.—Slade, Arthur J., Chairman; Fletcher, C. W.; McComb, H. G.

A record showing the assignment of automobile license numbers in the three sub-divisions of the State was issued yesterday by Mitchell May, Secretary of State. For pleasure cars, New York City has been assigned 63,000 numbers, running from 1,000 to 5,999, and from 8,000 to 65,999. Albany gets 34,000 numbers, from 66,000 to 99,999, and Buffalo 29,996 numbers, from A2 to and including A9,999, from B1 to B9,999, and from C1 to C9,999. For commercial cars New York City gets 13,000 numbers, from 1 to 13,000; Albany 2,500, from 17,501 to 20,000, and Buffalo 4,500, from 13,001 to 17,500. The dealers' plates for New York City are 800 in number, running from 6,000 to 6,799; for Albany 600, running from 7,400 to 7,999, and for Buffalo 600, from 6,800 to 7,399.

⁂

Three exhibitions of moving pictures, with lectures and music, are to be given at the Automobile Club of America on Tuesday afternoons, May 5 and 12, and on Tuesday evening, May 19, for members and their guests. On the second afternoon pictures especially attractive to children will be shown. The reels include views of the recent Vanderbilt and Grand Prize automobile races, touring scenes and moving pictures of parts of a chassis in motion. A test of some of the reels and slides was held at the A. C. A. yesterday.

N. Y. U. Beats Stevens on Track.

New York University took the first dual meet of their season yesterday at Ohio Field, defeating Stevens Institute by the score of 62 to 50. Hampered by the absence of S. B. Many, who injured himself last week by severely pulling a tendon, and by the absence of Maloney, Waugh, and Kelly, the Violet team found themselves weaker than they had expected, and had to extend themselves to the utmost. Owing to the wet condition of the track the time made was slow. The summaries:

Suffrage Day—Next Saturday

In the nation-wide, State-wide, city-wide celebration of Suffrage Day on Saturday, May 2, all the suffrage organizations, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, are busy preparing to put their best foot forward. Every town and hamlet, from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico, will make it known in its locality that Woman Suffrage is a living issue.

All over the State of New York, the two State-wide associations, the Women's Political Union and the Woman Suffrage Association are preparing ways of celebrating the day. Spectacular distribution of especially prepared literature is one of the most popular methods of bringing the propaganda to the public. In Riverhead and the Hamptons members of the Women's Political Union, arrayed in white and decked with the purple, white and green regalia, will distribute from shop to shop and from door to door, suffrage fliers. Up the Hudson Valley, through the Mohawk on to Erie and Chautauqua Counties, the same work of enlightening the public about "Votes for Women" will go on. In every Assembly District the Woman Suffrage Association will hold open-air rallies.

At 1 P. M. the celebration in New York City will begin by a meeting held by all of the suffrage organizations, in Washington Square. Processions of automobiles will bring the suffrage orators from the various headquarters. The Women's Political Union is to have fifty-one decorated autos, one for each Senatorial District in the State. The Woman Suffrage Party will have forty, one for each Assembly District of the city, and in each will be the delegates from the district. At the sound of a bugle the speaking will begin.

At 1:45 o'clock, at the sound of the second bugle, a resolution calling on Congress to act upon the question of suffrage nationally, will be passed.

At 2:30 the forces of suffrage will scatter to all points of the city to hold open-air meetings. The Women's Political Union will have its chief rally on the Mall at Central Park, where the Ellery band will give a concert and the intermissions will be given over to suffrage speaking. The Union will also hold meetings in Union Square, near the Delancey Street Bridge, at Tompkins Square, and Greenwich Village.

The Political Equality Association will have a concert, with speaking, on Riverside Drive, near Grant's Tomb. The Equal Franchise Association will have meetings in Madison Square. The Woman Suffrage Party will have meetings at Rutgers Square, St. Mark's Place, the Clinton High School district, the Plaza and Columbus Circle.

At 8:15 P. M. there will be a mass meeting in Carnegie Hall under the auspices of the Women's Political Union. Miss Adelaide Liscombe will play popular airs on the organ from 7:45 to 8:15. At 8:15 Mrs. Nora Blatch de Forest will show lantern slides of the political work of the Women's Political Union.

The Mayor, John Purroy Mitchel, will extend a word of wlecome at this meeting to the suffragists who are in the city from all parts of the State. Dr. Davis, the Commissioner of Correction, will speak on "Women in Office," and Miss Alice Paul will speak on the amendment to the national Constitution. Mrs. Norman De R. Whitehouse will read a resolution calling on the political parties to declare for Woman Suffrage.

They are immensely strong—each single cable capable of sustaining three thousand pounds weight. They are found only in the new

FEDERAL Double-Cable-Base TIRES

The cables anchor the tire to the rim with a security that never can be equalled by the mass of small wires used in the base of most tires, or by the single cable used in other tires.

Besides this, the double cables permit the use of a soft bead-filler instead of the sharp pointed hard filler used in ordinary tires. A hard filler can't bend. It extends up into the side wall—it cuts and grinds into the fabric with every motion of the tire. That is why side-wall blowouts just above the rim (often called rim-cuts) are such a common trouble.

The soft rubber and cotton filler in Federal Double-Cable-Base tires can't cut the fabric because it is flexible, and furthermore it is built down below the zone of motion in the side wall of the tire.

If you want to avoid the four common and costly tire troubles—tire slipping off the rim, tube pinching, rim cutting, side wall breaks and blowouts just above the rim—see that your car is equipped with Federal Double-Cable-Base Tires.

YANKEES DEFEAT BOSTON---BROOKLYN LOSES---COLLEGE BASEBALL

Jimmy Walsh poked a hole in the gray fog at the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon and through the vacuum a new white ball soared its way into the left field bleachers and won the game for the Yanks against the Boston Red Sox by a score of 1 to 0. This prodigious punch came in the fourth inning and made such a favorable impression on Ray Fisher, the Vermont pedagogue, that he pitched a game that was all wool and a yard wide, and held the Sox sluggers from interfering in any way with that big unit, of which Walsh was the author.

The Sox fussed, fumed, and sputtered toward the end and tried their best to upset that figure 1, but under the protection of Fisher's wing it was as safe as the Bank of England. These former world's champions had a fine chance to spill the beans in the seventh, when they got two fortunate singles, with only one citizen of Massachusetts out.

Then Manager Bill Carrigan called on the strong arm squad. Carrigan subtracted himself and rushed in Hendrikson to bat. Fisher began to burn the ball over so fast in the dim light of the fading day that the famous pinch-hitter couldn't see it. He spilled a harmless roller at Fisher's feet and was thrown out at first. Then came Larry Gardner, batting for Dutch Leonard, who tried to kill the ball and grassed innocently to Hal Williams, ending the impending rally.

Again in the eighth the Sox had a chance, with Tris Speaker at second and Duffy Lewis waving his bat. Again Fisher rose to the seriousness of the occasion and fanned Duffy, leaving Speaker at second, wondering what he could do to earn that $18,000 salary he receives. Tris earned part of the kale in the first inning, when he ran back into right field and grasped Williams's long drive, which was ticketed for a home run.

Something encouraging really ought to be said for the Vermont schoolmaster. The fact that Fisher can pitch such a fine game just goes to show what a great thing education is, and if a college course, in the dead and dying languages, can produce a pitcher like him, it's too bad that more of our youth do not go to college.

If Fisher had drunk too deeply at the fountain of knowledge, he might be trying to infuse the young minds with the mysteries of the A B C's, instead of getting into the headlines as the conqueror of the Red Sox. As a Sanskrit scholar, Fisher is surely one of the greatest pitchers among the Chance flinging flock.

Fritz Maisel was full of pepper and patroled his territory with delightful results. His fleetness of foot gave him three hits and much applause. Fritz, in the third inning, jammed a hit into the left field bleachers, which looked like a home run, but Umpire Dineen had the field glasses on it and called it foul by splitting a hair. But there's no use disputing Mr. Dineen's word, as umpires are like kings, and can do no wrong.

The game was played despite a gathering gloom and before the strife was over it looked as if it might be necessary to get an all-night license to finish it. Outside of Walsh's homer, Leonard pitched a nice game. But there's no consolation in that fact for Boston.

Leonard, however, might have been spared that homer run if Manager Carrigan had kept away from Walsh's high foul fly which was produced just before Jimmy made the home run. The foul was over near first base, where Hack Engle could have grabbed it, but Carrigan yelled for the ball and missed it, giving Walsh the lease on life necessary for him to rip out the huge hit into the bleachers. Manager Chance Has the Grip.

Frank Chance, manager of the New York American League team, was taken ill at the Polo Grounds before yesterday's game and had to turn his charges over to Capt. Roger Peckinpaugh for the afternoon. Chance caught cold while attending the relay games in Philadelphia on Saturday and developed what is apparently a case of grip. At his home it was said last night his condition was improved, and it was not thought his illness would prove serious.

Triple Play Saves the Senators.

PHILADELPHIA, April 29.—A triple play by Gandil, Foster, and McBride featured Washington's victory over Philadelphia to-day by 6 to 4. In the sixth inning the home team tied the score. With runners on third and second and no one out, Ayres took Engel's place, with Barry at bat. On an attempted double squeez play, Gandil grabbed Barry's bunted fly with his gloved hand, threw to Foster, retiring McInnis, and Foster threw to McBride, putting out Strunk at second. The play saved the game for Washington. The score:

Tigers Triumph in Eleventh.

DETROIT, April 29.—A sensational pitchers' battle with leadership of the league as its prize, went eleven innings to-day before Detroit defeated Chicago 1 to 0. The game was lost by one pitcher and won by the other. Cicotte and Dubuc pitched superb ball, but in the final inning the Chicago hurler weakened under the strain. He passed Moriarty, and when Stanage bunted, Cicotte threw wild over Weaver's head in an attempt to retire Moriarty at second. The latter went to third and scored on Dubuc's sacrifice fly to Collins. DOOIN WINS WITH REVISED LINE-UP

Phillies Play Well with Paskert at Short and Defeat Dodgers 6 to 2.

With "Dode" Paskert at short stop in place of Herbert Murphy, who is blessed by the Giants for his assistance in winning a couple of games for them against his own team, and with two other changes in their line-up, the Phillies gave the Superbas a 6 to 2 defeat at Ebbets Field yesterday. In addition to the substitution of Paskert for Murphy, who so unsatisfactorily attempted to fill the shoes of the deserter, Mike Doolan, who jumped to the Feds, Manager Dooin slipped in Irelan, a youngster, in place of Bobby Byrne, the former Pittsburgher, at second and used Beals Becker, the one-time Giant, in centre field in Paskert's old place. With the revised line-up the Phillies appeared much stronger than previously this season and Paskert handled himself well at the short field position.

Manager Dooin said last night that the shifting of Paskert from centre field to shortstop might be permanent. He said he was very well pleased with Paskert's showing in the infield. The change at second base will not be permanent, and is only made during the illness of Byrne.

The new line-up at least showed batting strength and the Phillies collecetd ten hits off Ragan and Reulbach. They were aided in getting their runs by several bases on balls, one of which was supplied by Allen, one of Robbie's young pitchers. This base on balls was Allen's only opportunity to shine. He was sent in to displace Ragan, after the veteran had passed Paskert in the seventh inning, and when he passed Becker, the next man up, Robinson immediately yanked him out and sent in Ruelbach. The former Cub seemed to be also suffering from wildness and he passed Lobert, the next man up, filling the bases. The three first men up in the inning had been passed and each one by a different pitcher. Up to this time, with the score 3 to 2, the Dodgers seemed to have a chance, but Cravath, who got an opportunity after Magee had popped out, settled all doubts about the game by scoring Paskert and Becker with a single to centre field.

Ragan had been pitching fairly good ball, although several long hits had been made off him, and there is good ground to question Robinson's judgment in yanking him out in favor of a green twirler, kown to be rather wild.

Alexander the Great, who occupied the mound for the Phillies, was hit rather hard, but he didn't falter throughout the nine innings and never allowed the Dodgers to become dangerous.

Elberfeld played his first full game for the Brooklyn team. The attendance was about 2,000.

The Brooklyn Club yesterday signed a new outfielder, George F. Walsh, formerly of Georgetown University. The score:

Luck with the Redlegs.

CINCINNATI, April 29.—Cincinnati was outbatted by St. Louis, but by good work on the bases and with the assistance of the visitors' errors managed to win to-day, 5 to 3. St. Louis had two men on bases in the ninth, with one out, when a single by J. Miller down the third base line hit Dolan, who was on third. This spoiled what appeared to be an elegant opportunity for St. Louis to tie the score, for Magee's fly was gathered in a moment later by Bates. Hageman was taken out to allow Cathers to bat for him, while Yingling was relieved in the ninth after two singles had been made off him in succession. The score:

BLANDING SUED FOR $10,000.

Kansas City Federals Claim He Jumped Their Contract.

ST. LOUIS, April 29.—Suit for $10,000 damages was filed to-day by the Kansas City Federal League Club against Fred Blanding, pitcher with the Cleveland Americans, for alleged breach of contract. An injunction to prevent Blanding from playing with any other club than the Kansas City Federals is sought.

The complaint charges that Blanding signed a three-year contract with Kansas City at an annual salary of $5,833, of which $2,500 was paid in advance. Blanding, it is alleged, jumped the contract and joined the Cleveland Americans.

Columbia Wins from Stevens.

After three innings of exciting playing the Columbia baseball team pounced on the Stevens nine yesterday afternoon in the game on South Field and won by the score of 8 to 1. The Jersey lads had no chance after the fifth inning, when the Blue and White packed the game away for all time. The fifth inning was a queer affair. Columbia was at the bat and had scored three runs. There were then only two out, but the scorer called the Stevens nine in, losing count of the outs, and the Columbia team took to the field. Then Ike Saunders, an old Columbia star, who is coaching the Stevens team, discovered the mistake, and the Columbia team gracefully came back for the third out. But before this was chalked up against them Gretsch had sent out a single, and with the aid of two errors two more runs were scored by Columbia. The score:

FORDHAM NINE GETS NO HIT OR RUN

Bronx Collegians Bat Only Four Balls Out of Diamond Against Ursinus.

Fordham received a 4 to 0 defeat from Ursinus College in a no-hit, no-run game yesterday at Fordham Field. It was the fastest contest on the local diamond this season. The delivery of Ursinus's broad-shouldered moist-ball artist, Johnson, was an enigma to the Maroon batsmen, who failed to connect with the visiting twirler's deceptive curves for thirteen strike-outs, hit the ball beyond the infield but four times, and only reached second base twice.

The visitors from Collegeville, Penn., displayed a far superior brand of baseball than has been seen in any other game played by Fordham. They gave Johnson errorless support, and caused McCann to be yanked from the mound by scoring two runs in the fourth inning with a brace of doubles and a screeching line drive to left field by their stocky twirler.

Keelen was selected by Coach Robertson to stop Ursinus's onslaught. He checked the Pennsylvanians for two innings, but in an eager attempt to catch Kennedy napping off second Keelen threw a fast ball to Kiernan, who let it get by, and then it avoided Berrigan's grasp and Kennedy trotted home. Bedenk made the final tally in the eighth on two passed balls and an error.

Brilliant fielding by McErlearn and Kiernan, and a remarkable swift relay of a seemingly home run, which was reduced to a double by Berrigan's fast work, were the only features exhibited by the Bronx collegians. The score:

Princeton Wins in a Rally.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 29.—With the score standing 4 to 0 against it, Princeton's baseball team came to bat in the sixth innings and showed enough batting strength to turn the tables on Virginia by a score of 5 to 4. The Tigers reserved most of their hits until the last three innings, and in that period lashed out one triple, one double, and four singles. In the first part of the game Virginia showed ability to bunch its hits, and in the fourth inning, when Wood, the Tiger pitcher, weakened, the visitors forced him to give them a bat around before the side was retired, netting three tallies. Only twenty-nine men faced the two Lehigh twirlers, who held the New Yorkers hitless except in the fourth and seventh innings, when they earned their two runs. Both teams played snappy ball. DEFEAT FOR "BIG FOUR."

Waterbury Polo Team Suffers First Rout by Stevenson Quartet.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., April 29.—The big crowd that lined the boards for to-day's polo match was treated to a surprise when the Blue team, that has been invincible so far this season, was forced to lower its colors to the Red quartet by the score of 7 to 6. The Reds took a leaf out of the Blues' book in team work, and in hitting also they had several shades on their opponents.

L. Waterbury and Milburn again exchanged places. The change had no appreciable result in the Blue team's work, neither player shining in his position. Stevenson gave a better exhibition of No. 3 work than either Milburn or Keene in the period that he played the position, and his work at back was superior to that of L. Waterbury.

The Red quartet took the lead in the second chukker on goals by Keene and Rumsey. Keene's shot was at a difficult angle, and Rumsey's was the result of La Montagne's work in getting the ball up the field.

H. C. Phipps tied the score after Stevenson had ridden down J. M. Waterbury and headed off a goal by that aggressive player. After this the score kept even until the opening of the seventh period, when the Red four put their strongest line-up, Rumsey, La Montagne, Stevenson, and H. C. Phipps, in the field. Rumsey got away toward the close of the chukker, but J. M. Waterbury went after him and, overhauling him near the goal, drove the ball out of danger. The ball fell into the clutches of La Montagne, however, and his goal placed the Red quartet in the lead.

At the start of the final period Stevenson galloped away from the throw-in, taking the ball down and passing to Rumsey for the goal in eleven seconds. This proved the deciding score, for J. M. Waterbury scored a little later, after Stevenson had twice blocked shots from the goal. The line-up:

Reds—C. C. Rumsey, J. S. Phipps, H. C. Phipps, R. La Montagne, F. P. Keene, M. Stevenson.

Blues—H. C. Phipps, J. S. Phipps, J. M. Waterbury, D. Milburn, L. Waterbury.

Goals—First period, H. C. Phipps; second period, Keene Rumsey; third period, H. C. Phipps, fourth period; La Montagne, J. M. Waterbury, H. C. Phipps; fifth period, H. C. Phipps; sixth period, J. M. Waterbury, Stevenson; seventh period, La Montagne; eighth period, Rumsey, J. M. Waterbury. Referee, H. P. Whitney.

Columbia Drubbed at Soccer.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., April 29.—Defeating Columbia by the score of 4 goals to 0, the University of Pennsylvania's soccer football term finished its intercollegiate championship season without the loss of a game in six played, and taking the lead from Harvard and Yale with a total of 10 points. The line-up:

Interclub League Meeting.

The Governing Board of the Interclub Baseball League held its final meeting of the season yesterday afternoon at the Calumet Club, and, aside from a general review of the successful part played by the several clubs of which the league is composed, matters of detail were transacted, the most important being the awarding of the championship to the University Club, which outplayed its rivals in brilliant style. A committee composed of Messrs. Hicks, Turnbull, and Gibbons was appointed to arrange for a suitable trophy in the shape of either a cup or a pennant, the trophy to be officially presented to the champions on May 29, on which occasion a dinner and ceremonial presentation will mark the ending of the league's season. At yesterday's meeting six applications for membership to the league were received from prominent organizations, but definite action on the matter of favorably considering the applications was deferred. A special gala field day event was arranged to take place on the afternoon of May 7 at the league's Fifth Avenue field, when the champion University Club team will play a picked team made up of Brown, Twelfth Infantry; Stebbins, Litchfield, and Clark, Racquet and Tennis Club; Hoyt and F. De Rham, Knickerbocker Club, and Mellick and Tilt, Calumet Club.

Mitchel Trophy for Public Schools.

The baseball which Mayor Mitchel threw out at the opening game of the National League season here between the Giants and Philadelphia team last Thursday at the Polo Grounds, has been offered as a trophy to the teams of the elementary schools in the Public School Athletic League championship games. The ball has been autographed by Manager John J. McGraw, Christy Mathewson, and Big Chief Meyers of the Giants, and the Mayor will have it mounted on an ebony stand. The baseball tournament is one of the most important events of the Public School Athletic League, and last year received an entry list of 84 teams and over 700 boys tried-out for positions on the various teams. A regular inter-borough series of games is contested after which all the champions of their respective boroughs come together for the final games which decide the city championship. Seventy schools have made entry for the present season, and the Mayor has notified President Churchill of the Board of Education that he will offer the trophy.

To Sue Buffalo Federal Club.

President Thomas A. Fogarty of the Jersey City Internationals is going to court with a conspiracy action against Buffalo Federal League Club owners, charging that the Buffalo men conspired to secure the contracts of Walter Blair, the catcher, and Joe Agler, the first baseman, in violation of the rights of the Jersey City Club, with which they had previously signed up. Fogarty names Walter F. Muller, President of the Buffalo Club, and Larry Schlafly, manager of the team, in his action. Schlafly last year managed the Jersey City Skeeters, and is therefore a former employe of Fogarty.

Ten-Day Clause Dropped by Cubs.

CHICAGO, April 29.—The ten-day clause has been stricken from the contracts of a number of players on the roster of the Chicago National League Club, it was admitted to-day by President Thomas, and some of them signed new contracts covering a term of three years. Charles Stewart, outfielder, was sold by the Chicago Nationals to the Birmingham Southern League Club to-day.

Lafayette, 5; Pennsylvania, 1.

PHILADELPHIA, April 29.—Lafayette defeated the University of Pennsylvania baseball team here to-day, 5 to 1. Pennsylvania batted Gerard freely, but he was effective with men on bases. Score by innings:

PLAN TO DEVELOP NEW POLO PLAYERS

Metropolitan Association Aims to Bring Game Within Reach of All.

Development of young players is the keynote of the plans of the Metropolitan Polo Association, as discussed at a meeting held last night at the Brooklyn Riding and Driving Club. It is planned to interest local riding and driving clubs and military organizations and reduce the cost of competition and stable upkeep to a minimum. Invitations have been extended to a number of organizations and it is intended to perfect an association to govern games to be played by all local clubs, both indoor and outdoor, and make the sport extend throughout the year, rather than limit it to the present comparatively short outdoor season.

The plan adopted by the Piping Rock Country Club will be followed, and players who cannot financially support a stable of ponies will be able to rent mounts for practice matches and regular games. A permanent outdoor headquarters will be established, probably at Fort Hamilton, where a fine playing field can be laid out at a comparatively low cost and ponies stabled free. Col. Allen, the comandant at Fort Hamilton, and Col. Wingate, commanding Second United States Field Artillery, are interested in the plans, as the recent order of the Secretary of War, which makes it imperative for army posts with mounted troops to maintain a polo team, enables the army officers to lend official support to the project.

Young players in the metropolitan district will be encouraged to become actively identified with the sport in order to develop them and qualify them for any team in the Polo Association. Application will be made for membership in the Polo Association. The present members of the Metropolitan Polo Association are: Brooklyn Riding and Driving Club, Bedford Polo Club, Prospect Park Polo Club, Durland's Polo Club, Central Park Polo Club, and Deegan Polo Club. Capt. J. B. W. Corry and Lieut. Henry Pfeil are delegates from the Army Polo Association, but owing to the Mexican trouble no formal application has yet been made by military organizations.

The officers of the association are: Chairman, Major G. T. Cochran, N. Y. N. G., Secretary-Treasurer, Charles Lang, Bedford Polo Club. Board of Governors, G. C. Sherman, Durland's Polo Club; H. T. Rose, Deegan Polo Club; O. W. Coleman, Central Park Polo Club, and Walter Kopske, Riding and Driving Club.

The by-laws and constitution were discussed and plans adopted for a permanent organization. It is intended to play the first practice match on Saturday on the present temporary field, King's Highway and Stillwell Avenue, Brooklyn.

Delay in Work on Cochran Yacht.

BOSTON, April 29.—Because of unexpected delay in the delivery of material, the cup defense yacht under construction here for A. S. Cochran of New York, probably will not take the water until after the launching of the Defiance at Bath, it was learned today. The builders hope that by putting day and night shifts of workmen on the construction work, the boat will go overboard before the middle of May. Masts, spars, rigging, and sails are nearly finished, and the yacht can be rigged completely within a week after the launching. Some doubt is expressed regarding the name of the craft. It was reported several weeks ago that she would be called the Vanitie, but the builders said to-day that no name had yet been authorized by Mr. Cochran.

Resolute to Sail on Saturday.

BRISTOL, R. I., April 29.—Instructions that the sloop Resolute, the cup defense candidate of the flag officers' syndicate, must be completed and ready for her first trial spin on Saturday, were received by the builders to-day. Additional riggers were immediately put to work, and the gear was hurried into position. The sails received a final inspection before being carried on board. They will be bent to-morrow or Friday.

Bantams in Stadium A. C. Ring.

Eddie Campi, the bantamweight champion of the Pacific Coast, will make his first New York appearance to-night at the Stadium A. C. in the main event scheduled for ten rounds with Young Fox of England. The bout will have an international aspect as Fox claims the weight title of England, and although Campi has not yet reached the championship ranks he is being groomed along those lines. During the past year Campi has boxed in six twenty-round bouts, and although he has managed to show to advantage he prefers the shorter route. In Fox the Westerner is meeting a worthy foe. The Briton has demonstrated on previous occasions that he ranked among the best boys of the weight, being a clever and shifty boxer as well as a hard puncher.

In the semi-final Walter Hennessy will box Young Brown. Brown jumped into the limelight when he boxed Matt Wells at Madison Square Garden when the latter was at the top of the lightweight class.

Negro Boxers to Protest.

Colored boxers and their managers, having found rather light picking in ring matters here since the ban was put on "mixed" bouts in New York, have been fretting until they have now reached the point of indignation over what they say is an injustice and a discrimination against negroes. With this view as a basis a meeting was held yesterday in Harlem at the Nyanza club, the outcome being that a committee of three or five will be appointed this week to arrange a hearing before the State Athletic Commission at next Tuesday's meeting.

Bucknell Poor on Lehigh's Track.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Penn., April 29.—Lehigh on Taylor Field this afternoon smothered the track team of Bucknell University, the total points being 101½ to 10½. Lehigh won first place in all of the 14 events and in ten of them took every point. Bucknell managed to get placed in the 220 dash, 120 high hurdles, two-mile run, and high jump. Grumbach scored the most points for Lehigh.

Clarke Wins with Cue.

After being postponed temporarily, in order to enable the contestants in the recent 14.1 balkline billiard championship tournament to condition themselves, the Manhattan amateur handicap 18.2 balkline billiard tournament was resumed at the Morningside Billiard Academy, 125th Street and Lenox Avenue, last night. The contestants in the game were George P. B. Clarke and Hal A. Coleman, both former title-holders, the first named at one time holding the amateur Class A honors, while Coleman was Class B champion. The former was returned the winner after forty-three innings of close playing by the score of 250 to 230. Each player was on the honor mark of the tournament, 250 points. Clarke made high runs of 46, 26, and 23, with an average of 5 25-43. Coleman's best efforts netted him high runs of 37, 27, and 15, with an average of 5 10-44. Koji Yamada officiated as referee.

Spotts Ties for High-Gun Honors.

PHILADELPHIA, April 29.—Charles Newcomb of this city won the State championship with a break of 97 in a possible 100 targets to-day at the annual trap-shooting tournament of the Keystone Gun Club.

R. L. Spotts of New York, national amateur champion, tied with Newcomb for high gun honors for the day, each breaking 171 of their 175 targets. Lester German was high gun among the professionals with the same score.

Wells-Coffey Bout Is Canceled.

Manager Billy Gibson of the Stadium A. C. last evening received a cable from London notifying him that the proposed match between Bombadier Wells and Jim Coffey is off. This will probably cause some change in his plans which included a European trip with Coffey. He stated last night he would think the matter over and decide within the week just what alterations he will make in his programme. During the day Manager Gibson received a letter from Packey McFarland in which the latter stated he would arrange to come to New York and make one or two matches to take place at the Stadium Club. Gibson states the first opponent to McFarland will be Mike Gibbons if the latter will agree to box Packey, but if Gibbons will not consent Al McCoy has already expressed a willingness to try conclusions with the Chicago man. A wire was also received from Billy Murray of San Francisco, who agreed to the proposition Gibson made to him to box McCoy here on May 21 for a ten-round bout for the middleweight championship. Manager Gibson was yesterday in telephone communication with Frank Klaus of Pittsburgh, who will likely wend his way to New York and arrange a match with some of the middleweights.

Kennymore Wins at Newmarket.

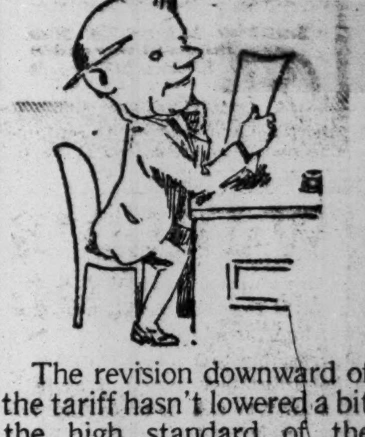
NEWMARKET, England, April 29.—The Two Thousand Guineas Stakes, for entire colts and fillies foaled in 1911, was won here to-day in a stirring finish by the favorite, Kennymore, who passed the winning post a short head in front of Corcyra. Black Jester was third. Eighteen horses competed for the stakes, the race being run over the mile course. The betting was 2 to 1 against Kennymore, 7 to 2 against Corcyra, and 20 to 1 against Black Jester.

Duryea Horse Wins Abroad.

PARIS, April 29.—The Prix Indian Chief was run at Le Tremblay to-day, and was won by Boyne, owned by Herman B. Duryea of New York.

Columbia Wins Tennis Match.

Columbia defeated New York University 6 sets to 0 at tennis yesterday.



The revision downward of the tariff hasn't lowered a bit the high standard of the woolens we import.
That quality remains constant—it's the price of the suit that's lowered.
Take for example several lots of English gray worsted serge, made by one of the best mills in England.
Under the old tariff, these suits would cost you $32—under the present tariff, they cost you $28.
Similar savings all through our stock.
Suits of imported woolens now as low as $25.
How about a light overcoat?

BEGIN WITH MEXICO.

With very great propriety the representatives of Brazil, Argentina, and Chile have resolved first of all to make the attempt to bring about an understanding between the Mexican Federals and the various leaders of insurrection. This procedure is commended by logic, common sense, and in particular by our national interest. First let peace and quiet be restored in Mexico—then a satisfactory adjustment with us becomes the easiest thing in the world.

Of course, in such an undertaking the representatives of the three South American Powers have many qualifications and advantages. They speak the language of the Mexicans, they are of the same race as the Mexicans, in so far as the Spanish strain still persists in the Mexican racial mixture. The negotiators representing Brazil, Argentina and Chile and Mexico will understand each other, they will know each others' minds and temperament. They will get on as well as anybody could in an exceedingly difficult business—but always on condition that we stand entirely aloof. It is plain that we could take no part in a conference where the sole subject of discussion was the settlement of Mexico's internal difficulties.

Whether Huerta himself would be represented in such a negotiation is a matter of some doubt. The negotiation of peace in Mexico would primarily be for the benefit of that republic, but it would have to serve also as a basis for satisfying the demands which we have sought to enforce. The chief of those demands is the elimination of Huerta. Since if the negotiation was successful the old dictator would have to go at the end of the proceeding, of course he might as well go at the beginning. This is equivalent to saying that he would not enter into the conference at all. But that remains to be seen. Indeed, it is not altogether certain that negotiators will be able to proceed as here indicated, but it is believed in Washington that it was their purpose at the very outset to make an effort to tranquilize Mexico.

An adjustment in Mexico conditioned on making an end of fighting, the removal of Huerta from the scene, and the Constitutional election of a President, would be eminently satisfactory to us. It would seem probable that we should have to hold Vera Cruz as a guarantee for the carrying out of the arrangement. That would be in many ways preferable to the holding of an election under the guarantee of the three South American Powers. As negotiators they ought not to be held responsible for the carrying out of the agreement made through their good offices. There is an astonishing amount of confusion in some quarters as to the nature of the service these three Powers are performing. At various times during the last three or four years proposals have been made that whenever we found it necessary to take a hand in the affairs of one of our sister republics we should invite certain other American republics, preferably Brazil, Argentina, and Chile, to assist us in the work, and claims for priority of this invention are now being filed in the belief that the idea has found application in the present tender of good offices for adjusting our difficulty with Mexico. That is all a fond delusion. The joint intervention idea was worthless from the beginning, and worse than worthless. We should be most ill-advised to associate ourselves in such a matter with Governments having very different views and often having different interests, and in particular having the fatal disqualification of neither understanding nor trusting us. In trying to settle one quarrel in that way we should find ourselves involved in two or three quarrels. But the tender of good offices by Brazil, Argentina, and Chile has not even a remote resemblance to the joint intervention idea.

If the negotiations take the form intimated in Washington, that is, the effort being made first of all to settle the difficulties of Mexico, it will be our duty and our policy to hold ourselves entirely aloof from the proceeding until the negotiators who have tendered their good offices are able to bring to us the basis of that satisfactory and therefore permanent adjustment mentioned by Mr. Bryan in his acceptance of the offer.

EAGER FOR A HUNGER STRIKE.

Upton Sinclair, novelist, Socialist, and professional agitator, weight, (estimated,) 140 pounds, has resisted his almost overpowering temptation to wait for John D. Rockefeller, Jr., at the entrance of his office and "publicly horsewhip him." What would happen if he had horsewhipped Mr. Rockefeller he described at the Liberal Club, after the temptation was overcome:

> I would have gone to jail quite happily, and would have at once gone on hunger strike. I would have remained on hunger strike until the Colorado situation was adjusted.

Mr. Sinclair is a professional and noted faster. He has written treatises on the healthfulness of fasting, on the beneficent effects of doing without food for weeks on end. Fasting recurrently is his hobby and pleasure. But hunger striking is martyrdom. The subjective pleasure and the objective martyrdom constituted for Upton a temptation even more overwhelming than that of thrashing Mr. Rockefeller. A renewed period of fasting was about due; why not convert the experience into something picturesque and self-advertisable by getting arrested anyhow?

Occasion was not lacking. There were the poor miners in Colorado ground under the oppressor's heel. Crêpe was cheap. There could be no personal danger in pinning a black band to his sleeve, and to the sleeves of some daring comrades in Socialism, and "picketing" Mr. Rockefeller's offices to "carry home to "the young Standard Oil millionaire "the message of the suffering miners "in Colorado." That would lead to his arrest, to the coveted hunger-strike fast, and the martyrdom fest.

He "picketed." He was arrested. He was led in durance. "Through the press" he wished "publicly to "ask my wife to cause herself to be "arrested in the same way." The wife obeyed, and a family fast is in prospect.

MR. BRANDEIS'S ARGUMENTS.

The railways having put into the record a statement that their taxes had increased 111 per cent. in ten years, Mr. Brandeis's remark thereupon was that other taxes had increased also, and that "the ratio of "railroad taxes to gross revenues is "still small." Mr. Brandeis offered no comparison of the rates of increase of taxes for the railways and other property, but he proposes a novel test of the reasonableness of taxes. He says the tax rate is small in relation to the railways' gross business. That puts the railways where the railway advocates claimed that they were—in a class by themselves regarding taxation. There has been nothing like this argument since Postmaster General Hitchcock calculated railway profits upon mail pay on the cost of carriage of the mails, the usual basis of calculation being upon investment. As the freight revenues of the petitioning railways aggregated a billion dollars in 1913, the rate of taxation on that scale necessarily was small. It was not as small as it ought to be, according to the facts of the railways, which were practically admitted by not being contested.

Mr. Brandeis proceeded to argue that the railways, in their progress toward starvation, had turned the corner because "their supply prices are lower." The companies being unable to buy through the closeness of their finances, and their supply of cars being excessive through the dullness of trade, it is but natural that the prices of supplies of cars and other equipment should decline with other prices. Other enterprises look to prosperity for their profit. Mr. Brandeis argues that railways should look to decreasing costs as a source of increasing margin above expenses. The railways' argument is that they should be allowed to increase their rates, so that they might be buyers, and the prices of seller might be sustained or improved. The equipment makers will hardly be charmed by the argument that their adversity is a suitable source of the railways' prosperity. When business slows in other departments prices are cut to arouse it. Prices are raised when there is more money moving about, so that more can be asked without embarrassing buyers. That was the course the railways wanted to take when they asked for higher rates four years ago. It is due to the refusal of the Interstate Commerce Commission that the railways now are asking to raise rates because business is unprofitable. That is a fundamental fault of the regulation of prices by law. They are not responsive to trade movements in either direction, not being allowed to rise with other prices, and being reduced whenever it seems feasible politically, economic considerations being ignored.

Mr. Brandeis's other arguments are that rates should not be increased for the weak roads, because it would unduly increase the profits of the strong roads, and that the railways should economize rather than raise their rates. Nothing that the railways propose is favored. What railway has Mr. Brandeis managed profitably that he is heard with such respect upon the subject? Why does he appear in the case officially? When the shippers dropped their opposition to the increase of rates they naturally left their counsel unemployed, and he was engaged by the Interstate Commerce Commissioners. What need for "special counsel" have the Judges in the case? If they need such advice why is it not sought in less partial quarters? Why are the railways put into the position of defendants when they are merely petitioners for what other businesses possess as a right? All prices having risen except railways rates, it is a demonstration that railway rates are unreasonable in their relations to costs. What the railways receive buys less of what they must have to keep them running. They are paid less for working harder, and the "special counsel" of the Commission is listened to when he argues that it is all right. The country needs efficient railways more than it needs lower rates.

DANCING AS EXERCISE.

That the present dances are good for the young and old of either sex and should be encouraged is, manifestly, the judgment of Dr. William G. Anderson of the Yale Gymnasium, conveyed in his letter to The Times, appearing elsewhere. In his recent speech to the dancing masters of this city Dr. Anderson justified Herbert Spencer's objection to formal gymnastics of a will-less character, which, he said, could never supply the place of the movements prompted by nature, and added that greater benefit accrues "in the riotous glee with "which young people carry on their "frolics." The girl who dances all night at the Junior Promenade illustrates beautifully how the joy of it makes play of work.

Dr. Anderson believes that making the directive centres of the brain skillful in the evolutions of the dance stimulates and assists the faculties. In his speech in this city he referred to a thesis read at Clark University by the late Prof. Angelo Mosso which testified to the beneficial reaction upon the mind of diversified muscular movements. Prof. Mosso cited the manual activities of the great Italian masters as in point:

> During the first epoch of the Renaissance the greatest artists of Florence were all apprentices in the workshops of goldsmiths. Lucca della Robbia, Lorenzo Ghiberti, Fillipo Brunelleschi, Francia, Ghirlandajo, Botticelli, Andrea del Sarto—to mention only a few examples—performed during their apprenticeship the simplest labors in the workshop of a goldsmith. But the exercises with which they gained their manual dexterity surely influenced also the development of their genius. * * * A fact which cannot be doubted is the many-sidedness of genius which some of the Italians of the Renaissance possessed, which has never again appeared with like copiousness.

The games and dances of the Greeks, also, must have assisted in the development of their genius, as their intellectual exercises affected advantageously the development of the muscles. Dr. Anderson says that the majority of college athletes stand well in their studies, and many of them are honor men. He decries the Puritan repression of animal spirits, insisting only that they have outlet in channels of skill and grace.

INSIDE VIEWS OF THE PHILIPPINES.

We have had forwarded to us two letters from Manila, one from a gentleman employed in a banking house, addressed to a friend in the United States, the other from the representative of an extensive manufacturing company. There is a striking likeness between the two letters, coming from quite independent sources. In each is a tone of discouragement and of resentment at the causes of discouragement. Each reports business much disturbed and diminished by the sense of uncertainty in the public mind as to the course and effect of the change of policy made by the present Government. The "Filipinization" of the service is regarded in each as the principal cause of the confusion that prevails, and the substitution of Filipinos for Americans in the higher ranks of the service is especially deplored. This is condemned not only as lowering the efficiency and the dignity of the service, but as stimulating the hope and the greed of a peculiar class of native politicians. The changes in the lower grades of the service have been of the same order and have had similar unfortunate results, less acute but more extensive.

One feature of the picture of the situation in the islands which is emphasized in both these letters is of special significance. It is the feeling that prevails among intelligent Filipinos that the American Government is not living up to its pledge to secure them good government until such time as the natives should be able to take over that task. This, in some degree, is a novel view of the "protectorate" established by the United States in the Philippines. We have heard much of the advantages conferred on the islands by the work of Americans in education, in transport, in sanitation, in the orderly administration of local and provincial affairs, and in protection from foreign intervention. We have not quite realized how far American aid and guidance have been useful in preserving the mass of the people from the harm that can be inflicted upon them by the shrewd and avid politicians who seek to control the suffrage. It is this beneficent task that has appealed most to the middle class Filipinos, business men, agriculturists and tradesmen, who have come most in contact with the Americans and have achieved the most intimate relations with them. This is a class, of incalculable value to the islands, to whom the "Filipinization" of the public service seems and actually is the most formidable evil that they have to deal with. The representative of the New York Manufacturing Company says:

> The matter now stands that the politicians at Washington, backed by ill-informed constituents, are playing into the hands of designing politicians here among the natives. The vast majority of the well-to-do natives are in an agony of fear as to the present policy of giving their politicians such control. They freely state that the United States has violated its promise to protect them until they are strong enough to care for themselves, which is in the far-distant future.

There are signs that the Governor General of the Philippines already feels that he has been a little rash in his attempt to extend the share of Filipinos in the islands' service and that the results which are becoming daily more evident have moderated his views and expectations. It is reported on what seems good authority that the President is also somewhat disturbed by the working of the experiment. Happily, it is an experiment only, and those who have begun it can in time modify or reverse their policy. It is to be hoped that this will be done. At least there is little prospect that the absurd scheme of the last House of Representatives for granting full independence to the islands at a time fixed will be enacted. That at the present time seems about the wildest and most perilous plan that could be carried out, perilous not only to the Philippines but to our own country.

REGULATION BY LAW AND BY REASON.

The Steel Trust earned $65,000 toward its common dividend of $6,353,781 for the quarter just reported, and yet the stability of the investment remains undisturbed. Therein lies the secret of the difference between regulation by law and theory and regulation in the manner taught by experience. Lowness of rates is the prime object of regulation by law, as exemplified in the practice of the Interstate Commerce Commission. It has ruled that the railways shall not charge rates sufficient both to earn a profit and improve the railways. Betterments should come from capital investment, not from surplus earnings, and the rates should be reduced. The country now sees that the result of this theory is that the railways have inferior credit and are unable to secure the capital for the improvement of their properties. Rates have ceased to fall, as they were accustomed to under the previous practice, and the country is suffering from the check to railway growth far more than it benefits by the lowness of rates. There is scant margin above many dividends, and in some cases there is none.

The Steel Trust, on the other hand, was carrying an accumulation of fat in the shape of the largest surplus in its history. After the deduction of the unearned dividend the surplus remains at $181,738,322. Here is a momentum of the greatest value. It is a guarantee of wages, for one thing. The trust, which Mr. Gompers denounces as "the greatest enemy of labor," does not have to cut its labor costs at the first breath of reaction, and it does not have to descend to cut-throat competition. It can cut prices with the best in case of necessity. It is able to adopt this enlightened course because it is able to make hay while the sun shines and can enlarge its profits when it is least burdensome to its customers to pay them because their profits are also large. It is a mockery to say that the railways have the same commercial opportunities. For four years they have tried to share the rising prices enjoyed by all other interests. Now their opportunity seems at hand at a time of trade prostration, when the decrease of volume will to a considerable extent nullify the increase of rates, if indeed there is any increase.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Victory Not Yet Completed.

It was with the modesty characteristic of really great men that Dr. William A. Gorgas accepted the gold medal presented to him by the American Museum of Safety in recognition of the sanitary work in Panama which, it is hardly an exaggeration to say, made the building of the canal possible. It, and it alone, made possible the building except with a continuance of the almost intolerable expense in loss of human life that marked the French régime—an expense due, not to the fact that the régime was French, but to the inability of anybody, at that time, to control the tropic fevers, with which Panama was then perhaps better, or worse, supplied than any other place on earth.

Gen. Gorgas said that he took the medal only as the representative of the 400 or 500 young Americans who did the work of sanitation on the Isthmus. Of course that is the right way to take this and other like honors, but the old, old rule—to the leader the glory, and about all of it—is far from as unfair as it sometimes seems, especially to the led. Upon the leader, not upon them, rests the responsibility in case of failure, and on him, in that case, would fall the obloquy and disgrace.

Gen. Gorgas went on to say, however, that the most important result of what the sanitarians did in Panama was not the building of the canal, but the demonstration, for the first time on a large scale, that white men could go into the tropics with their wives and children and live there, in spite of hard daily labor, as safely as in the temperate zones. Doubt as to the accuracy of that statement can be expressed without even a hint of denial that the results achieved on the Isthmus were great and wonderful.

The death rate was indeed made magnificently low, considering the circumstances, but it was in a class of picked men, among whom, in the North, there would have been hardly any deaths at all except from accident, and even these men were kept in condition only by long and frequent furloughs home. This was not making the tropics "safe for white men," in any ordinary usage of the word "safe." What was shown in Panama, strictly speaking, was no more than that such men can now be protected for a while in such places, especially from the malignant infections which formerly were so often and promptly fatal to them. For permanent residence the tropics still are, and probably always will be, for black and brown men alone.

Was She in Jest or Earnest?

Few humiliations are deeper than those which come upon him who takes in earnest what was intended as a joke, and proceeds to indulge in denunciation or ridicule which only results in proving himself lacking in the sense of humor. Hence is it with the utmost caution that one can venture to comment on the letter, printed yesterday on this page, in which a feminine correspondent protested with seeming seriousness against the establishment by Dr. Grenfell, "on the Labrador," as they say up in that region, of deer ranches as a source of food supply for people who are often forced to go desperately hungry.

This scheme, assuming its practicability—and Dr. Grenfell ought to know whether it is practicable or not, and presumably does—strikes the ordinary human intelligence as both commendable and promising. It involves, however, the ultimate slaughtering of the animals to be reared in the ranches, and, besides that, it will bring upon a certain number of Labradorians demoralization declared by our correspondent to be incidental to the killing of beasts and the handling of their "remains." Also it would lead to the eating of more meat, to the further detriment of health and morals!

Instead of raising reindeer—the caribou is only a slight variant of that species—it was suggested that the people of the Labrador should go into the business of turning their forests into furniture for sale in the South.

Now the interesting problem—important, too, in these days, when there is so much talk about letting the women vote—is whether the author of this remarkable letter was in earnest, or whether she was just poking solemn fun at the vegetarians and assorted victims of zoophil-psychoses, who are constantly talking and writing nonsense almost as astounding as this.

The question is almost as puzzling as is the mystery why white men, or even Indians, ever want to live in such a desolate region, where they are always on the very verge of starvation, and often in its centre, or the still greater mystery why, being able to get away, they continue to stay there. They are an intelligent and sturdy lot, and apparently able to hold their own in competition with the dwellers in more favored climes.

Remarks on Gyroscope Automobiles.

That a two-wheel vehicle can be "stabilized," as the aviators say, by means of the gyroscope has long been known and not infrequently proved. Yet the large and confident promises of a complete change in land transportation by means of this ingenious and interesting device are strangely slow of fulfillment, particularly as they are all based on sound science, and the utilities of the gyroscope, though so attractive to the theorists, obstinately remain few and not very important.

The latest attempt to use the whirling disk as an automatic preserver of balance is reported from London. There a Dr. Schidowsky has made a gyroscopic motor car that on public trial went along on two wheels in tandem as steadily as other cars go on four. The stabilization was really effected, but one notices that the new machine costs more to make than the most expensive of ordinary automobiles, that it was extremely heavy, and that it couldn't be run over four miles an hour.

These are not fatal, or even discouraging, defects in a new car, built for experimental purposes, and likely enough they can all be remedied. It is not obvious, however, that a two-wheeled automobile would have many or important superiorities over one with the orthodox four wheels, and the few superiorities that can be imagined seem hardly worth getting at the cost of an added complication to a machine already terribly complex, and with an incidental diversion of power from the running gear to the gyroscope. The opportunities for accidents, too, would apparently be increased for the gyroscopic car, and the present automobiles give us quite enough of those to meet all reasonable demands.

COLORADO SUFFRAGISTS.

Mr. Wheeler Sees in Miners' War a Disproof of Their Boasts.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

'George Creel, who heads the hysterical protest in Denver against the action of the Governor of Colorado, is the same Creel who in a recent article in The Century held Colorado up as a model State and declared that woman suffrage was sweeping "like a prairie fire." We know that the end of that fire is destruction. The simile is apt.

His argument was that the votes of women were curing all political evils and had cured them in Colorado. Yet now he declares that the Government of that State is tyrannical and calls for impeachment of the Governor.

We do not know whether Mr. Rockefeller is right when he testifies that the cause of the civil war in Colorado is the insistence by the Miners' Federation that non-union men shall not work in the mines. But of one thing we may all be sure. New York is a much better place to live in than Colorado.

THE MUFFLER CUTOUT

Has Its Uses and Should Not Be Altogether Abolished.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a recent editorial article on the much-debated muffler question you seem to advocate what I understand to be compulsory elimination of the muffler cutout from automobiles. To begin with, your statement that use of the muffler does not affect power output is incorrect. I have before me a copy of a report on certain gasoline motor tests from which I see that (other factors being equal) removing the muffler may increase the power of a motor 15 per cent. You are aware that aeroplane motors are run without muffler or even exhaust manifold in order to obtain the advantage of this extra power. I admit, however, that for ordinary running speeds through the city the difference in power alone is not sufficient to warrant constant use of the cutout.

It would be a mistake, however, to make the cutout illegal. To the trained man it gives an excellent indication of the working of the motor. By the sound of the explosions we can tell whether good combustion is taking place. The "racing" done by chauffeurs before taking the cars out of the garage is done not to cause wanton noise, as a recent correspondent seems to think, but to "limber up" the motors and to see whether they are working correctly.

As to running on the road with the silent cars that are in use to-day it would be well-nigh impossible to locate a missing cylinder unless the cutout were brought into action.

The use of the cutout should be regulated and its abuse forbidden, but abolishing it entirely would be a mistake.

THE COLLEGIANS' CLUB.

Men and Women, Young and Old, Should Mingle Freely in It.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read with deepening interest the letters you have published from well-bred, self-supporting bachelors and bachelor girls. Of course, the bachelor in Sleepy Hollow, with his humane observations on a perfectly adorable "milk-white-nosed baby" set us all to thinking of our ethical obligations to other human beings. And, in passing, I must say I am convinced that the bachelor in Sleepy Hollow is one of the "illuminati," not only because he reads and enjoys Maupassant, but also because of his bravery in daring to own to a beautiful emotion in this cynical age.

Later, the bachelor of Brooklyn ably continued the succession of very human letters. Yale '08's letter, unfolding a plan for a new social club for young men and women graduates, I heartily agree to at every point, with one exception. Why put so much stress on the word young? I am a young woman, but the most interesting men and women that it has been my good fortune to know, here and abroad, have been of fifty and over. The social needs of older college men and women are quite as great as those of the younger people. I think the mingling of old and young would prove advantageous to both. The young have boundless enthusiasm and high ideals, but they could not fail to gain immeasurably by coming in contact with the fine, strong characters of the older people. These are the ones whose characters have been tried as by fire in the varied experiences of life. I am anxious to meet these splendid people, so I make a plea right here for the full recognition of older men and women.

In Yale '08's outline of the club I like a certain clause especially well. It is this: "Any two members to have the privilege of proposing applicants for membership among their friends, these not necessarily to be graduates of colleges, but approved in character and ability." Many, for various reasons, have been prevented from completing their college course. Others who craved a college education have been persuaded by relatives that such a course would be impractical for them.

Finally, the whole of Yale '08's letter is strong, to the point, and proves him to be a fair, broad-minded man. It forms a fitting climax to the series of letters from "worth-while" bachelors and bachelor girls. Above all things, I should like to become a member of the proposed club for good fellowship.

FREE GOVERNMENT SEEDS.

A Challenge to Prove Their Merit by a Practical Test.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

So Mr. Keeble of Bayside thinks I can't be a good gardener because I find Government seeds worthless. I wonder what particular sort of incompetency he thinks I have that works so much worse with Government seeds than with others. He might with more plausibility have called me a mere parrot, repeating at second hand the things that are always said by those whose opinion is considered valuable. For that matter, aside from printed opinion and neighborhood talk, I have heard the general worthlessness of these Congressional distribution seeds asserted by the lips of one of the foremost horticultural experts of the United States Department of Agriculture—one of the front-rank men, understand. I might have been quoting him. But in point of fact I have been so foolish as to try the Government seeds times enough to be able to testify from my own knowledge. I do not deny that good seed sometimes gets into these packages, just as it sometimes gets into the bright-colored packages down at the store. I only say that the seed is not generally good, and the man who uses it will waste most of his time on inferior crops.

I hurl back upon Mr. Keeble's own head his accusation of not knowing how to make a garden. Furthermore, I challenge him to a trial of seed. The Government carrot seed this Spring, at least here in Massachusetts, was Guerande or Oxhart; the lettuce, if I remember right, was May King. I have bought seed of these varieties this Spring by mail from seedsmen with a reputation. If he will send me thirty or forty of his Government carrot and lettuce seeds, (I fed mine to the chickens,) I will send him the same quantity of my seeds of corresponding sorts on the understanding that we are each of us to plant the two stocks side by side, give them identical treatment, and report in The Times what were the comparative results.

REFORMED.

The oats that I raise are no longer wild, and of debts of honor, none;
The gay red lights and the long white nights don't make, nowadays, my fun.
I'm not any more of the same old push, the coterie, gang, or group,
(The laws of speed I break, indeed, when the kidlet has the croup.)

'Tis seldom I hear about the boys. Dick went to the East, you know;
He started with vim, but the life got him, and he's nary result to show.
And Harry took up with his father's line, after breaking the old man's heart,
While Tom stuck around till he ran aground; now he chaufs from the motor mart.

And Mazie is married and settled down—with her husband I never was strong.
I called him a dub, now both of 'em snub, and show me I've got in wrong.
From her box at the opera Mabel guns the rabble (my wife and me);
The other day I saw Nell Ray, (then found something better to see.)

I've a perfectly good garage, and a house all shiny with hardwood floors;
There's canned goose grease on the mantelpiece, and my smoking room's all out doors;
The yearling wears two-year sizes now, so we ought to feel content,
But I look at the lad, and am almost sad when I think how the iron men went.

Late dinners, alas! we pass them up—we've no glad rags for a dance,
For I've outgrown every coat I own; there's a "V" in my old dress pants;
It's amazing to think of the things I believed made life, at twenty-two,
But in the discard, and the old boneyard, they will stay, now, you bet you!

In that room upstairs where the light burns dim is what makes it all worth while,
Though he just can creep and sozzle sleep, and pay for care with a smile,
But he's going to have whatever I missed—it's only fair that he should—
And I'll save and scrimp so that little imp may see my place kept good.

It ain't regret that I'm feeling now—to remorse I'm not a prey;
I'd a darn good time, and, for every dime, 10 cents' worth along the way;
I've cut it out because forty years don't listen like twenty-two—

DANCING

For Young and Old as Seen by a Physiological Psychologist.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When in charge of the physical training of a large school in Brooklyn in 1888 I was early impressed by the lack of interest shown by pupils in calisthenics. The daily request for a "short dance period" led to the determination that formal gymnastics would become more attractive if dancing or dancing steps were made a part of the required work. After taking lessons from four of the best teachers of society and stage dancing in New York City the innovation was tried and was an instant success. The radical change brought forth much criticism, but the interest of the pupils grew and made the experiment worth while. To-day there is not a normal school of gymnastics, a Summer institute of physical education, and only a few of the Y. M. C. A.'s or Y. W. C. A.'s where dancing is not a major topic, while in many of the colleges for women and a few for men dancing is taught.

From the beginning of all life the sexes have danced and they continue to do so. The male animal dances and capers, the birds waltz and coo, the domestic barnyard fowl struts before the members of his harem and does a modified "turkey trot" or "lame duck." There are two all-impelling instincts which move man and animals—they are procreation and fighting, but underlying these is the greatest of all—love.

Eliminate from the dance the possibility of the sexes being together and its popularity would at once wane. Every gesture of affection or endearment is an outgrowth of some expression of the union of one sex with the other.

Again, of two men with similar personal characteristics who dance, one immediately appeals to the onlookers, the other does not; one receives hearty applause, the other fails, and we ask at once, Why? One is graceful. He conserves his physical energy, he spends just enough to make the movements accord with some standard that exists in the human mind. The other, performing the same evolutions, wastes his energy, is, in short, awkward.

There is within each one of us a harp of emotions upon which chords of harmony or dissonance are struck by graceful or awkward movements. Precisely what this harp is we do not know; only a long and careful study of rhythm and harmony will answer the question. We know it is there and we are made either happy or are distressed by the feelings that motion arouses. This is really the crux of the problem that appeals to the writer. Centuries ago "the master of those who know," Aristotle, taught that happiness was the ultimate object of life. We know that agreeable mental excitement has a highly invigorating influence, that a concord of rhythmical movements makes us happy, but we do not yet know why joy makes play of work.

A concrete instance selected from hundreds of a like character is that of the "Junior Prom Girl." Often a "slender slip of a lass" will dance from 9 P. M. until 4 A. M., then attend a dawn tea and dance from 6 until 8, and ask to have a few encores from 10 to 12 o'clock. This young woman has been enjoying "riotous glee" for from six to ten hours, but does not manifest fatigue, and will scoff at the suggestion that she is tired. We often refer in a humorous way to instances of this character, but the psychologists still persist in asking the question "Why?"

It is known that rational dancing, either social or stage, more or less actively stimulates the action of the heart and lungs. In turn these activities send fresh arterial blood to the organs and tissues of the body, producing a chemical change, a constructive metamorphosis of the cells which results in improved conditions, in better health. In this respect the dance is good for both old and young. But let us come at once to an understanding that we are considering normal persons, not pathological cases. When in doubt about the safety of taking up the modern dance the adult should first consult a physician.

There are, roughly speaking, two brains—one for movement, the other for intellectual activities. These are closely correlated, are interdependent, and the development of one will materially assist when the other is to be trained.

The muscle brain is called the motor area, the Rolandic division, and, like its sister brain, is made up of millions of cells. Just as soon as a definite circuit can be made among the cells and energy is liberated skilled movement is the result. The muscle has not a scintilla of skill in itself, it is merely a servant.

The greater the number of "circuits" completed the greater the muscular education of the person and the more reliable is the physical basis of psychic activity. Dancing is valuable in this respect because through pleasurable means permanent and trustworthy circuits are built. The muscularly versatile man possesses good brain substance which may be easily trained mentally, but like gold hidden in the ground, it is valueless unless used. The majority of college athletes stand well as students, many of them receiving honors.

Dancing alone will never take the place of gymnastic drill; the two should be wisely combined. Formal gymnastics have so much in their favor that they should not be entirely eliminated from our system of bodily development, but the love for dancing should be utilized by teachers of gymnastics. Pupils from schools where dancing is the only form of bodily development too often stand badly, walk poorly, have flat chests, round or stooping shoulders. They are graceful in their dancing evolutions, but the bodies are unsymmetrical, the arms, neck, and chests failing to show the strength or symmetry of the legs. The teacher of dancing should adopt gymnastic movements, and the director of physical training should teach dancing movements that have for their object poise, balance, and grace.

FORCIBLE FEEDING

To the Editor of The New York Times:

After silently wondering for a long time why so much fuss has been made over "forcible feeding" I feel constrained to give vent to an expression of opinion.

In every asylum for the insane, in this country at least, there are always a number of patients who are kept alive by forcible feeding, the desire to starve to death being common to insanity.

The writer has personally fed scores of such patients, sometimes via the mouth, sometimes through the nose. It is a very simple operation either way if the patient is easily subdued, but even in the case of desperate resistance a little "know how" makes the whole procedure tame and uninteresting. Feeding by means of a small rubber tube up the nostril, through the pharynx and down the aesophagus, is not at all difficult after the patient has been overcome, nor is it specially unpleasant to the patient, if the word of sane invalids can be taken as authority.

Given a camisole (straitjacket) and a nose tube two attendants who know their business can restrain and feed a violent patient without injury to any one, and unless said patient practices the trick of auto-regurgitation the nourishment does almost as much good as though it had been taken conventionally. It is necessary with some patients to keep light pressure over the gastric region for a time to prevent vomiting, and this is done by keeping them upon their backs.

Any variety of "hunger strike" that the experienced attendant is called upon to break can be handled with no more skill than is required for manifold other emergencies, and I respectfully suggest that our prisons call upon our lunatic asylums if they find themselves incompetent to deal with this familiar phase of abnormality.

EQUITABLE BUILDING CORNERSTONE LAID

Mayor Seals Up Bronze Box for Largest Office Structure in the World.

TO HOUSE 15,000 PERSONS

Workmen Perched Aloft on Steel Framework Witness Ceremonies —City Officials at Luncheon.

Mayor Mitchel yesterday wielded the silver trowel which cemented the bronze box within the granite cornerstone of the new Equitable Building. So far as is known no other building erected purely by private enterprise in New York has ever had a Mayor to lay its cornerstone. In view of the number of city officials present at the formal occasion and later at the luncheon in the Whitehall Club, the affair resembled some important municipal function, and this was reflected by the Mayor in his speech.

After a brief introduction by Gen. T. Coleman du Pont, President of the Equitable Office Building Corporation, the Mayor, taking the trowel and standing by the cornerstone at the Broadway and Cedar Street corner of the building, said:

"This celebration seems a notable incident in the history of the city. The erection of great buildings has come to be commonplace with us, but the building of such structures as this, the Woolworth Building, and the Municipal Building are, in themselves, noteworthy human achievements. They are not so merely because they are achievements of skill and energy and idealism, but also because they constitute genuine contributions to civic beauty.

"I understand that the owners of this Equitable Building compare it to a municipality. It will house 15,000 persons. It will contain a multitude of independent enterpirses, all operated independently, but depending for their convenience and their comfort, and even for their success, upon the common services rendered by the building, and upon the efficiency of those services. The analogy to a city is interesting and stimulating. It is so with the city.

Similar to City's Functions.

"The functions of a city are similar upon a large scale to those of a building upon a lesser scale. The task of the City Government to-day is to make the common services rendered to the people achieve the highest degree of serviceability, just as the task of the owners of this building in planning and conceiving and operating it is to make these common services of the building achieve the greatest efficiency for the tenants.

"I congratulate the owners of the building upon this, the largest, if not the highest office building in the world. I congratulate them upon their contribution to the equipment of the city. I congratulate them upon having, what I feel may possible be, the last of these cities within a city—but that is a problem for to-morrow. To-day I take genuine pleasure in laying this cornerstone and in wishing godspeed and safety in the completion of this great enterprise."

Scores of workmen from the steel framework above the cornerstone inclosure looked down upon the simple proceedings and as a shrill whistle proclaimed the setting of the cornerstone in position the windows of the big office buildings near by were crowded with eager faces. Mounted policemen kept the traffic from becoming congested in Broadway before the arrival of the Mayor's automobile and a cheer went up from the throng outside as Mayor Mitchel emerged and was quickly driven away to the Whitehall Building for luncheon in the Whitehall Club on the top floor of that huge structure.

After the luncheon there were several informal speeches. President McAneny of the Board of Aldermen presided, as the Mayor left early. Mr. McAneny raised a laugh by saying that the presiding officer seemed to be misplaced, as he was the Chairman of the Heights of Buildings Commission which was endeavoring to curtail the number of towering skyscrapers. He referred to the old Equitable Building as having been one of the institutions of the city and paid a tribute to the management of the Equitable Assurance Society and its founder, Henry Baldwin Hyde. Vice President John B. Lunder of the Equitable Company gave a brief history of the company and told how, little by little, the entire block bounded by Broadway, Nassau, Cedar and Pine Streets had been acquired.

Smith, Frank W. Woolworth, Herman Ridder, Jacob H. Schiff, Gen. E. A. McAlpin, Allan Robinson, Laurence M. D. McGuire, Travis H. Whitney, E. H. ADAMSON PREDICTS CHANGE

Says City Must Place All Fire Alarm Wires Underground.

Fire Commissioner Adamson told the Jovian Order, an organization of men in the electrical industry, at a luncheon yesterday at Kalil's restaurant, that the city would soon have to rebuild its fire alarm system and place all of the wires underground.

The heavy snow storms of last Winter, said Mr. Adamson, had made it evident that the step must not be delayed. After the worst of the storms, he asserted, it took seventeen days to get the fire alarm system in good working order. Manhattan Borough, where most of the wires were underground, fared best.

Mr. Adamson also said that the city should obtain control of all of the subway conduits in which wires of any kind were strung.

VINCENT ASTOR WILL WED TO-DAY

His Marriage to Miss Helen D. Huntington to be Witnessed by 64 at Hopeland House.

SISTER TO ATTEND BRIDE

Hermann Oelrichs the Best Man—Bridal Gift of Pearl Necklace—Sheriffs to Guard Grounds.

The wedding of Vincent Astor and Miss Helen Dinsmore Huntington, which is to be celebrated to-day at 12:30 P. M. at the Hopeland House, the country estate of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Huntington, at Staatsburg, N. Y., will be of the simplest character. Owing to Mr. Astor's illness, it will be as quiet as possible, and no one will be allowed on the grounds of the estate during the day, except those who have been invited.

There is almost no chance now of Mr. Astor suffering a relapse, as he still shows continued improvement, although he has not been out of doors since his illness. Only the near relatives and intimate friends have been invited to attend, and the guests will not number more than 64.

There was talk of delaying the wedding, but both Mr. Astor and Mr. Huntington were opposed to a postponement. Finally it was decided that the ceremony should be performed on the date originally set, and all arrangements for a large wedding were given up. The wedding invitations were ready, but were not sent out. Those who were invited received a verbal or written message from Mr. and Mrs. Huntington. It was said yesterday that the young couple opposed a postponement of the wedding to May, owing to the prevailing superstition among brides as to this month being unlucky for brides, but this was not confirmed by the family.

The ceremony is to take place in the library of Hopeland House, which is on the ground floor, a large room paneled with dark oak, which opens into a conservatory to the south, and into what is known as the long room to the north. Flowers from the Huntington conservatory will be used for the decorations. The bridal party will pass to the library through the long room, coming down a great marble staircase, which leads down to the entrance hall at the front of the house.

The bride will be attended by her younger sister, Miss Alice Huntington, as maid of honor. Alice Astor, the young sister of the bridegroom, and Margaret Dows, daughter of Tracy Dows, who is a neighbor of the Huntingtons, are to serve as flower girls. Hermann Oelrichs, son of Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs, is to be Mr. Astor's best man. There will be no ushers. The Rev. Charles H. Duncan, rector of St. Margaret's Church at Staatsburg, is to officiate.

The bride's gown is very simply made of white tulle, trimmed with rare old lace that was worn by Miss Huntington's grandmother, Mrs. Dinsmore, and by her mother at their weddings. The train will be of white satin, falling from the shoulders. Her only ornament will be a magnificent pearl necklace, Mr. Astor's gift.

Many costly presents have been received by the bride. One that she prizes highly is a large cedar chest, which was presented to her by the citizens of Huntington, Ind., which was named for one of her ancestors.

After the ceremony a bridal breakfast is to be served. There will be eight tables, with eight guests sitting at each, and the bride's table will be like the others except for the wedding cake. White orchids will enter into the decoration of the house and breakfast tables.

Miss Huntington's only brother, Robert Huntington, who is a student at St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., is home for the wedding. Among the guests will be Mrs. John Astor, the mother of the bridegroom, who plans to sail for England with her young daughter on Saturday. Mrs. John Jacob Astor, who was Miss Madeleine T. Force, the young widow of Col. Astor, is at White Sulphur Springs, West Va., with her child, and will not attend the wedding.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., April 29.—Sheriff Fred Hornbeck of Dutchess County, who gained prominence in the recent chase into Canada of Harry K. Thaw, with five of his deputies, will go to Staatsburg early to-morrow morning to act as honorary guard at the Huntington home during the wedding ceremony of Vincent Astor and Miss Helen Dinsmore Huntington. This action will be taken in honor of Mr. Astor, who was recently appointed a deputy by Sheriff Hornbeck. Orders have been issued to keep all sightseers from the grounds during the ceremony.

Her tulle veil was caught up with sprays of orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and white roses. Miss Adelaide Reid was her sister's maid of honor. She wore a pale pink gown, topped with an old-fashioned straw bonnet to match, and carried a basket of pink sweet peas. Miss Florence Fenning, a sister of the bridegroom, acted as bridesmaid. FIELD FOR BARNARD GIRLS.

Bureau of Occupations Is Described by Mary S. Snow.

Miss Mary S. Snow, of the Intercollegiate Bureau of Occupations, addressed the students of Barnard College yesterday afternoon. She said the bureau had been established to help the girl who wanted to escape teaching to find something else to do.

Statistics show that of three big eastern colleges 50 per cent. of the graduates marry, 40 per cent. teach, and 10 per cent. are engaged in some other occupation. Other than pedagogy, there are sixty-nine occupations open to the college graduate on the bureau's list. Among these, Miss Snow outlined the most important. In the social service field, the demand for workers is increasing rapidly. Secretarial work demands a large number of girls, and girls of varying types.

A few college women who are thoroughly trained scientists find excellent positions in laboratories—at Washington, in the Department of Agriculture, in health laboratories in different cities, and in the research laboratories of physicians, occasionally. For nurses, too, the demand is increasing rapidly. In welfare work, in connection with insurance companies, as well as in the regulation sick-room cases, the trained nurse is needed.

In all these brances of work, Miss Snow said, a college woman must have special training along the line in which she intends to specialize, over and above her academic course.

"VIK" AT WALLACK'S.

It is a Play of Early Christianity by Myra Wiren.

"Vik," a play in four acts, first shown a year ago as a benefit for Stony Wold, was presented last evening at Wallack's Theatre. In it, Myra Wiren has sought to tell in dramatic form a story of the beginnings of Switzerland, a story of the conflict between Druidism and Christianity, between the ancient tribal customs of the Celts and a new civilization that came by way of Rome.

"Vik" is one of those plays that once in a theatrical blue moon manage in some incredible fashion to pass by all the barriers which hedge in the commercial theatre, and so reach a first night on Broadway. They serve to remind us all that the mere fact of a manuscript's continued refusal by the professional producers of plays is not in itself a proof of suitability for the purposes of the stage. But it must be said that Miss Wiren's quest of a fair hearing for her work is hardly helped by the part the company and the stage director play in its present production.

Last night's audience was largely made up of members of the United Swiss Societies, and after the third act the announcement was made that "Vik" would remain at Wallack's indefinitely.

PRESBYTERY HAS NO TITLE TO CHURCHES

Court of Appeals Decision Affects Many Millions of Church Property.

FIGHT OVER WESTMINSTER

Counsel for Church Says a Great Victory Has Been Won in the Interest of Religious Freedom.

Members of the Presbyterian Church, lay and clerical, discussed with great interest yesterday the opinion handed down by the Court of Appeals in the case of the Westminster Presbyterian Church of West Twenty-third Street against the Trustees of the Presbytery of New York, sustaining the right of the church corporation to possess the church property which was taken away from it when that congregation was dissolved by the Presbytery.

It was admitted by men high in the councils of the Presbyterian Church that the ruling of the court was far-reaching in its probable effect, because the Presbytery loses control of church property in Manhattan and the Bronx alone valued at more than $15,000,000, while it ceases to have control over church property acquired by individual congregations in the State, valued at more than $50,000,000. Furthermore, if the ruling of the Court of Appeals of New York should be taken as a precedent in other States, the value of the church property that would be affected aggregates something like $750,000,000.

"The possibilities are more serious than the probabilities," said Dr. Jesse F. Forbes, Secretary of the Church Extension Committee of the Presbytery of New York, who learned of the ruling of the Court of Appeals through THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday. "If the Presbytery had been sustained each Presbytery would have had the power to dissolve any church subject to the right of review and control by the Synod and the General Assembly, and enter into the possession of its property. That would have made the Presbytery the owner of the property.

"However, I suppose the Presbytery in the future will never dissolve another church under the same circumstances that it dissolved the Westminster Presbyterian Church. It never had occasion to dissolve one before the Westminster Church under like conditions. The question simply was, 'Who is the overlord?' Ecclesiastically the Presbytery is, because when contributions are made by a group of individuals for the erection of a building where they may worship and hold services as a denomination, they become a part of that denomination. The question is one that should have been settled long ago. Individual congregations and Presbyteries all over the country have been awaiting the result."

Dr. Forbes could not say what further action on behalf of the Presbytery was contemplated, and Henry W. Jessup, counsel for the Presbytery, who said he had not seen a copy of the opinion handed down by Chief Judge Bartlett, declined to "discuss the affairs of a client."

It was suggested by Dr. Forbes that the Presbytery, however, might have ground for further action on the statute providing that the property of a congregation which for two years has not received the administrations of a minister of that denomination, shall pass into the possession of the general governing body.

When the Westminster Presbyterian Church in West Twenty-third Street was dissolved by the Presbytery in 1908, nearly a hundred members of the congregation moved uptown and established a place of worship in a frame dwelling at 556 West 141st Street. The Presbytery forbade them to use the name Westminster Presbyterian Church, and when the Rev. John Newton Lyle, a member of the Presbytery of New York, began to administer to the little congregation, he was compelled by order of the Presbytery to cease his ministrations to the congregation, which assumed its old name. The Rev. Mr. Lyle withdrew.

Following the withdrawal of the Rev. Mr. Lyle, the congregation obtained the services of a minister from a New Jersey Presbytery. He was not within the jurisdiction of the local Presbytery, but when the Presbytery of New York learned that he was administering to the dissolved congregation under the name of the Westminster Presbytery Church, it immediately communicated with the New Jersey Presbytery, and soon the little congregation found itself without a shepherd. It is therefore a question whether it can be established that the congregation has been without orthodox administration for two years, because it actually did obtain at intervals the services of orthodox Presbyterian ministers, even though they withdrew in compliance with the will of the Presbytery of New York.

Richmond J. Reese, of 64 Wall Street, counsel for the Westminster Presbyterian Church, saw for the first time in THE TIMES an extract from the opinion of Chief Judge Bartlett. He said that a great victory had been won in the interest of "religious freedom," provided that the principle established was exercised in the future by "God-fearing Christians." Mr. Reese before making that comment briefly reviewed the fight in the interest of "religious freedom" that had been made by the congregation of the Westminster Presbyterian Church. He said:

"The Westminster Presbyterian Church was dissolved on March 17, 1908. An appeal was taken to the ecclesiastical court and from there to the New York Synod. When a final appeal was made to the General Assembly, it held that each Presbytery should be the judge of facts in which it was a party. But the Presbytery had the right to dissolve the church, and accordingly closed the church property. The final decision having been made by the General Assembly, the Westminster Presbyterian Church and the Presbytery took the matter into the civil courts.

"The Westminster Presbyterian Church brought an action for ejectment, and on the other side the Presbytery brought an action to acquire the title to the church property of the congregation it had dissolved. Justice Greenbaum in the first action, and Justice Dayton in the second, both handed down opinions favoring the Westminster Presbyterian Church.

"An appeal was taken by the Presbytery to the Appellate Division, where the decisions of the Supreme Court were reversed, in the Spring of 1911. The Appellate Division said in substance that the church property was dedicated to the uses of the Presbyterian denomination, as represented by the governing body; that the governing body had the sole right as decided by ecclesiastical trial courts to dissolve a church, and that, therefore, the church was incapable of using the property, as its spiritual life had been declared forfeited. To carry out the purposes of the dedication the Presbytery said that it would administer the property, and that it was entitled to a conveyance made by a trustee of the court's appointment.

"Justice Ingraham, presiding, dissented, but, with the concurrence of the other Justices, the Appellate Division sent the case back for retrial to the Supreme Court. Justice Gerard directed a verdict this time for the defendant, pursuant to the ruling of the Appellate Division, and judgment was entered accordingly on that verdict as directed. This judgment was appealed from, first to the Appellate Division, which affirmed it, Justice Ingraham dissenting again, and from that decision the present appeal was taken.

"The decision means that the millions of dollars invested in Presbyterian Church property in this State are not in danger of being wrested from the control of the Trustees of the church corporations by the action of the Presbytery to which the churches belong upon such Presbytery passing a resolution dissolving the church for reasons sufficient to the Presbytery. It means if any Presbytery shall dissolve a church and sever the ecclesiastical connection between itself and the church, that the property will follow the dissolved church, which preserves its corporate entity and may worship as an independent Presbyterian congregation. It establishes the principle of religious freedom in thought and action, if exercised in good faith by God-fearing Christians."

The troubles of the Westminster Presbyterian Church, covering a period of nearly ten years, grew out of differences of opinion between members of its governing body and a former pastor. In 1905 the session of the church, composed of the pastor and elders, suspended six members of the congregation and excommunicated two trustees. These members appealed to the Presbytery, and a judicial commission was appointed to review the case. The suspended members and excommunicated trustees were restored to the church by the Judicial Commission. Subsequently the Westminster Presbyterian Church was consolidated with the Eighth Avenue Presbyterian Church, and the consolidation tried to get possession of the church property of the first named congregation.

Then followed the dissolution of the Westminster Presbyterian Church, the seizure of its property by the Presbytery, and the ejectment proceedings instituted by the church. At present the church property at 210 West Twenty-third Street, formerly occupied by the church, is used by the West Twenty-third Street congregation, of which the Rev. Harlan G. Mendenhall is pastor.

FIXING PRICES FOR RETAILERS

Dealers and Manufacturers Discuss the Stevens Bill, Which Has This End.

ARGUMENTS FOR EACH SIDE

Question Whether the Maker of an Article Shall Say for How Much It Must Be Sold.

Before the Committee on Commercial Law of the Merchants' Association a hearing was had yesterday afternoon in the Woolworth Building on the Stevens bill which is aimed at price cutting. Edward D. Page, Chairman of the committee, presided. About 150 men were in attendance, representing manufacturers, jobbing houses, and retailers.

The Chairman, in calling the meeting to order, explained in general the terms of the bill. This will permit the manufacturer of an article under a trade mark or special brand to fix the sale price of the same at wholesale or retail and will make valid contracts fixing the price. Mr. Page said it had been decided to give a half an hour to hear those favoring the bill and then to allow the same time to its opponents. After that, a similar amount of time would be allotted to each side again, and, subsequently, briefs could be put in by those interested either way, as the committee would take time before reaching a conclusion.

Charles H. Ingersoll, President of the Jewelers' Board of Trade and also of the American Fair Trade League, said the latter organization assumed responsibility for the measure. He added that Gilbert H. Montague, the league's counsel, who was present, would state the reasons in favor of it.

Mr. Montague said he would like to explain that the bill is optional, not compulsory. If it is adopted a manufacturer may elect whether to sell his goods without a brand or trademark and without controlling the retail price, or with such a mark and fix the price at which the public shall obtain them. He insisted that this was in no wise revolutionary, that it prevails in Great Britain, France, and Germany, and that it was the case here until a decision of the United States Supreme Court made it unlawful a few years ago. It would simply be restoring to the manufacturer a right under which he had been until recently proceeding.

Louis W. Porter, counsel for the Yale & Towne Manufacturing Company, said the company he represented favors the principle the bill stands for. He deemed the restrictions of the bill unnecessary. The broad proposition was that the man who made goods has the right to keep them or to sell them. When he sold, he had the right to do so at such prices and on such terms as he saw fit. The Stevens bill, he declared, did not go as far even as the English law in this respect.

"How would it be," asked the Chairman, "if a merchant got overstocked with such goods?"

Mr. Porter said this would be a matter wholly between those making the contract—the seller and the buyer. The general policy is to leave persons free to contract with one another as they see fit.

C. E. Ackerman, representing the Photographic Dealers' Association of this city, said that body favored the bill, as did also the National Association. They are organizations of retailers, he said in response to a question.

E. H. Outerbridge said his business included two products that are specialties. These he had had to advertise extensively in order to create a public demand, but he could not afford to pay for special salesmen all over the country. So he arranged with jobbers to handle the goods on commission. A number of years ago these jobbers complained that prices were being cut. The cutting was traced to one firm. Mr. Outerbridge refused to sell further to that firm, and made an agreement with the other jobbers to have their discounts cumulative and payable at the end of the year on their making affidavit that they had done no price cutting. This helped everybody.

Charles E. Butler, representing the American Booksellers Association, also spoke for the bill. He said every bookseller, publisher, and author favors it. They realize it was essential that all books should have a fixed price. The book trade has suffered more than any other from cut-rate competition. He read some advertisements which he claimed showed that books had been offered for sale at prices which were less than the retailers paid, plus the expenses of sale.

Congressman Metz, who explained he was in a hurry to catch a train for Washington, was given the floor. He has a bill of his own on the subject. He said the matter before Congress was the protection of the small dealer in some way. His own bill affected copyrighted or trade marked wares only. The requirement of the Stevens bill of having the maker's name and the price on everything would not be practicable or advisable for some things, drugs for example. Again, he did not see why the small dealer should get as low a price as the one who bought in large quantity or why the same sale price should prevail in California as here for articles manufactured in New York. He also wanted to know what prices would be charged to the United States Government for which the Stevens bill makes no provision.

Percy S. Straus of R. H. Macy & Co. opened the discussion for the opponents of the bill. He said he hardly expected to meet the arguments of lawyers at this hearing. Had he known of this, he would have asked his attorney to present the legal aspects of the case. What he wished to say was to express the belief that this matter is one which should be left to Congress, and that the Merchants' Association should not take a stand in the matter when its membership was divided in opinion any more than it would on a question of tariff. The measure, he said, was receiving the support of magazines, which receive a large amount of their revenues from the makers of trade-marked articles. The prices of things, he insisted, were best regulated by competition. If the bill were made law, it would put a stop to discounts for cash, put a premium on the instalment payment business, and also one on bankruptcy.

E. W. Bloomingdale said that different interests figured in these discussions, but that the consuming public had not been heard from. They were opposed to the bill, and even the retail dealers do not favor it. He called attention to a number of matters, especially affecting a return of goods, in which the bill would prove impracticable.

Simon F. Rothschild of Abraham & Straus, said the question involved was whether the manufacturer shall be able to dictate to the retailer the price at which an article shall be sold. This was monopolistic. When A sells an article to B, the latter becomes the absolute owner of it and has the right to dispose of it as he sees fit. If the Stevens bill passed, there would be an extension of trade-marked articles to a ridiculous extent.

George D. Beattys of the Aeolian Company said his company could not go on doing business if the bill became a law, as their sales had to be made on different terms.

W. H. Childs, of the Bon Ami Company and the American Coal Products Company, spoke in favor of the bill. He said the manufacturer who spent much money in advertising objected to having the jobber use the good will thus obtained in order to sell some other goods.

Mr. Montague reiterated some of his former arguments, and added that some of the points of the bill like the one preventing discrimination in prices had been put in because they "squared with the political temper of the times."

Mr. Bloomingdale said that it was a mistake to suppose that only a small quantity of goods was included in those trademarked. He showed that often the bulk of them in a store were of this kind. It was also a mistake to say that price-cutting was a recent occurrence. It has been going on for many years.

Harry Balfe, of Austin, Nichols & Co., made a vigorous attack on the bill. He said his concern handled 20,000 items, and he defied any person to name a single one of them that was not cut in price, or that would not be under the bill. The trouble was, he said, there were too many lawyers. Every one of them had a bill. What they were after would tear down every big man and would not elevate any small one. When the jobbing trade got into the hands of the manufacturers to say how much percentage they should give, there would be need of another bill to get rid of it. The Stevens bill, if enacted, would put a wall around every house of any kind in the city.

Mr. Straus emphasized the point that the passage of the bill would not bring matters to the condition they were in, as was claimed. As a matter of fact, dealers were never restrained from selling goods at any price they saw fit. If the bill became a law, it might have the effect of driving dealers to make their purchases abroad.

HALT DUNLOP ACCOUNTING.

Heirs Charge Widow Was in a Conspiracy to Loot the Estate.

Eight nephews and nieces of Dr. Clark W. Dunlop, who died on March 6, 1908, filed objections in the Surrogates' Court yesterday to the accounting of their uncle's estate made by their aunt, Mrs. Eliza C. Dunlop, John W. Bartlett, and the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, all executors of Dr. Dunlop's estate.

The executors, in their accounting, charge themselves with $96,108 and credit themselves with $47,446, leaving a cash balance in their hands of $48,661. The nephews and nieces, Laban S. Major, Marie L. D. Taylor, Gertrude D. Hawes, Helen D. Hutchinson, and William, Edward, Agnes, and Robert Dunlop, say that the accounting is defective and that Mrs. Eliza C. Dunlop and her attorney, Chester H. Lane, have conspired to loot the estate and to foment litigation. They have filed false claims, the nephews and nieces say, and have tried to compel the payment from the estate of the individual indebtedness of Mrs. Dunlop. All this has resulted, they say, in the loss of thousands of dollars.

Dr. Clark W. Dunlop, shortly before his death, was adjudged insane, and after his will had been filed, his heirs alleged that he had been insane at the time the document was drawn. Dr. Dunlop left the bulk of his estate to Mrs. Eliza C. Dunlop, his wife, and small amounts, ranging from $1,000 to $5,000 to his nephews and nieces. His estate was appraised at $265,307.

ANSWERS SUIT FROM GRAVE.

Muller in Will Denied Cruelty Toward Wife Who Asked Separation.

Carl Andreas Muller of Richmond Hill, Queens, who died April 12, has answered from the grave his wife's suit for separation, in which she alleged cruelty. Muller's will was filed yesterday with Surrogate Daniel Noble in Jamaica. It contains this provision:

"I intentionally omit making any provision for my wife, Louise Muller, and leave her no part or share whatever of my property, for the reason that she has not only abandoned me and lived apart from me for the last eighteen years, and that I have repeatedly but vainly requested her to return to my home, but she has compelled me to pay her the sum of $300 and to give a bond of $700, and that she has now brought a suit against me in the Supreme Court seeking a legal separation and wrongfully charging me with cruelty and other improper conduct toward her."

Muller's estate is valued at $8,500. His daughter, Mrs. Maria Katz of Brooklyn, is to have the furniture, and the remainder of the property is to be divided among all the children, Mrs. Katz, Mrs. Emma Sigwart of Morgantown, West Va.; Mrs. Theresa Koch of Manhattan; Karl E. Muller of Brooklyn, and Friedrich W. Muller of Valley Stream, L. I. Mrs. Muller's address is 378 Central Avenue, Brooklyn.

WINS SUIT AGAINST ISMAN.

$7,500 Verdict for Widow of Bluecoat, Killed by Realty Man's Car.

Mrs. Ellen Fitzsimmons got a verdict of $7,500 yesterday in Justice Lehman's part of the Supreme Court against Felix Isman, the real estate dealer, whose motor car killed Mrs. Fitzsimmons's husband, Policeman Peter Fitzsimmons, on Nov. 1, 1912. James M. Donohue, counsel for the plaintiff, said that the car was driven recklessly by the chauffeur. Mr. Isman was not in the car at the time the accident occurred. It was Mr. Isman's habit, Mr. Donohue explained, to place his car at the disposal of motor cycle policemen. On the night of the accident the car had been used by several bluecoats, and it was being driven back to the garage when Fitzsimmons was struck.

The chauffeur went on and said nothing about the accident. It was nearly three months afterward before the ownership of the car was traced. The chauffeur had disappeared in the meantime.

NEW STREET CAR MAGAZINE.

Monthly for Employes of New York Railways Company.

The New York Railways Company has begun the issue of a monthly publication for the benefit of its staff to be known as the New York Railways Employes' Magazine. It is similar in appearance to the Interborough Bulletin, which is published by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company for the Subway and elevated railroad employes, and has the same editor, Henry P. Waugh.

In the first number short addresses to the men are written by Theodore P. Shonts, President; Frank Hedley, Vice President and General Manager; H. G. Scott, Superintendent of Motive Power, and other leading officials. There are also articles on the way snow was cleared from the tracks last Winter, and on John Brodie, Receiver at Fourteenth Street and Avenue C, who has just retired on a life pension after thirty-seven years of work for the company.

FREDERIKA STILL AGROUND.

Freighter Is Getting Rid of 5,000 Tons of Sugar.

The Austro-American freighter Frederika, which went aground on Tuesday morning off Harveys Cedars, N. J., is still hard and fast on the sand, and has her bow swung in more toward the shore. Three wrecking tugs were alongside her all day getting out the 5,000 tons of sugar from her hold, and another attempt to haul her off will be made early to-day at high tide.

The wind and sea, which arose late on Tuesday night, have gone down and the weather is calm. The coast near Barnegat, where the Frederika is aground, was covered by fog during the greater part of the day. Capt. Suttora did not send any message ashore yesterday, it was said.

Only Ten Sultana Survivors Appear.

TOLEDO, Ohio, April 29.—Only ten survivors of the steamer Sultana explosion were able to attend the annual survivors' reunion here to-day. They received a communication from Congressman Frank B. Willis of Ohio to the effect that he would introduce a bill for the erection of a monument to the 1,750 victims of the Sultana explosion. They were Union veterans returning from the civil war on the steamer, which blew up on April 27, 1865, in the Mississippi River near Memphis. Only 461 were saved.

Stranded Montfort Afloat.

QUEBEC, April 29.—The Canadian Pacific Railway steamer Montfort, which grounded near the Isle of Orleans yesterday, was floated this morning. The vessel suffered no damage.

TAMMANY HELD KEY IN NEW HAVEN DEAL

THEN BOOKS WERE BURNED

Whipple and Field Testify That They Were Mere Dummies Acting for Samuel C. Morehouse.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Some of the details of the deal by which the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad acquired the franchises and right of way of the New York, Boston and Westchester, and the Portchester lines, were imparted to the Interstate Commerce Commission to-day by Oakleigh Thorne, former President of the Trust Company of America, of New York, who in conjunction with Marsden J. Perry, of Providence, conducted the transaction. Mr. Thorne said the New Haven road paid $11,400,000 for the properties, which was furnished by J. P. Morgan & Co., and that he and Mr. Perry received $725,000 for their services. He also said that in 1912, five years later, after he had retired from the presidency of the Trust Company, he burned all the books relating to the deal.

Frank S. Fowler, examiner for the commission, said an examination of the books of the Millbrook Company, which was organized by Mr. Thorne to take care of the financial affairs of the two roads after their acquisition, showed that more than $1,032,000 of the $11,400,000 paid by the New Haven had not been accounted for in the expenditures. Mr. Thorne explained this by saying that any balance left on hand after the transaction was turned over to the Millbrook company.

Henry H. Whipple of New Haven, former Treasurer of the Billard Company, and Edward E. Field, former President, testified to their connection with this concern. When these witnesses were before the commission on April 10 they refused to answer questions pertaining to alleged relations between the company and the New Haven Railroad and were threatened with indictment.

To-day they showed willingness to answer all questions, but insisted that they acted upon instructions from Samuel C. Morehouse, counsel for the Billard Company, and knew virtually nothing about the concern's affairs. It had been contended that John L. Billard and his associates made about $2,700,000 by the deal through which the New Haven took over the Boston & Maine. The witnesses, however, threw no light upon this affair.

Ignorant of Mellen Loan.

Mr. Whipple said he understood the Billard Company was a holding concern for the Boston & Maine Railroad, and that the reorganization in October was only for the purpose of winding up its affairs. He denied knowledge of any transaction whereby Charles S. Mellen had borrowed $375,000 from the Billard Company, and said that if the company had notes outstanding to the New Haven Road for $10,800,000 he was unaware of it.

Mr. Field showed equal ignorance of the business of the concern. He said he was Treasurer of a department store in New Haven, and that he took the Billard Presidency merely because Mr. Morehouse had asked him to do so. He said he asked nothing about the concern's affairs. After a few months he felt a little uncomfortable about being head of a company he knew so little about and resigned.

When Mr. Thorne took the stand he said he took up the matter of the so-called Westchester deal with Mr. Mellen in June or July, 1906. At that time the two roads were rivals for a franchise, and he said he told Mr. Mellen that if the two were combined a franchise probably could be arranged. A letter from Mr. Thorne to Mr. Mellen on Oct. 15, 1906, advising secrecy as to the details prior to the consummation of the deal was read into the record. It referred to the possibility of the transaction being blocked by "people in Fourteenth Street." This, the witness explained, was because some leaders in Tammany Hall favored granting a franchise to the Westchester Road and other favored the Portchester Road.

Assured of Franchise.

"First, I wish to state to you," wrote Thorne, "that I am dictating this letter and the enclosed memorandum to my personal stenographer, in whom I have every confidence, and that there is absolutely no risk of anyone learning the contents of either.

"I have had several interviews with the city authorities, and although some things may have to be done there, I can assure you that I will get what I want, provided I own both franchises. As it is, at the present time there are people in Fourteenth Street who are very strongly in favor of Westchester, and others in favor of Portchester, and it would be extremely difficult for either of the roads to get through anything, because they naturally have the opposition of the other, and the fact is, that when anything goes through both sides will have to be taken care of, but by eliminating this I can greatly facilitate the matter and reduce costs."

Timothy D. Sullivan, Mr. Thorne said, held some securities of the Boston and Westchester Road and the New Haven traded some of its stock for these. He said he knew of no payments to any politicians. He testified that the New Haven paid $8,400,000 for the two roads and also turned over to the Millbrook Company, which was organized by Perry & Thorne, as a sort of holding concern, the sum of $3,000,000 for other expenses in connection with the transaction. In addition to the two roads, the New Haven took over all the stock of the Milbrook Company.

"Can you produce any vouchers showing how this $11,400,000 was spent?" Mr. Thorne was asked.

"No, I don't have to," he retorted.

The investigation will be continued by the commission. One of the men subpoenaed is James B. Brady, who is connected with the firm of Manning, Maxwell & Moore of New York. He is said to have received railway supply contracts from the New Haven.

Others to be called include D. A. Whitney of New York, in connection with the Westchester deal, and Stevenson Taylor of New York, in connection with the New Haven's water line holdings.

CASHMERE GOAT HAIR.

Treasury Ruling That Imports of It Must Pay Duty.

The Treasury Department has issued an order to collectors of customs directing the assessment of a 15 per cent. duty on cashmere noils and waste under Paragraph 305 of the new Tariff act. Importers have been trying to convince the Treasury officials that the merchandise should be allowed to enter at 10 per cent. ad valorem as "waste."

The Collector at Boston stated to the department that in the fleece of the cashmere goat the short hairs constituting the undergrowth are the most valuable, while the long hairs are of little value, the fleece being combed for the purpose of eliminating the long hairs, thus leaving the noils as the choicest portion. In view of this, the Collector expressed doubt as to whether so-called cashmere noils can be considered a waste product.

Assistant Secretary Malburn states in his order that the department has reached the conclusion that the fleece of the cashmere goat is of like kind with the fleece of the angora goat, and that the cashmere goat hair is accordingly dutiable under Paragraph 305. It is also held that, as the short hair is the valuable portion of the fleece of the cashmere goat, it is not a waste within the meaning of the law.

Specialty Clothing Styles.

The specialty clothing houses report good business in palm beaches and this kind of garment should be more popular than ever for men's wear during the hot Summer months. Fancy vests are also selling well, present indications pointing to their wider use in the more conservative effects. Mackinaws in the plain styles and some with novel trimmings are in demand for the Fall, and salesmen now on the road are sending in good orders for them.

⁂

Where Neither Knew.

The head of a large clothing manufacturing house who has just returned from his usual Fall trip sums up the attitude of the retailer in the following story:

"Just before I started back," he said, "I dropped into a customer's store and showed my line. After going over it with me, in a burst of confidence he told me he didn't know how to make his selections. He asked me what the other retailers were taking and I informed him that after being on the road for five weeks his question stumped me. I didn't know myself."

Gray Goods Business Better.

There was a better demand for gray goods in evidence in the local market yesterday, but printcloth buying was none too heavy. A few odd lots of 39-inch 68-72s, spot, were disposed of at 5⅛ cents, and there was a better inquiry for 38½-inch 64-60s for May, June, and July delivery at 4⅞ cents. While many of the mills seem willing to take this figure on sales of spot goods, most of them are not inclined to sell ahead at it. Narrow goods were quiet but firm, on the basis of 3¼ cents for 27-inch 64-60s. There was some business done during the day on sateens and twills. On the whole, the tone of the market was slightly firmer.

New Order by the Appraiser.

John K. Sague, Appraiser of the Port, yesterday issued an order that, on account of the volume of official matters requiring his attention and to the end that orderly conduct of business may be effected, all matters of policy and all questions concerning the transaction of official business shall be drawn to the Appraiser's attention through the Assistant Appraiser in charge of the division to which the business pertains. In the absence from duty of the Assistant Appraiser in charge of the division all such official business will be first submitted to one of the Deputy Appraisers, under whose direction the subject will be presented for the Appraiser's consideration and action.

What Will Taffetas Do?

The rise in the demand for shiny-faced satins in some of the principal foreign silk markets is causing some uneasiness among manufacturers who have been banking heavily on taffetas for Fall. While it is said that there is no fear of taffetas not being used for the coming season, the feeling is growing that they will not dominate the Fall season in the way they did in the Spring. It is now expected that taffeta novelties will do much better than staple goods of this construction. This is the only change of importance that has taken place in the market in the last week, excepting, perhaps, that Fall buying has eased up a little more. The uncertainty that now pervades the market regarding the Fall leader is making buyers act more cautiously than has been the case heretofore. There have been no important price changes.

Little Change in Ribbons.

Reports from the ribbon trade yesterday indicated that the demand for millinery sorts is keeping up unusually well this season. The best demand is said to be for moires in black and blue and for velvet ribbons, both in blacks and colors. Ciré, or lacquered, ribbons are now more or less passé, as are warp-printed fancies. Reports have been heard to the effect that concessions are already being made on the latter goods to move them, but merchants seen yesterday say that if this is true it is not yet a general condition. The demand for Spring ribbons from the retail stores, while better this year than last, is said to be much behind the call that has come from the wholesale milliners and supply houses. As yet none of the local merchants are willing to say much about the prospects or style trend for the coming season.

Joining a Mutual Company.

The following six organizations have approved of the general plan of the Industrial Mutual Liability Insurance Association that will take care of the risks under the Workmen's Compensation law, which becomes effective July 1: Wholesale Men's Furnishings Association, Clothiers' Association of New York, Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' Protective Association, Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association, Children's Dress Manufacturers' Association and the Eastern Millinery Association. Seventy manufacturers having an aggregate number of upward of 15,000 employes have already joined the association, and applications are coming in daily to William R. Carwine of 13 Astor Place, who is temporary Secretary. The by-laws of the company have been considered and the committee which has this work in hand will continue its labors and report within a few days definite plans for the management of the company.

Embroidery Imports Drop.

Exports of Swiss embroideries from the St. Gall consular district of this country showed a decline for the first quarter of 1914, as compared with the same period a year ago. According to a report made by Consul G. N. Ifft of St. Gall, the value of 1914 shipments for the first three months was $2,498,356, or a decrease of $170,077 from the value of similar exports in 1913, and a drop of $1,195,482 from 1912 shipments for the corresponding period. Changes in the fashion of women's apparel are held to be largely responsible for the drop in the value of embroidery exports, though an increase of about $25,000 in the value of embroidery machines shipped in the first quarter would indicate that the development of the industry in the United States is a prominent factor. Exports of cotton embroideries made up more than half of the quarter's total value. While the product of hand machines practically held its own, the exports of merchandise made on Schiffli machines fell of about $365,000.

⁂

To the Retailer's Detriment.

A man familiar with conditions that confront men's furnishers gives the following as one of the reasons why retailers in this line have been experiencing a poor business for some time:

"Most of the stock carried by furnishing goods stores nowadays," he said, "is branded merchandise and consequently must be bought at fixed prices by all. If one man fails and makes a settlement with his creditors at 20 per cent. it immediately places his neighbor on the next block at a big disadvantage. He has had to pay the full prices for his stock, whereas the man who failed gets his for 20 cents on the dollar. The result has been the destruction of public confidence in the honest man's wares and general dissatisfaction in the trade. I know of an instance where a retailer has failed twice within the year, and he's still at the old stand, to the detriment of all the retailers in the vicinity. Wholesalers condone their practice of permitting the dishonest or inefficient retailer to continue on the score that competition compels it, but I think if the undesirable accounts were weeded out the entire situation would be materially improved."

Straw and Other Headgear.

With the advent of warm weather duplicate business on straw hats will begin to come in and manufacturers will be given an opportunity to see just what styles are to be favored. At present the consensus of opinion seems to be that higher crowns than ever will prevail in flat brim straws, the range being from 3½ to 4 inches, with narrow 18-21 line bands. The soft straws are following more or less the lines in the felt hats that have been so popular for the past season. The crowns are from 4 to 4½ inches in height. The demand for Panamas has been good in all sections of the country, and the question as to whether or not they have distinct advantages over the ordinary straws still remains an open one. While the manufacturers and jobbers are waiting for the straw season to open in earnest, some good immediate business is being placed for soft felt hats, blue being the predominating color. Specifications for these are about equally divided between plain and puggaree bands. For next Fall the tendency in these hats will be, it is said, toward higher crowns and flat brims.

WOOL AND COTTON OUTLOOK

Both Markets Quiet in Some Directions, but Not Dull.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., April 29.—The American Wool and Cotton Reporter will say to-morrow:

"The wool market remains rather quiet, though prices are strong and a feeling of confidence pervades the district. The sales for the week have been 1,460,000 pounds. Contracting is still going on in the West, though the high prices demanded by growers have caused less activity than in the weeks past.

"The goods market is rather quiet; the initial orders are now on the books, and it is a little early to receive duplicates in any quantity. Contrary to the general belief, mills in general are well employed, and the carded woolen industry, which in the early weeks of the season showed but little signs of activity, has received much greater attention, with the result that many mills making strictly woolen goods have received a sufficient volume of orders to keep their entire equipment operating upon a double time basis for some weeks to come. This is largely due to the great popularity of fabrics on the tweed order for overcoating and cloaking purposes.

"The cotton goods market during the last week has not shown much activity in some directions, while on other lines of goods a considerable strength has developed. The sales have not been large and a conservative attitude is prevalent, with buyers unwilling to contract for goods in larger quantities than is absolutely required, with no large ordering for future delivery. A comparatively good business has been accomplished in fine and fancy goods.

"The worsted and woolen yarn market sees no radical change. It is not a case of poor business by any means, as spinners are well employed at present on contracts taken earlier in the season. There is, however, a conspicuous lack of new business, as manufacturers are loth to place further contracts at prices which spinners are now demanding. Should prices of domestic yarns advance to any great extent it is very probable that weavers would turn toward foreign spinners for at least a portion of their requirements.

"Interest in the woolen and worsted divisions of the textile industry is largely centred on the question of prices for the new season."

BUSINESS NOTES.

Sol. M. Bloch, President of the Nottingham Lace Works of this city sailed Tuesday on the Mauretania on his Spring buying trip.

Cloos & Simon, resident buyers, 15 East Twenty-sixth Street, have recently added the following accounts to their list: The Colonna Toggery Shop of Carthage, Mo., Joplin, Mo., and Wichita Falls, Texas: the Weigle Company of Davenport, Iowa, and the Olson Company of Atlanta, Ga.

Judge Somerville, of the Board of United States General Appraisers, having recovered from his recent serious illness, will start for New Orleans to-day, where he will hold hearings in classification and reappraisement controversies arising under the tariff law. Importers at the Southern port have accumulated a large number of cases which they desire to have disposed of without the necessity of coming to New York to present evidence. He will be accompanied by Private Secretary Nothinger, and Henry H. Childers, who will appear for the Department of Justice.

ACCUSES LUMBER MEN.

Corporation Commissioner Says They Raise Prices by Combining.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Lumber manufacturers' associations, through combination and agreement, according to the Commissioner of Corporations, have increased the price of lumber and endeavored through lobbying to influence legislation. This is the purport of a partial report on the lumber industry he makes public to-day, in which he opposes any effort to exempt lumber associations from the operations of the Sherman anti-trust law.

The report is Part IV. of the bureau's findings after a complete investigation of the lumber industry, and deals only with combinations to restrict trade or raise lumber prices. After stating that "price combinations among lumber manufacturers have usually been effected through association," and that in practically every region of lumber production associations exist, it sums up as follows:

"While some of the avowed purposes of the associations are to bring about and foster practices that are beneficial both to producer and consumer, the chief purpose, apparently, has been to increase profits by advancing prices."

Lumber prices, according to the report, advanced from 80 to 200 per cent. between 1897 and 1907. "During this period and since," said the report, "the lumbermen, through their associations and otherwise, were industriously striving in concert to maintain or raise prices."

As to the activities of the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association particularly, the report said:

"The National Lumber Manufacturers' Association has generally directed its efforts toward those things that affect lumber producers in common. Some of its activities, such as efforts to secure just and fair treatment from the railroads with respect to freight rates and other matters, are undoubtedly proper. Its action in laying its views before legislative bodies in an open and straightforward way may not be objectionable, but it has not stopped there. When, in 1909, Congress was revising the tariff law this association was not content to present its case in the form of proper argument. It resorted to political intrigues in its attempts to influence both political parties in Congress; it tried to pack committees; it attempted to secure the influence of Cabinet officers, Federal and State forestry officials, and others high in authority; its chief representative in Washington freely wrote letters about the services he rendered to certain Senators and certain Representatives, and pointed out that friends of a duty on lumber traded with friends of other protected interests, and officers of the association claimed large credit for the election of two United States Senators, one of whom was subsequently unseated by the Senate of the United States."

Wool Prices Strong.

LONDON, April 29.—There were 11,670 bales offered at the wool auction sales to-day. A good assortment of merinos met with a strong demand at prices ranging from unchanged to 5 per cent. dearer. America was a good buyer of greasy merinos. A moderate supply of crossbreeds realized steady rates. The sales follow: New South Wales 2,900 bales; scoured 10d @ 2s 2d; greasy 10d @ 1s 5½d. Queensland 1,100 bales; scoured 1s 11½d @ 2s 2½d; greasy 1s ½d @ 1s 1½d. Victoria 1,200 bales; scoured 1s 2½d @ 2s 2d; greasy 10d @ 1s 4d. South Australia 400 bales; scoured 1s 7d @ 1s 11d; greasy nil. West Australia 700 bales; greasy 11d @ 1s 2d. New Zealand 6,200 bales; scoured 1s 3d @ 1s 7d; greasy 9¾d @ 1s 3d.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Lace Goods and Canadian Wood Pulp Duties Fixed.

Another of the many attempts made by importers to upset judicially the heavy duty carried in the Tariff act of 1909 on fabrics trimmed with lace made on the Gothreugh or Lever machines failed yesterday when the United States Court of Customs Appeals denied contentions raised by William H. Stiner & Son and Goldenberg Bros. & Co. of this city.

The importations consisted of lace imported in continuous lengths, made up of lace manufactured by sewing Lever edgings on to an embroidered net; Plauen lace made by attaching pieces of embroidered Lever net to other pieces of embroidery or lace, and lace made by working a pattern with threads, by hand, upon a Lever net. In none of these laces is the Lever-made portion the component material of chief value. Duty was assessed on the merchandise at the rate of 70 per cent. ad valorem, as provided by paragraph 350, by authority of the first proviso to paragraph 349. The importers claimed the goods properly dutiable at 60 per cent. under the main section of paragraph 349.

The importers went before the Board of General Appraisers with the claim that the word "article" as used in the proviso to paragraph 349 is used in a restricted sense, and does not apply to laces of the kind in litigation. The board overruled the contention, while the court in affirming the board holds that the term "article" as employed in tariff statutes is broad enough to include lace in the piece. This interpretation, Presiding Justice Montgomery says, is clearly established by the authorities. He holds that the aim of Congress was manifestly to bring within the higher rate the article which had the more expensive work expended upon it.

The Spanish River Pulp and Paper Mills, Ltd., of Canada failed in a contention before the court asking for the free entry on ground wood pulp under the reciprocity treaty between this country and Canada. It appears that, after the company received a Government concession to cut pulp wood on Crown lands, the Dominion Government passed a statute imposing a special charge on wood pulp exported in instances where the pulp wood was cut on public lands.

Later, the company succeeded by an arrangement with the authorities whereby no export tax would be levied on the concern's products shipped to foreign countries. Importations into this country were charged the full duty. The Board of General Appraisers sustained the claim, but Judge Barber says in his decision for the court that to sustain the importer's protest would be an evasion of the American law, which is designed to prevent restriction of every kind in the export of pulp wood from Canada. The decision says that the court is unwilling to adopt such a construction.

IN THE CLOTHING TRADE.

Retailers Appear to be Buying in a Conservative Way.

Orders received by manufacturing clothiers show a falling off over those of last year at a similar period. Some are inclined to predict that the results obtained by the salesmen now on the road will be far below those of previous years. Retailers continue to make their purchases in a conservative fashion, and conditions in the market are sluggish. The overcoat situation is particularly "off," and reports from the road concur in putting the retailer's attitude on the question as one of uncertainty.

One point which a manufacturer who has just returned from the road claims was constantly brought to his attention was that the average price of suits has declined. If this is so, he said, it may explain to some extent the poor orders that have been received. "If the average price paid for a suit has dropped," he said, "it means that the retailer has had to reduce his high-priced merchandise and will restrict his purchases on this class of goods in the future. The reductions on the finer grades will bring them down to figures at which the medium grades formerly sold. Consequently, smaller orders will be received on the moderately priced lines. The retailer is more or less to blame for this condition if it exists generally, because, as a result of ill-advised tariff agitation, the consumer has been led to believe that he can now obtain the higher priced clothing for less money."

Striking Weavers to Return.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., April 29.—The 100 silk weavers who went on strike at the mill of the Slater Manufacturing Company about two weeks ago voted to-day to return to work. The management said that no concessions had been offered.

TOLLS BILL BACK TO SENATE TO-DAY

No Recommendation, but Committee, 8 to 6, Goes on Record for Reserving Rights.

FIGHT NOW ON OPEN FLOOR

Bill Unamended May Get Five to Eight Majority, or Ten with Rights Amendment Added.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The Senate Committee on Inter-Oceanic Canals this afternoon ordered the Sims bill repealing the tolls exemption clause of the Panama Canal act to be reported to the Senate to-morrow without amendment and without recommendation. This order was entered by a vote of 8 to 6. Shortly before, the committee had expressed its approval of the Simmons amendment expressly reserving all American rights over the Canal by a vote of 8 to 6. But as there was no recommendation for the Sims bill the amendment will not be incorporated by the committee as a part of the bill, but will simply stand as the committee's judgment. The amendment reads:

> Provided that neither the passage of this act, nor anything therein contained, shall be construed or held at waiving, impairing, or affecting any treaty or other right possessed by the United States.

This amendment has been seen by President Wilson and is said to have his approval. Administration leaders are confident to-night that with it attached the repeal bill will be passed by the Senate, and some Senators opposed to repeal agreed with this view.

Nearly all votes on the amendment were non-partisan. The order for the report of the unamended bill was favored by five Democrats—Mr. Thornton of Louisiana, Mr. Chilton of West Virginia, Mr. Thomas of Colorado, Mr. Owen of Oklahoma, and Mr. Simmons of North Carolina—and three Republicans—Mr. Brandegee of Connecticut, Mr. Crawford of South Dakota, and Mr. Page of Vermont. Against it were recorded three Democrats, Mr. O'Gorman of New York, Mr. Shields of Tennessee, and Mr. Walsh of Montana, and three Republicans, Mr. Borah of Idaho, Mr. Bristow of Kansas, and Mr. Perkins of California.

The committee's action means that the fight on the bill will be made entirely on the floor of the Senate. It also foretells as clearly as anything can that President Wilson will succeed in passing the bill through the Senate. The committee was really opposed to the bill, but the President was able to get it ordered reported, and, while some who voted for the report in committee may oppose the bill in the Senate, the result is generally admitted even by the opposition.

The estimates to-day are that the bill unamended will command a slight majority of from five to eight. The addition of the Simmons amendment would perhaps make the margin 10 votes. The Simmons amendment, while drafted in the form of a reservation of right, really does not reserve anything not contained in the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, and Mr. Simmons agrees with the President that the treaty does not reserve the American right to discriminate in tolls. But its declaration that the enactment of the Sims bills would have no effect on the merits of the controversy with Great Britain would satisfy some Senators who resent the appearance of surrender to foreign dictation.

Opponents of repeal in the committee fought hard to strengthen the language of Mr. Simmon's amendment, but they were not successful. Mr. Shields of Tennessee offered a substitute draft providing "that neither the passage of this act nor anything therein contained shall be construed as an admission that the United States has no right to exempt its coastwise vessels from the payment of tolls."

Mr. Simmons, who is earnestly supporting the President and who offered his amendment only in an effort to increase the President's majority, said Mr. Shields' substitute was too narrow, and it was rejected by a vote of 10 to 4. Mr. Shields and Mr. Walsh were the only Democrats to vote for this substitute. Their Republican opponents were Mr. Crawford and Mr. Page.

The most hostile motion of the day came from Mr. Bristow of Kansas, a radical Republican. He moved to report the bill with a recommendation that the Senate refuse to pass it, but his motion was rejected by a vote of 8 to 5. Then Mr. Thomas moved that the bill as amended by Mr. Simmons be reported favorably, but that motion went the same road by a vote of 9 to 5.

The real desire of the opponents of repeal was embodied in an amendment by Mr. Walsh, which, instead of repealing the tolls exemption clause, would simply permit aggrieved aliens to bring suit before the Supreme Court of the United States. That was rejected by a vote of 8 to 6. Mr. Walsh and Mr. O'Gorman were the only Democrats voting for the Walsh amendment.

Chairman O'Gorman, for the committee, when he reports the bill with the unattached amendment to-morrow, will ask that it be placed on the Senate calendar, and Senator Simmons will ask that it be made the unfinished business. If this suggestion is agreed to the battle will begin at once.

Senator Simmons said to-night he believed the great interest in the subject throughout the country warranted an effort on the part of the Senate to dispose of it as quickly as possible. Administration leaders hope to conduct this fight along the lines followed in putting through the Tariff and Currency bills. If this is adhered to the attention of the Senate will be directed as closely as possible to the tolls matter, and after a debate of a few weeks a vote will be reached.

FOR LEASING OF OIL LAND.

House Committee Favors California Independents Getting Patents.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The fight of the independent oil men of California for preferential rights under the new Federal leasing scheme on the lands which they have been developing, resulted to-day in the House Public Lands Committee reporting the Church bill authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to lease to the occupants certain unpatented oil or gas lands.

The independents organized to fight against the Standard Oil Company and built pipe lines to the coast to serve their trade. The Church bill authorizes them to lease, on the relinquishment of claim, the lands on which they have been unable yet to get patent, on the payment of a royalty to the Government of one-eighth of the oil or gas produced. Each lessee, however, is limited to 640 acres, which means a cut of 3,200 acres in area in one company alone, the Honolulu Oil Company.

MORE NIGHT LICENSES.

Churchill and Healy Sign Agreement to Close at 2 A. M.

James Churchill and Thomas Healy, the restaurant owners, appeared at the Mayor's office at the City Hall yesterday and after signing an agreement to close their places at 2 A. M., received special licenses.

"Have you signed the waiver of immunity?" Capt. Churchill, who was formerly in the Police Department, was asked.

"I sure did," he replied, "and I did it gladly. There are but few nights during the year that my place is not closed at 1 o'clock."

Mr. Healy said that he, too, was glad to sign an agreement to close his place at Columbus Avenue and Sixty-sixth Street at 2 o'clock.

The Mayor's commission, of which Herman Ridder was Chairman, after studying the all-night license question suggested that restaurants having cabaret shows should be allowed to keep open an hour longer than the regular closing hour if they took out a special license, and the Mayor said he was agreeable.

COURT SCORES MINISTER.

Says Narver Misrepresented Value of Property He Sold.

MINEOLA, April 29.—Franklin T. Narver, a retired Baptist minister of Brooklyn and President of the Meritas Realty Company, was roundly scored to-day by Supreme Court Justice Benedict, who said that he was convinced the former clergyman had deliberately misrepresented the value of property he sold. An action was brought by the realty company against the Rev. Edward J. Farley, a Baptist minister of Oneonta, to foreclose a mortgage on property which Mr. Farley bought at Westbury, L. I., from the company for about $8,000 and on which there was a mortgage of $3,360.

It was shown in the testimony that Narver visited a number of ministers in the interior part of the State and told them he had gone into the real estate business for the purpose of aiding ministers whose incomes were not large enough to live on comfortably. Among those who invested and who testified against Narver were Mrs. A. C. Livingston, wife of a Baptist minister at Gouverneur, N. Y.; Mrs. Emily Garvey, a widow of Utica, and the Rev. William C. Falcombe, a Baptist minister of Galway, N. Y. A judgment was rendered to-day in favor of Mr. Farley.

DIVORCE WITHOUT FUSS.

Lederers Chat Pleasantly Together—Friendly Compromise on Alimony

Mrs. Florence Lederer of 4 Madison Avenue, Jersey City, and her husband, Albert Lederer of Plainfield, N. J., met by appointment before Advisory Master Charles H. Hartshorne at Jersey City yesterday and chatted pleasantly about the weather and current events. There was nothing in their demeanor to indicate that Mrs. Lederer had brought suit for divorce on the grounds of desertion, but such was the case. A few minutes later Mr. Hartshorne announced that he had decided to recommend the decree. Mrs. Lederer smiled pleasantly upon her husband and said she would be satisfied with $8 a week for the support of their daughters, Florence and Alberta. Mr. Lederer insisted that $7 was sufficient.

"Oh, well, Albert, split the difference," said Mrs. Lederer. "Make it $7.50."

Mr. Lederer smiled his acceptance of the compromise. Then they left the building together. Mrs. Lederer has a manicuring shop in Jersey City. Lederer is a real estate operator.

R. A. BURFORD SUES WIFE.

Seeks Separation and Disclaims Responsibility for Her Debts.

Robert A. Burford, cashier of the New York branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who lives at 83 South Ninth Street, Williamsburg, the home of his father, ex-Police Capt. William Burford, advertised yesterday that he would not be responsible for any debts of his wife, Josephine.

The couple were married in Cleveland, Ohio, eight years ago, and Mrs. Burford, when seen yesterday, said she could not account for her husband's conduct, unless he had grown tired of her. She said his conduct toward her changed last February on her return from a visit to her family. She added that her husband had served papers in a separation suit.

Burford refused to make a statement.

City's Suit Against the Shuberts.

The suit brought against the Shubert theatrical firm for alleged violation of a city ordinance in giving a Sunday performance at the Winter Garden will come up for trial this week or next, Acting Corporation Counsel Hahlo said yesterday. The theatre's license will expire to-day, but it will be renewed pending the result of the suit. If the Shuberts are convicted they are liable to a fine of $500 and may have their license revoked.

INDUSTRIAL LINES TARIFFS SUSPENDED

STEEL ROADS EXCLUDED

Rate Inquiry Continued—House Sub-Committee Reports Uniform Classification Bill.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Several thousand tariffs filed by many trunk line railroads cancelling allowances heretofore made to twenty named industrial railways in various parts of the country were suspended to-day by the Interstate Commerce Commission until July 30.

An inquiry now is in progress with a view to determining whether the allowances made by the trunk lines as divisions of their rates do not constitute, in a legal sense, rebate on shipments handled by the industrial roads. The commission found, in its investigation of allowances made to the industrial railways controlled or owned by steel and iron companies, that the payments constituted a substantial rebate to the shippers, and tariffs cancelling those allowances have been permitted to stand.

That freight rates on lake and rail shipments were not based upon what might be a reasonable return for the service of the carriers, but upon a determination of the rail lines, which monopolize the package freight business on the great lakes, to maintain an established differential between lake and rail and all-rail rates, was asserted by Rush C. Butler of Chicago before the commission. The advances from time to time had been made, in his opinion, with the evident determination of the Eastern trunk lines, which monopolize the lake traffic, to force shippers to use the all-rail routes.

Replying to an inquiry from Commissioner Clements as to why, if the lake traffic were profitable, other lines were not put on the lakes, Mr. Butler said the carriers had not, and would not, provide the necessary terminal facilities and had refused to concur in through rates and joint rates.

Secretary Cowles of the Postal Progress League, advocated, as the only logical solution of the transportation problem, Government ownership, not only of the railroads, but also of the telephone, telegraph, auto service, and the coming aerial service.

Frank A. Lyon, for the Pittsburgh Coal Company and the New Pittsburgh Coal Company, said: "If this commission does not stand as a bulwark to the consumer the public will stand where it has always stood, at the mercy of the carrier, with the rates 'all that the traffic will bear.'"

Francis B. James appeared for the National Paving Brick Manufacturers' Association, and other paving brick industries, for which he said the proposed advance on paving brick was more than the traffic could bear.

"Uniformity of railroad freight classification would be provided in a bill favorably reported by a sub-committee to the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee to-day. The bill would empower the Interstate Commerce Commission to prescribe "just and reasonable classification of freight, both individual and joint, applicable on interstate commerce throughout the United States." The Interstate Commerce Commission has urged such legislation.

New United Fruit Route.

The agents of the United Fruit Steamship Company announced yesterday that, beginning to-day, a weekly passenger and freight service will be inaugurated between Boston and Havana, Cuba, and Port Limon. It will be operated by the new 5,000-ton steamships Carillo, Tivives, and Sixaola.

FOR EMPLOYMENT BUREAU.

Murdock Presents Bill to Attach One to Federal Labor Department.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Representative Victor Murdock of Kansas, the Progressive leader, asked Congress today, in a bill he introduced in the House, to establish a "Bureau of Employment" in the Department of Labor, to lessen the amount of unemployment in the United States.

The proposed bureau would be in charge of a Commissioner, and would be authorized to study the cause and extent of idleness, with a view to regulating interstate business of private employment agencies and bringing unemployed workmen and employers seeking help together.

The central agency of the new institution would be in Washington, and would be augmented by a system of free labor exchanges at important industrial and commercial centres throughout the country in charge of Superintendents clothed with authority to co-operate with State, municipal, and private agencies. The bill provides for the licensing of private employment agencies, which would be under the strict supervision of the Federal bureau. The bill was referred to the Labor Committee for consideration.

The bill, it is understood, will have the active support of several national organizations. Mr. Murdock said it embodied the first step in the programme outlined by the first national conference of unemployment held at the City Hall, New York, two months ago, which was attended by delegates from twenty-five States and fifty-nine cities.

"All practical students of this problem agree," he added, "that the establishment of such a system of public labor exchanges is inevitable if we are to face the employment problem squarely and seek to avoid unnecessary wastes in industry."

COMMODITIES MARKETS.

WHEAT.

After a moderate early advance on firmness in Europe and some apprehension regarding the colder weather in the Northwest prices weakened under heavy pressure and closed with net losses of ⅝ to ¾c. Reports of splendid crop prospects continued to appear. At the decline, however, values were only about 1½c down from the recent high point, and were at about the level of a little over a week ago. The Price Current said that Winter wheat has passed through another month without even the average impairment, and the promise for an unusually large crop persists.

In the local cash market No. 2 hard Winter wheat was quoted at $1.01¼, cost, insurance, and freight, New York; No. 2 red, $1.05½, elevator, domestic; No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.01, afloat; No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.01¼, free on board, afloat.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Prices Recede a Little in Quieter Trading—New York Central Consolidation.

A moderate recession in prices, and a rather sharp contraction in the volume of trading, were two of the signs which were given yesterday that the hope of a peaceful solution of the Mexican situation had run its course as an active force in the market. This did not necessarily indicate, however, that the full effect as a market influence of a satisfactory ending of the Mexican troubles had yet exerted. It meant, rather, that after the sharp reversal of the market's position which was brought about by the developments between the closing of the market last Saturday and the reopening of trading Monday, the financial community was disposed to await the appearance of further evidence that the hope of peace would be borne out. In other words, the Mexican situation remains a factor of much potential influence in shaping the course of security prices. The present disposition of the financial community is to look for a happy outcome of the mediation, which has been undertaken and this despite the obvious difficulties which still have to be overcome. At the same time the unwisdom of jumping hastily at conclusions in a matter of such importance is generally recognized and this feeling of reserve contributed to the natural reaction which occurred on the Stock Exchange yesterday.

The closer attention which is again being paid to ordinary news bearing on trade and financial affairs has failed to disclose any material change in the conditions which prevailed up to the time when the Mexican problem became acute. Tuesday's quarterly statement of the Steel Corporation reflected the adverse conditions which were known to have prevailed in that industry notwithstanding the clearly marked tendency toward improvement in earnings which showed throughout the first quarter compared with the results attained in December. Yesterday's summary of the trade's position by The Iron Age brought out very clearly the fact that the current quarter has not so far measured up to the average of the first three months of the year. In this connection it was pointed out that an early rate increase is the only possible development now in sight which offers much ground for hoping for a better showing during the balance of this quarter. Such a view of the outlook suggests a prolongation of the present period of depression in the steel trade, but even under these conditions sight should not be lost of the capacity of the steel trade which it has shown on more than one occasion to reverse itself sharply. A large buying movement by the railroads would undoubtedly contribute greatly to such a change and that in turn would be greatly facilitated by a favorable outcome of the rate case.

Announcement was made yesterday of the scheme for the New York Central consolidation. It provides an even exchange of stock for New York Central itself, and for an offer of five shares of the new consolidated stock for each share of the outstanding Lake Shore stock. These are the terms which were proposed some time ago to the representatives of the chief minority interests in the Lake Shore property. They were unacceptable to some of those interests at that time and of normal indication was given yesterday of the assent of the minority interests to this proposed exchange. It was not doubted, however, that whatever differences may still exist between the New York Central and the Lake Shore minority can be adjusted without obstructing the plan for this consolidation. The New York Central management counts confidently on the consolidation as a means of effecting important economies, as well as of strengthening the credit of the company by placing under its immediate control valuable properties now owned through subsidiary corporations.

Rock Island Collaterals.

The position of the holders of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific collateral 4 per cent. bonds is not improving with the delays in the formation of a plan of reorganization. Yesterday the bonds sold down to 31¼, establishing a new low record at that figure. On May 1 the semi-annual interest will be defaulted for the first time. Yesterday's decline indicated that some of the holders had been clinging to the hope that at the last minute the railway might find a way to pay another dividend into the treasury of the intermediate holding company, which would enable that company to pay another half-year's interest on the collaterals. Under the terms of the mortgage it will not be possible for the bondholders to institute receivership proceedings for three months, and it is expected that within that period the protective committee, in conjunction with representatives of the sockholders, will be able to work out a plan which will avoid the necessity for court action. The McKenna report on the company's needs is being diligently studied, but there has been no intimation yet as to its bearing on the efforts to finance the company out of its present difficulties.

Uniting Partners' Interests.

Leaders of the Stock Exchange have come to realize keenly that a closer union of interests between board members and their office partners is desirable for the betterment of business and business conditions. It is clear to every one who studies the brokerage profession that it is the man in the office who stands foremost in getting business, while the man on the Exchange floor performs as his most important function the filling of orders given to him. Yet in the popular conception of Wall Street affairs, the member of the Exchange takes precedence over his colleague, who catches only a reflection of the light of the market place. The Nominating Committee had in mind the error of this impression when it cast about for candidates to fill offices for the ensuing year. The committee sought a man to be put forward for Governor who, although he had spent many thousands of dollars for a membership on the board, had devoted his time to office routine. The selection was made, and the election in May will show whether the majority of members agree with the committee's idea of mingling office practice with the direct buying and selling of securities in managing the Exchange.

Opening the Luncheon Club.

In the general plan of merging the interests of Exchange members and their partners the Governors of the Exchange a few days ago revised the rules surrounding the Stock Exchange Luncheon Club. For some years only members of the board and invited guests have been permitted to dine in the club on the seventh floor of the Exchange Building. A resolution was passed at a recent meeting of the Governing Committee recommending that the privilege of lunching in the club be granted to other members of Stock Exchange firms, as well as to owners of seats. The complete application of the resolution has not yet been decided, but it is expected that a limited number of additional members will be admitted to the club at first, with the proviso of further admissions from time to time.

Plenty of Money at 1 1-2 Per Cent.

Call money was offered in large quantity on the Exchange yesterday afternoon at 1½ per cent. The call rate has fallen as low as this before this year, but only for limited amounts. It was estimated that $8,000,000 was offered without takers at 1¾ per cent. before the rate was lowered.

⁂

War and Strikes.

From the railroads' standpoint the war in Mexico is hardly more effective as a business killer than the war in Colorado, in so far as the latter affects roads in the mine district. The Mexican National Railways has been operating about 55 per cent. of its mileage since the spread of the revolution with the murder of Madero. In Colorado the Denver & Rio Grande and Colorado & Southern have both helped to pay the bills of the miners' strike. About one-third of the tonnage of these lines is ordinarily supplied by bituminous coal, and with the outbreak of trouble over the union question the mines in the southern part of the State have been practically idle since last Fall. The Colorado & Southern's gross earnings have declined $1,000,000 since the beginning of the strike, while the Denver & Rio Grande's loss has amounted to about $750,000.

Americans Out of Oil Fields.

Dispatches which came through from Vera Cruz yesterday, after many hours' delay, said that all Americans were safely out of the oil fields near Tampico. They were ordered to leave by Federal troops when news of the fall of Vera Cruz spread abroad, and all hurried to the coast as soon as the work could be turned over to Mexican employes of the companies. In consequence of the insistence of Federal commanders that all Americans get out of the country, it was impossible to make proper arrangements for safeguarding of wells and oil in storage. The companies are reported to be heavy losers from oil that has continued to flow and run to waste.

⁂

Government 2s Decline.

At the afternoon call of Government bonds yesterday $10,000 coupon 2s sold at 97, a decline of 2 points from the last preceding sale on March 27. There was also a sale of $1,000 coupon 3s at 101, unchanged.

The following securities were sold at auction yesterday at the Exchange Salesroom, 14 Vesey St., by Adrian H. Muller & Son, auctioneers:

BOURSES OF EUROPE

London Market Continues Firm, a Small Failure Having No Effect—Strength in Paris.

LONDON, April 29.—The stock market continued firm to-day. A further advance of half a point in consols, on the prospect of a settlement of the Ulster difficulty, extended to other departments, the better Mexican outlook, and the conclusion of the settlement helping sentiment and inducing fresh buying. Brazilian and oil shares were strong features. A small failure had no effect and the market closed cheerful and steady a fraction below the best.

American securities opened quiet and steady. A fair business was done during the forenoon and prices advanced under the lead of Canadian Pacific. The list declined under realizing in the afternoon and finished quiet.

The supplies of money are shrinking and discount rates were dearer.

PARIS, April 29.—Prices were firm on the Bourse to-day.

Three per cent. rentes, 86 francs 62½ centimes for the account.

BERLIN, April 29.—The Boerse opened strong to-day on favorable New York advices and better Mexican reports.

The market reacted in the afternoon and closed weak.

STEEL OUTLOOK CHEERLESS

No Immediate Prospect of Betterment in Iron Trade, Either.

Steel and iron industries continue to drag, according to reviews of the week's operations. The Iron Age says:

> Two sobering exhibits of the week have given a definite measure of the present state of the entire iron industry. One was the statement of the losses of merchant blast furnaces in February, as compiled by the American Pig Iron Association, and the other the quarterly statement of the Steel corporation showing a deficit of more than $6,000,000, or practically the amount of the common stock dividend.
>
> That many blast furnaces have been selling below cost for some time was known, but the meeting in New York last week developed the fact that the losses were greater and more general than had been suspected. More furnaces must stop or consumption must increase before the market can be cured of its persistent weakness.
>
> Steel Corporation profits of $6 to $7 a ton on the shipments of the first quarter mean a dismal showing for steel companies which normally make several dollars a ton less than the corporation. April has been a poorer month than the average of the first three. May and June, if there is an early rate advance, can do better, but otherwise the betterment is not in sight to-day.

The Iron Trade Review says:

> The iron and steel trade continues to drag out an uncertain course with no visible signs of general improvement. The situation, however, is not without some instances that stand out conspicuously in the unfavorable sentiment now prevalent in the industry.
>
> One independent manufacturer reports new bookings this month are running 20 per cent better than in March, and expects this gain to be maintained. The wire trade is enjoying some seasonable impulse and tin plate is fully normal.
>
> The cheerful points of the picture, however, may be enumerated quickly, and makers, generally, are speculating as to the necessities and as to the duration of the further period of dullness that may lie before them. Mill operations continue to be reduced gradually to meet the reduced volume of business. The pig iron markets are at minimum activity.

SENATE TRUST BILL SOON.

Supplementary to Sherman Act—Creates Trade Commission.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The Senate sub-committee of eight practically concluded its draft of a trust bill to-day, and will soon report it to the full Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. The sub-committee decided some time ago, as did the House committee, to embody all the trust legislation of the year in a single measure.

The bill, as drafted by the sub-committee, creates a trade commission of five members and abolishes the Bureau of Corporations. Its general provisions are considered as supplementary to the Sherman Anti-Trust act.

The sub-committee's measure would provide for the Federal supervision of stock and bond issues of interstate corporations and would exclude from interstate commerce all corporations issuing watered stock, and would limit interlocking directorates. This limitation would apply particularly to the directorates of great corporations buying raw material from each other. The limitation would also apply to banks. An entirely new feature of the bill is designed to prohibit interstate carriers from purchasing commodities manufactured or sold by concerns whose Directors also are Directors of the carrier. The sub-committee has omitted all reference to the fixing of resale prices. But its draft would prohibit all territorial discrimination in prices.

So far, the effort of the labor leaders to insert a paragraph exempting labor unions from the operation of the Sherman law has not succeeded. The language of the sub-committee's bill on that point is obscure.

NEW HAVEN GETS $50,000,000

Road Sells Notes to That Amount to a Syndicate of Bankers.

The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company announced yesterday the consummation of the amended plan for meeting its immediate financial requirements. This was done by the sale of notes to a group of bankers consisting of J. P. Morgan & Co., the First National Bank, the National City Bank, Kidder, Peabody & Co. and Lee, Higginson & Co.

These notes comprise $20,000,000 New England Navigation Company three-year 6 per cent. coupon notes, secured by collateral; $20,000,000 New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company one-year 5 per cent. coupon notes, secured by collateral; and $10,000,000 Harlem River & Port Chester Railroad Company one-year 5 per cent. coupon notes indorsed by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company.

Arrangements have been made with the same bankers to take from time to time during the next six months $10,000,000 of one-year 6 per cent. notes of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company.

"The proceeds of these notes," the announcement read, "will be used to pay off the principal and interest of notes falling due on May 18, June 26, July 12, 14, and 26, the balance to be used only for such betterments and improvements as are absolutely essential for safety, economy and efficiency. Improvements, however desirable, that are not absolutely necessary must be postponed until the results of the operation of the property are much better than they are at present."

The notes about to mature amount to nearly $54,000,000, so that the company will get only about $5,000,000 of new money by the transaction.

FRISCO BOND INTEREST.

Speyer & Co. Arrange for Its Payment to Depositing Owners.

Following the refusal of the courts to allow the receivers of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad to issue $3,000,000 in receivers' certificates to provide for the May 1 interest on the company's general lien bonds, Speyer & Co. announced yesterday that they had arranged with the Bankers' Trust Company to advance to holders of certificates of deposit for the bonds an amount equal to the interest due. The advance is only for the convenience of depositors.

The bankers also announced that additional deposits of the bonds would be accepted up to May 29. About $36,000,000, or 80 per cent. of the issue, has already been deposited under the agreement.

N.Y. CENTRAL MERGER TERMS DECIDED ON

Lake Shore Minority Holders Are to be Offered 5 for 1 for Their Stock.

CAPITAL TO BE $300,000,000

Guaranty Trust Made Trustee of New $500,000,000 Mortgage Covering All Lines.

Consolidation of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern with the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad and a number of smaller lines was made effective yesterday when Directors of the several companies met in the Grand Central offices to ratify the terms of the proposed merger.

The new company, operating a through line from New York to Chicago, will be called the New York Central Railroad Company, and will have $300,000,000 of capital stock, of which $249,590,000 will be issued at once to stockholders. The remaining $50,000,000 of stock will be reserved for issue from time to time when authorized by the Board of Directors, with the approval of the Public Service Commission.

New York Central stockholders will receive par for par in consolidated stocks. Lake Shore stock owned by the Central and holdings in other subsidiaries are to be canceled. It will require $23,534,500 of the consolidated company's stock to exchange for Lake Shore minority stock on the terms indicated, and $474,934 for the other minority interests.

The important feature of the consolidation plan, and the one which caused the management the greatest trouble, had to do with taking care of the minority stock holders of Lake Shore. This company has outstanding $49,466,000 of stock, of which all but $4,177,000 is owned by the Central. The Lake Shore has been earning around 35 per cent. per annum on its capital and paying dividends of 18 per cent.

It is proposed to extinguish the Lake Shore stock owned by the Central and to offer to the holders of the minority shares five shares of New York Central Railroad Company for each share of Lake Shore. By wiping out the Lake Shore stock in its treasury the Central increases the assets back of its stock by the value of the Lake Shore road. After the consolidation the earnings of the lines west of Buffalo will go into a common treasury, making it possible for the Lake Shore to bear a larger share of the system's capital charges.

Henry Evans, Chairman of a Protective Committee, which is looking after the interests of holders of a considerable share of the Lake Shore minority stock, is now in Europe. Bankers associated with him said that the minority holders of Lake Shore would be called together to discuss the exchange offer. It is understood that the Central is offering less than some of the minority holders have been standing out for, and it is expected that these stockholders will ask the Courts to set a price on their stock before surrendering it.

In connection with the consolidation plans the Central created two new mortgages, one for $167,102,000 of 4 per cent. bonds to be exchanged for Lake Shore and Michigan Central collateral 3½s; and another which is practically limited to $500,000,000, of which the Guaranty Trust Company of New York is trustee. The latter mortgage is to cover the Lake Shore property after the completion of the merger, and will be used for financing the system's improvement and refunding needs for many years to come.

The consolidation agreement provides that the new company shall take in the Central, the Lake Shore, the Geneva, Corning & Southern, Terminal Railway of Buffalo, the Dunkirk, Allegheny Valley & Fitchburg, the Chicago, Indiana & Southern, the Detroit & Chicago, the Detroit, Monroe & Toledo, the Kalamazoo & White Pigeon, the Northern Central Michigan, and the Swan Creek Railway Co. of Toledo.

Meetings of the stockholders of the Central, Lake Shore, and other companies, have been called for July 20, at which the agreement will be submitted.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Prices on the Consolidated Stock Exchange worked lower, but excepting in spots the undertone was fairly good. In a number of instances, however, there was particular weakness, notably in Missouri Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Lehigh Valley, American Can, Southern Pacific, and the Rock Island shares. Missouri Pacific in the afternoon touched a new low record price of 15⅝. Opening prices at 9:30 o'clock in the majority of cases represented improvements compared with Tuesday's closing figures.

Is Our Supremacy IN OIL In Danger?

Since the Standard Oil dissolution foreign oil interests have expanded enormously.

The Dutch-Shell Combination has invested $25,000,000 in American oil properties and today controls, of crude oil, over 10% of the world's output.

Bankers are trying to force Standard Oil out of Germany.

Standard Oil starts to develop oil fields in China.

Crude oil prices sharply cut.

Demand for petroleum, especially fuel, must increase.

Vital factors in oil will be discussed in a series of articles commencing Today, Thursday, April 30th, in the

FITZGERALD, OCILLA & BROXTON RAILROAD COMPANY

The General Committee, formed under the Protective Agreement dated the 1st of May, 1909, in the exercise of its authority conferred by the said Protective Agreement as extended, has declared effective and binding the Plan for Reorganization of the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic Railroad Company, Georgia Terminal Company, Alabama Terminal Railroad Company and the Fitzgerald, Ocilla & Broxton Railroad Company, dated March 21, 1914.

The amount of subscriptions received under the foregoing Plan have convinced the General Committee that the holders of the securities affected by the said Plan almost unanimously desire to have it carried out. Nevertheless on account of a decrease in the earnings of the Railroad Company during the past few months, it has been decided to postpone the actual operation of the Plan for the present, but since the powers of the General Committee expire on May 1st, 1914, and can be continued only by the foregoing action, the General Committee decided to take the above step. It is understood that such action does not bind the bankers to the underwriting agreement nor subscribers to their subscriptions, but it is sincerely hoped that future developments will enable the General Committee to carry out the Plan eventually, either with its present terms or with such modifications as may be found necessary. In that event the subscriptions will be again invited, and an underwriting agreement arranged.

It will be cooler Thursday in the Atlantic States and the Ohio Valley, and low temperatures will continue in the Lake Region and the Upper Mississippi Valley. Elsewhere temperatures will be seasonable.

Winds Thursday and Friday along the North Atlantic Coast will be fresh northeast to north; Midile Atlantic Coast, moderate to fresh north; South Atlantic Coast, gentle to moderate west to northwest except variable off the Florida Coast.

You and each of you are hereby cited and required personally to be and appear before our Surrogate of the County of New York, at the Surrogates' Court of said County, held at the Hall of Records in the County of New York, on the 26th day of May, 1914, at half-past ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to attend a judicial settlement of the account of proceedings of Anna Wormser, Isidor Wormser, Jr., and Louis W. Wormser, as Trustees of the trust in favor of Gussie Schmitt and Lloyd L. Schmitt under the last will and testament of Louis Wormser, deceased, and to show cause why the resignation of Isidor Wormser, Jr., and Louis W. Wormser should not be accepted, why they should not be discharged from further liability and obligations as such Trustees, why the Farmers' Loan & Trust Company of the City of New York should not be appointed as Trustee in their place, and why the petitioners should not have such other and further relief in the premises as to the Court may seem proper; and such of you as are hereby cited as are under the age of twenty-one years are required to appear by your guardian, if you have one, or if you have none, to appear and apply for one to be appointed, or in the event of your neglect or failure to do so, a guardian will be appointed by the Surrogate to represent and act for you in the proceeding.

In testimony whereof we have caused the Seal of the Surrogates' Court of the said County of New York to be hereunto affixed. Witness: Hon. Robert Ludlow Fowler, a Surrogate of our said County, at the County of New York, the 16th day of March, nineteen hundred and fourteen.

Sale of Real Estate by the Banking Department

State of New York

The Supreme Court of the State of New York has authorized the Banking Department to offer, at private sale, the real estate of the Industrial Savings and Loan Company (in liquidation).

THE OBJECT OF THE SALE is to rapidly convert the Real Estate into cash, or readily salable mortgages, in order to obtain funds for over 5,200 depositors, and also to hasten the final closing of the business of the Company.

THE BARGAIN PRICES AVERAGE ABOUT 50% of the prices asked by former owners, and should attract investors, homeseekers and builders and result in a rapid disposal of the properties.

The properties consist of suburban homes and building lots located in New Jersey along the Palisades, about opposite Grant's Tomb, at GRANTWOOD, PALISADE, MORSEMERE, LEONIA, HUDSON HEIGHTS and EDGEWATER, all reached by trolleys within a five-cent fare zone.

Title Guarantee Policies furnished free to purchasers.

Liberal discounts for cash.

Offices in charge of reliable sales representatives are maintained at GRANTWOOD, corner of Lawton Avenue and Trolley, and at MORSEMERE, corner of Broad and Columbia Avenues.

These offices and all of the properties may be reached from the Cortlandt, 42nd and 130th Street Ferries.

For full information, prices and terms of sale, address

WARNS PHYSICIANS OF WAR PROBLEMS

Rev. Dr. Hillis Tells State Medical Society That We Must Guard Mexico's Health.

800 DINE AT HOTEL ASTOR

Physical Training in Schools Explained by Dr. Crampton—City Children Superior to Rural.

More than 800 physicians and surgeons attending the 108th annual meeting of the Medical Society of the State of New York listened last night at a dinner in the Hotel Astor to an address by the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis of Brooklyn, who told them that upon the medical profession of this country would fall the burden of supporting the health and solving the hygienic problems of not only this nation, but Mexico and other countries to the South.

Dr. Hillis did not say that the United States should annex Mexico at once, but he did say that the United States would "fall heir to Mexico" whether it wanted to or not. He led up to this part of his subject by saying that the brains of people in America had been developed at the expense of the bodies until in many instances the bodies were no longer able to produce or support sound brains. The brains cracked, he said, under the stress of modern life.

"In Continental countries," Dr. Hillis said, "we used to have cathedrals and universities and manor houses as typical buildings. The typical buildings in America are insane asylums and hospitals. You men of medicine have to solve this problem of making the bodies of our men and women strong enough to save the minds."

Dr. Hillis said that in addition to the immediate problem there was coming the Mexican one.

"There are $1,700,000,000 invested in Mexico now," the clergyman continued, "and this amount is bound to increase rapidly. We are going to fall heir to Mexico whether we want to or not. I don't understand why every one can't see this coming. There are 11,000,000 Indians in Mexico who can neither read nor write, and most of them are diseased. They are dying off. There are only 50,000 people in Mexico who can read and write. And yet Washington is trying to see a constitutional government established in Mexico.

"I hope that before this watching and waiting policy is over it will dawn on Washington that people who can't read and write can't vote. We don't want governmental control in Mexico, but much of our money has gone down there; much more is going; we are bound to expand, and in the natural course of events we shall fall heir to the country. Then we will have new problems, and they will be problems that you doctors will have to solve."

Dr. Hillis said that in the same way the United States would fall heir to countries in South America.

The other speakers at the dinner were William H McElroy and Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell. The toastmaster was Dr. William F. Campbell of Brooklyn, retiring President of the State Medical Association.

Speaking at the second day's session of the Society, in the Hotel Astor yesterday, Dr. C. Ward Crampton, Director of the Board of Education, outlined his idea of physical and hygienic training in the public schools.

"In former days," Dr. Crampton said, "instruction was given a child in physiology and anatomy, and the child was expected to act for himself on the basis of the knowledge given. We have learned now, however, that the child's mind does not react to knowledge; so, instead of instructing a child to write a composition on the subject of the hand, we inspect the hand that writes the composition. Instead of lecturing the child on the uses and value of teeth, we give each one a tooth brush and make him use it. Of course, physiology, hygiene, and anatomy are taught, but we do not depend upon the teaching to keep the child healthy. Each child that comes to school must have clean teeth and clean hands.

"There have been changes, too, in the physical exercise given. The old calisthenic form of exercise has been abolished. Now we have two forms of exercise, one aimed to insure healthy organic, as opposed to muscular, development, and the other to insure that mental development that will give accuracy, precision, and alertness."

Dr. Crampton called upon two youths, 16 and 18 years old, who attend the High School of Commerce, to illustrate the two forms of exercise. The youths first showed what he meant by the exercise for mental development. In response to Dr. Crampton's sharp commands, "Arms to shoulders," "Left arm forward, right arm up"; "Left leg up, right arm forward," and the like, they assumed the indicated positions with a quickness and precision that stirred the audience to applause.

The exercises for physical development were almost all done in rhythmical time. They consisted of such movements as shot-putting, discus-throwing, and fencing.

Posture occupies an important place in Dr. Crampton's physical training. He condemned the "débutante slouch," and as strongly condemned the extreme "shoulders back" pose often assumed by professional athletes.

"It is as bad," he said, "for one to hold the shoulders rigidly back as to let them slouch forward. The chief points of good posture are knees straight and a trifle braced, head and chest up, and the shoulders natural. The shoulders should be forgotten entirely. The flat back of the athlete, made by holding the shoulders back until the blades almost touch, is absurd and harmful."

The training of the girls also was discussed by Dr. Crampton. He said that he had found the European folk dances a good medium for exercise for the girls. His object, he said, was to develop the muscles and organs of the abdomen, as well as of the limbs, and eighty dances had been selected from several hundred found abroad. The dances were done to phonograph music. The girls also learn such games as basketball and hockey. Dr. Crampton deplored the lack of available swimming pools in the city.

Major Frederick F. Russell, M. D., of the Medical Corps, U. S. A., discussed anti-typhoid vaccination in the army. He said experience had proved that typhoid vaccine did not render any one susceptible to tuberculosis or any other disease.

Dr. Henry L. K. Shaw of the Department of Child Hygiene of the State Board of Health said that infant mortality and general health conditions were worse in "second-class cities like Albany and Syracuse than in a metropolis like New York," because in a city like New York the municipal government took charge of its own sanitary and welfare work and the second-class cities did not.

Dr. Joseph C. Palmer of Syracuse said that rural children were not so healthy as city children.

"It's not a case of the country boy against the city boy," he said, "but a case of the oversight and care of the city boy against the neglect and careless treatment of the country boy."

The officers of the Medical Society of the State of New York elected were: President, Dr. Grover Dende of Buffalo; Vice Presidents, Drs. Myron B. Palmer of Rochester, S. W. S. Toms of Nyack, and Robert Elliott of Willet; Secretary, Dr. Wisner R. Townsend of New York, and Treasurer, Dr. Alexander Lambert of New York.

ANOTHER COLUMBIA RIOT.

Two Students Injured in Freshman-Sophomore Clash in Havemeyer Hall.

Guarded by a detail of police from the West Sixty-eighth Street Station, who were ordered to see that the rioting which marked the freshman dinner at Bustanoby's, at Broadway and Sixtieth Street, on Tuesday night was not repeated, the sophomore class of Columbia University held its annual feast at 6 o'clock last night at Reisenweber's Restaurant, in Columbus Circle. More than 150 of the freshmen marched up and down in front of the restaurant, but they were afraid to rush the place, even though they knew that their class Presidents, Henry C. Monroe of the college division and Duncan Dobie of the science division, were prisoners inside the building. Monroe and Dobie occupied a little table in the centre of the hall. The former sang, very much against his will, and the latter, under pressure, responded when called upon for a speech.

A dozen of the freshmen reached the roof of Reisenweber's from the Hotel Claymore by a rope ladder, but were unable to enter the building.

The most serious fight among the students since the snowball riot of ten years ago took place at noon in Havemeyer Hall, on the campus, when the freshmen, led by "Tol" Cochran, raided a meeting at which the sophomores were discussing the details of the dinner. Joseph Shimmon, a freshman, was so badly beaten up that he had to be attended by a physician at his room in Hartley Hall. Eddie Shea, a sophomore and pitcher of the 'Varsity nine, sustained a deep cut on the back of his head. The room was wrecked. The student board at once began an investigation, as a fight in any of the buildings is against the rules.

The freshmen began their activities early yesterday. They captured several sophomores and placed those who would not promise to stay away from the class dinner under lock and key. Then the freshmen massed their forces in Hamilton Hall and planned the raid on the sophomore meeting.

During the fight the freshmen captured "Ed" Spurgeon, a sophomore and a member of last year's crew. He was tossed into a taxicab, but was released upon the order of Charles McCarthy, Chairman of the Student Board, because he had been captured in the building. Spurgeon was one of the eight men arrested during the rioting at Bustanoby's.

Top Price at Crawford Sale—Mary Garden Buys Candlesticks.

A half round Dutch commode, the front formed by three panels decorated with hand-paintings of many colored flowers, each large bouquet in a gracefully shaped urn, brought the highest price of the Crawford sale at the American Art Galleries yesterday afternoon, going to Mrs. Stillwagon for $1,000. A tip table of satinwood in the Adam style went to the same buyer for $180. An Adam half-round satinwood commode went to Mrs. Forsyth Wickes for $200; Mrs. Chichester paid $200 for another satinwood commode with panels in the Angelica Kauffman and Wedgwood styles; Mrs. Charles A. Munn, Jr., paid $210 for an Adam style mahogany hall table, $180 for a mahogany Hepplewhite cabinet, and $160 for an original Adam satinwood desk inlaid with ebony, amboina, and kingwood.

Mary Garden was one of the purchasers, paying $195 for a pair of mahogany candlesticks four feet three inches high, with carved rams' heads and festoons; $105 for a Sheraton mahogany sideboard, and $17.50 for an Adam satinwood pole screen. Paul D. Mills gave $290 for a pair of exceptionally fine Hepplewhite side tables; Seaman, agent, $240 for a Hepplewhite half round mahogany commode with carvings in relief; Ormond $440 for two oblong Hepplewhite mahogany side tables and $200 for a pair of Hepplewhite mahogany bedsteads.

Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., paid $60 for a Pergolesi green lacquer low chest of drawers; $50 for a high chest of drawers to match; $95 for a beautiful four-post bedstead in the same lacquer, with a canopy and a Prince of Wales plume topping the head board, and gave for a somnoe, $12.50.

A pair of half round Adam satinwood tables inlaid with various colored woods and with the Muses in painting, went to Mrs. H. S. Collins for $420; an early Georgian mantelpiece went to Mrs. Peary for $500.

The returns for the day were $15,757 and the total to date $20,612. The sale will be continued this afternoon.

There will be a mock marriage, with Miss Eleanor Lawson as bride and Nigel Jones as bridegroom.

There will be Spanish dances on the balcony, and Mme. Cerutti will do old-fashioned Spanish dances. Miss Anna Tracy will give an exhibition of police work by her imported police dogs, in which they will scale a nine-foot wall in pursuit of a fleeing criminal.

All the boxes have been sold at $50 each, and among those who will occupy them are Miss Anne T. Morgan, Mrs. Anson M. Beard, Mrs. E. N. Breitung, Mrs. Joshua Knapp, Mrs. J. Carlisle, Horace Harding, and E. McMillin.

A feature of the fête will be a collection of pictures made by Mrs. Elsie Dodge Pattee burlesquing the Futurist school of art. Many notable painters have contributed "Refuturist" pictures, as they are called. Henry S. Hubbell, F. J. Zimmerer, Homer Conant, Charles Dana Gibson, Oscar Miller, Lucia Fuller, Ernest Blumenschein, Penelope Bacon, and Mabel Welch have donated paintings to be sold.

ART WORTH $45,000 DESTROYED BY FIRE

CHAUFFEUR DISCOVERS FIRE

Gets Back with Family as Engines Arrive—Mrs. Farmer Enters Burning House to Save Pet Bird.

A taxicab chauffeur who had taken Edward Farmer, a collector and dealer in Chinese art objects, with his wife and a woman guest, from their home at 5 West Fifty-sixth Street, to a dance at Wallick's Restaurant, on Broadway at Forty-third Street, at 9:30 o'clock last night, while driving back past the Farmer residence half an hour later, saw smoke and flames curling out of the front windows of the parlor floor. In the parlor and the room back of it were stored Oriental art objects worth between $50,000 and $75,000.

The chauffeur turned his car and sped downtown to Wallick's. There Mr. Farmer, his wife, and guest were summoned from the dance and informed that their home was afire. The three, in great excitement, piled into the taxicab and were driven home at full speed.

The fire already had been discovered by J. Courtney, a private watchman employed on the block, who turned in an alarm. Then, with Policeman Piplow of the East Fifty-first Street station, he went through the basement and led out in safety Clara Horn, a housemaid, who was the only person in the house when the fire started.

Mr. and Mrs. Farmer and their guest reached the house just as the first fire engines under Batallion Chief Graham came clanging around out of Fifth Avenue. Fire was then belching from the front windows and curling out at the roof. Owing to the many valuable buildings and residences in the immediate neighborhood Chief Graham turned in a second alarm, bringing Fire Chief Kenyon and Deputy Chief Ross.

The fire had swept greedily through the front parlor, stocked with art objects and interior decorations for which Mr. Farmer said he had only last week refused an offer of $45,000. It turned up the stairway and reached to the roof, eating its way along the walls and destroying thousands of dollars' worth of rich hangings, tapestries, and art works in its way. In the room back of the parlor were cabinets containing many thousands of dollars' worth of rich porcelains and jades, but these were removed out of the way of the flames before the fire could spread, and the blaze was confined chiefly to the parlor and the halls.

Almost exactly opposite the Farmer home, which is a gray sandstone four-story building of highly ornamental architectural design, is the home of Mrs. John Astor at 12 West Fifty-sixth Street. In the immediate neighborhood are the homes of Frederick Meade at 1 West Fifty-sixth Street, T. Ranier at 3 West Fifth-sixth Street, and Dr. M. B. DuBois at 8 West Fifty-sixth Street, and the galleries of Duveen Brothers, containing millions of dollars' worth of art objects, are on the northwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Fifty-sixth Street, three doors east of the Farmer home.

The fire in the Farmer house was got under control in half an hour, and in an hour it was extinguished. Mr. Farmer could not estimate his loss accurately last night, but thought it would run well towards $45,000. The loss to the building, which is owned by August Heckscher, was estimated at $10,000 more.

Mr. Farmer said his own loss was covered only by about one-third in insurance. He lamented the fact that many of the finest art objects and interior decorations which he had collected from far parts of the earth were totally destroyed, and these, he said, were irreplaceable. He insisted on gaining entrance to the building before the flames had been extinguished in order to make sure that two large cabinets full of art objects and curios in the rear room were removed to safety.

Mrs. Farmer and her guest meanwhile took refuge at the home of Mrs. T. Ranier. There, however, Mrs. Farmer remembered that a canary bird pet of hers was hanging in its cage in the rear of the basement, and she insisted on entering the burning house to rescue it. Her guest accompanied her.

Chief Kenlon assured Mrs. Farmer that her bird was safe, since the flames had not touched the basement floor. Thereupon she and her guest made their way through the dripping hall amid falling wood and sparks to the second floor bedroom, where they gathered a few articles of immediate necessity, and then returned to the street.

Mr. Farmer was unwilling to tell the name of the woman who had been his wife's guest. His wife, he said, was connected with the stage, but he did not care to disclose what the connection was. Mrs. Farmer herself was in tears for the greater part of the time the fire was raging in her home.

Chief Kenlon could not ascertain the cause of the fire, but was inclined to attribute it to defective insulation in a network of electric wiring that spread back of one of the racks containing Chinese tapestries and silks. Two rooms on the parlor floor were used as a studio by Mr. Farmer, who had occupied the house since last October.

M. J. O'Brien, Jr., Named Receiver.

Justice Vernon M. Davis appointed yesterday in the Supreme Court Morgan J. O'Brien, Jr., receiver for the Manhattan Realty Company of 240 Broadway in proceedings brought to wind it up by Attorney General Carmody on the ground that it has been doing business in violation of the State banking law. The company was incorporated on April 13, 1908, with a capital of $50,000.

REPUBLICANS FOR WHITMAN.

Organization in Fifteenth District Pledges Its Support.

In the Fifteenth Assembly District where District Attorney Charles S. Whitman began his political career as an election district captain, the representatives of the Republican County Committee got together last night and pledged the support of their organization to Mr. Whitman as Republican candidate for Governor this Fall. It was the first action of its kind in the home county of Mr. Whitman. One Assembly District in Kings—the Fifth—and a couple of county organizations up-State have already indorsed him for the nomination.

The action last night was on resolutions introduced by Lloyd P. Stryker, Republican leader of the district. Mr. Stryker until recently was an Assistant District Attorney on Mr. Whitman's staff, and is his warm personal friend. Thirty-six out of the sixty representatives from the Fifteenth to the Republican County Committee attended the meeting. The vote was a triumph to the friends of Mr. Whitman. It stood 34 to 2. It was said, however, that a good many of the influential men in the district, who were conspicuous by their absence, are open supporters of Job E. Hedges.

Mr. Stryker in his resolution declared the name of Mr. Whitman, "the epitome of law enforcement." The resolution pronounced it "the unequivocal will and desire of the district organization that he become the candidate for Governor of the State of New York."

Speaking in support of the resolution, Mr. Stryker said the hour for Republican rehabilitation in this State was at hand, and that this end could be achieved if the Republican Party would come out in support of proper policies and the proper standard bearer.

"If there is a man in the State of New York who can carry the Republican banners to success," said Mr. Stryker, "that man is Charles S. Whitman. He began at the bottom. When he was an election district Captain in this district he worked for us and was our friend. Now that he has reached the top of the ladder let us work for him and be his friends."

Frederick B. Simpson, Assistant Commissioner of Jurors, was one of two members present to oppose the resolution. He based his opposition on the ground that the action proposed was "too previous."

"There are other men in the field fully as strong and able as Mr. Whitman," said Commissioner Simpson. "It may be that conditions will compel us to take an up-State man. But we shouldn't indorse anybody just at present. Let us wait. Mr. Whitman is going to try Becker for the second time before long. Suppose he does not get a convection then—will he be the strongest man? He is not the strongest District Attorney we have had in this county. He has been a most fortunate District Attorney. He has convicted his men before he has tried them at all. He has done his duty fearlessly—yes. But he deserves no credit for that. That's what he was elected to do."

John R. Freund was the only member of the committee in attendance to support Commissioner Simpson in his opposition to the Whitman resolution. Francis S. Bangs, ex-Congressman William H. Douglas, Alderman Niles R. Becker, Nathan Ottinger, pillars of the district organization, and Col. Louis Stotesbury, President of the Fifteenth Assembly District Republican Club, all spoke warmly in favor of indorsing Mr. Whitman's candidacy.

GIRL SWIMMER'S MEDAL LOST

Little Elizabeth Miller Won It by Swimming Across the Hudson.

Mary Elizabeth Miller, who won the child's long-distance swimming championship in 1912, has lost the Goodman Trophy, the gold medal which the achievement won for her. She lost it last Saturday afternoon somewhere between her home at 600 West 142nd Street and a moving picture theatre at Amsterdam Avenue and 150th Street, and for quite a while was too badly upset to tell her father and mother about it. Now they are searching for it.

Mary Elizabeth was only 10 years old when she won the Goodman Trophy with a swim of two and three-fourths miles across the Hudson.

City Loses a Contract Suit.

Judge Mayer yesterday, in the Federal District Court, ordered the city to pay to the Third National Bank of Jersey City, as assignee of the Water Front Improvement Company, the sum of $19,012.03 on a contract dated Oct. 8, 1908. This contract was for the final disposition of ashes, street sweepings, and rubbish, which was to be placed on the scows of the improvement company at the Street Cleaning Department's dumps, and suit was brought for $33,420.66. The city claimed that the company had not fulfilled its contract, and that its suit had been unreasonably and unnecessarily delayed, but the decision was given against it.

DORSEY ACCUSES FRANK DEFENSE

Intimates That He Has Evidence of Money Payments for Affidavits Incriminating Conley.

NO 'FRAME-UP,' SAYS BURNS

Invites Inquiry Into Testimony Exculpating Frank—New Trial Hearing To-morrow.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 29.—Interest in the outcome of the extraordinary motion for a new trial for Leo M. Frank, under sentence for the murder of Mary Phagan, was overshadowed to-day by developments in regard to the Rev. C. B. Ragsdale, the Baptist preacher, who made an affidavit for the defense that he overheard the negro Conley confess that he killed the girl, and who later repudiated the affidavit, alleging that it had been "framed."

Solicitor Hugh Dorsey professes to have a mass of evidence in regard to the manner in which the defense obtained the Ragsdale affidavit, and intimates that this evidence will be made public when the hearing on the extraordinary motion is resumed on Friday. He even intimates that he has affidavits showing that a large sum of money was involved and that disbarment proceedings against certain lawyers will follow. It is said to-night that the Grand Jury has been called in special session to return indictments for perjury and subornation of perjury.

R. L. Barber, who swore that he joined Mr. Ragsdale just after the minister said he heard Conley confess, is said by the solicitor to have disappeared. The detectives have been searching in vain for him since his affidavit was made public.

Following a visit to the Kirkwood residence of Mr. Ragsdale by a committee from the Plum Street Baptist Church it has been announced that Mr. Ragsdale has resigned his pastorate. Beyond intimating this, they merely said that a report of the whole matter would be made to the church tomorrow evening. The committee also stated that R. L. Barber, who made the affidavit strengthening that of the pastor, has never been a member of the Plum Street Baptist Church.

Mr. Ragsdale has refused to be interviewed in regard to the matter, but his son has expressed himself with much indignation and blames W. J. Burns, alleging that the detective took advantage of his aged father.

Detective Burns is indignant at the criticism and denies that he has been implicated in any "frame-up." He is especially indignant at the intimation in public reports that the Solicitor General and the city detectives are investigating his working in Chicago on the case with the view of showing a "frame-up."

"I am always willing for the light to be turned on," says the detective, "and I dare and defy them to find where there has been any frame-up on my part. I want them to investigate just as much as they please.

"There was only one thing done by myself in Chicago in connection with this case, and that was the taking of an affidavit from Aaron Allen, a negro stool pigeon who was employed by the detectives to stay in the cell and pump Newt Lee, the negro night watchman, while he was under arrest. The negro, Allen, made the affidavit freely and voluntarily. In fact, he came to my office in Chicago.

"The detectives are seeking by innuendo to make people believe they have discovered a mare's nest in Chicago, and for that reason I would turn on the light."

Mr. Burns, when asked if he was ready to make public his report, said:

"We would be pretty foolish to place all our evidence in the hands of the police so they could start frightening and intimidating the witnesses and locking them up like they did Mineola McKnight."

The hearing of an extraordinary motion for a new trial for Frank will be resumed before Judge Ben H. Hill of the Criminal Division of the Superior Court on Friday.

Solicitor General Dorsey has practically completed the work of gathering evidence to combat the defense's amendments, and will be ready for the hearing. The defense may further amend its motion by bringing in the various notes written to Annie Maud Carter by Jim Conley. This, however, will not result in a further delay.
